By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"There is always hope," says John Stuart Mill, "when people are forced to listen to both sides; it is when they attend only to one that errors harden into prejudices."

* * * *

Here's a case where the Senate will be forced to listen to both sides of the roll call on the Lenroot confirmation. Look over it—and don't let anything "harden into prejudices!"

* * * *

Senate conferees on the farm bill debenture insist on a slap in the face from the House and will accept no substitute.

* * * *

While others patiently ponder the personnel of the President's pragmatic prohibition probers we hop ahead to the day after the day their report is finally made and scoop everybody by announcing that one-half the people are still agin' licker and the other half still for it.

* * * *

Any copy of a daily newspaper can furnish an adequate report on the extent of the crime wave and the failure of prohibition enforcement for two cents, but the American people will never be satisfied with one that costs less than $1,000,000.

* * * *

The report that Mr. Hoover got a black eye on the Rapidan appears to be merely the garbled version of a recent incident that happened during the farm bill vote in the Senate.

* * * *

"Comrades, comrades, ever since we were boys, Sharing each other's sorrows, sharing each other's joys!"

Back in 1909-10, when Norris was fighting the Speaker's power in the House of Representatives, instead of water power, he and Lenroot were insurging all over the place together, and the G. O. P. received the black eye that led to the downfall of Taft and eight years of Wilson, and then both went to the Senate, and now Irvine, the conservative, is on the Federal bench, and George is bawling him out. Whatever else may be said of the radical Nebraskan inconsistency isn't one of his weaknesses, and his spear knows no comrade.

* * * *

The House debate reveals the astonishing fact that the number of men in that body who understood all about the tariff has increased from one when Champ Clark was alive to 435.

* * * *

The Supreme Court gives the railroads the first break they have had in this country since Uncle Joe Cannon persuaded T. R. to find something else besides the Dingley Law to pick on.

* * * *

Wall Street hands down the decision that a railroad stock is worth what a sucker will pay for it.

* * * *

This is the first time that a nine-mile railroad has kicked up a billion dollars' worth of fuss in this country since Mary Irwin used to sing her famous song—

"On the dummy, on the dummy line,
I'll rise and shine, for to pay my fine,
I'll rise and shine, for to pay my fine,
When I ride on the dummy line."

* * * *

Old-fashioned Wilmington mother—Heaven bless 'em!—loses her fight to have her daughter attend high school bare-legged.

Blessings on thee, bare-legged girl,
With thy bobbed hair in a curl,
And thy little dimpled knees,
Kissed by every naughty breeze.

Marshal Snyder beats the prohibition probers to it and sets their minds at ease on what isn't the cause of the crime wave.

North Carolina missionaries denounce smoking as a recently acquired habit by women, but what do they want the girls to go in for, Dolly Madison's snuff?

* * * *

Good omen in the laying of the Internal Revenue Building cornerstone in the rain—may it always pour in!

* * * *

President Hoover's offer to cancel 10 per cent of what we get in German payments for the American occupation of the Rhineland is a magnanimous gesture, but what is 10 per cent of 0?

* * * *

We gather that Doleful Jones' idea of a real snappy law enforcement commission is one that would have included Bishop Cannon, F. Scott McBride, Rev. Clarence True-As-I'm-Telling-You Wilson and Dr. John Waterbug Straton.

* * * *

Maj. Pratt's report on 464 gambling raids during the past four months is magnificent as far as it goes, but how many bridge games were broken up and Mah Jongg tables overturned in the mad rush of the bluecoats? Let us have all the crime statistics.

THREAT CAUSED LINDBERGH HOP NORTH, REPORT

Letter Declared to Have Promised Killing of Constance Morrow.

DEMAND FOR $50,000 BY EXTORTIONIST TOLD

Hurried Flight of Colonel and Fiancee's Family Called Precaution.

GUARD PLACED ABOUT GIRL, 15, STORY AVERS

Torture Claimed Described in Epistle Sent to Sister of Anne at School.

Boston, May 20 (A.P.).—The Boston Post in a copyrighted story tomorrow will say that a plot to extort $50,000 from Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, by threats of mutilation and death to his youngest daughter, Constance, was responsible for the unheralded flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and members of the Morrow family to North Haven, Me., Saturday.

The Post will say that the plot was responsible for the guard of secret service operatives which has been posted about the Morrow summer home. It will say that Constance was secretly spirited away from Milton Academy here while another girl impersonated her. The girl is 15 years old and a sophomore at the academy.

The story will explain that Miss Morrow first received a letter demanding $50,000 and threatening her with harm if she did not get it and leave it at a named spot. She showed the letter to school authorities and her family was notified. A guard was assigned to watch over her.

Second Letter Received.

A second letter, more scurrilous than the first, describing in detail the torture she would undergo if the money was not forthcoming, was received by the girl, The Post will say. It gave detailed instructions as to how the money was to be delivered last Saturday afternoon. When this letter was received an appeal was made by the Morrow family to Amabassador Morrow's former partners in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. and action also was taken at Washington.

Secret service operatives and private detectives were sent to work on the case and guard the girl, The Post will say.

It was decided to move her from the school secretly. This was done and her arrival in New York was timed for Col. Lindbergh's hop-off with other members of the Morrow family. The Post will say that Lindbergh's failure to use his regular landing field at New York and the secrecy veiling his flight was due to the plot.

Impersonator Leaves Bundle.

The Post will say that the impersonator of the Morrow girl followed the instructions in the last letter Saturday and left a bundle at the designated spot. Detectives watched but no one came to claim the package. The story will say that the watch was being kept tonight in spite of the fact that the authorities believed news of the girl's flight to North Haven with other members of her family frightened the would-be kidnaper.

It will say that the guard about the Morrow home is not to keep curiosity seekers away from Col. Lindbergh and his fiance, Miss Anne Morrow, but to protect the 15-year-old student.

North Haven, Me., May 20 (U.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh celebrated the second anniversary of his flight to Paris today with a spin over the Atlantic Ocean.

Roll Call of Senate On Lenroot Revealed

Executive Session Ballot That Confirmed Nomination to Customs Court Bench Bared, Showing Parties Divided on Hoover Appointment.

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

The executive session roll call by which the senate confirmed, 42 to 27, the nomination of Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, as a member of the United States Court of Customs Appeal was obtained by the United Press last night from a confidential but indisputably authoritative source.

The roll call:

FOR LENROOT—42.

Farmer-Labor, 1—Shipstead.

Much interest has been manifest in the vote because of the campaign now being conducted in the Senate against the secrecy rule which permits senators to conceal their votes on nominations if they so desire. Amendments seeking to abolish these rules were drawn several months ago by Senator Jones, of Washington, assistant Republican leader and Senator Robinson, of

BINGHAM'S BILL FOR AIRPORT TO COME UP TODAY

Commission Will Consider Chairman's Measure at Session Here.

IMPERATIVE NEED IS SHOWN BY EXPERTS

Davison Launches Survey to Decide Best Methods for Surfacing.

Washington advanced along the road to a municipal airport yesterday, it being learned that Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, has drafted a bill which would provide for one and that Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District, has instituted a survey to obtain information of the experiences of cities which have established them.

Senator Bingham has called a meeting of the Congressional Airport Commission, of which he is chairman, for today to consider the bill he has drawn up. The senator declines to make known the provisions of the bill, however, until the commission has authorized him to introduce it.

Members of the commission agree that Washington should have a large, adequate national airport and that it should be as close to the city as possible. At hearings on the project twelve or more experts, including Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, have emphasized the needs.

Two Problems Encountered.

Two problems that confronted Senator Bingham in drafting his bill were the location of the airport and the amounts to be paid toward it by the Federal Government and by the District government. The District Commissioners have recommended it be located at the Gravelly Point site, opposite Hains Point, and that it be paid for on a 50-50 basis. The commission has not permitted its views on these phases of the question to become known.

Maj. Davidson is chairman of the municipal airport committee of the city official's division of the American Road Builders' Association, and this organization has undertaken the work of collecting returns of a questionnaire prepared by Davison. This questionnaire, which deals principally with the surfacing of landing fields of municipal airports, was distributed among delegates to the airport convention in Cleveland, Ohio, last week. Answers are to be filed with the airport division of the American Road Builders' Association.

The information thus obtained will be studied and compiled into a report which later will be available to all cities and towns developing or contemplating the development of airports. The questionnaire, Davison explained, was prepared in the light of his experience as the representative of the District Commissioners in presenting the National Capital's airport needs and problems to the Bingham commission.

Development In Infancy.

Airport development in America is in its infancy, Davison believes, and only experience can give the final answer to many of the questions now confronting those charged with the building of airports.

"That does not mean that Washington should wait several years and see just what is finally arrived at as perfection," Davison added. "We should go ahead now, taking advantage of general experience and knowledge and building toward the eventual ideal airport. If a man refused to buy an automobile because he knew an improved automobile would be available next year he never would have an automobile."

More than 100 questions are contained in the questionnaire, dealing with various stypes of field surfacing, runways and the manner in which the field is laid out. Replies are expected to bring out valuable information useful not only in the development of the Washington airport but those in other cities as well.

HOOVER NAMES GROUP ON LAW ENFORCEMENT, WICKERSHAM AT HEAD

Findings of Body May Make Change in Amendment on Liquor, Is Belief.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover's law enforcement commission composed of eleven judges, educators and lawyers, was announced yesterday.

Former Attorney General Wickersham, as had been expected, is to serve as chairman. The members are:

Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker; Frank J. Loesch, venerable head of the Chicago Crime Commission; Roscoe Pound, dean of Harvard Law School; Federal Judge William I. Grubb of Alabama; Monte M. LeMann, New Orleans lawyer; Former Senator W. S. Kenyon, now judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals; Kenneth R. MacKintosh, of Washington, and variously a judge of the courts of that State, including the Supreme Court; Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick, of California; Henry W. Anderson, Virginia lawyer, a leader of the Republican party in that State and once its gubernatorial candidate; and Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffe College, the only woman member of the commission.

Three Others Declined.

It was made known that Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States Supreme Court, Owen J. Roberts, government counsel in the oil cases, and Charles Evans Hughes, were asked to serve but were forced to decline.

The commission is to meet with the President in three or four days after which time it will set about to organize. Presumably it will embark upon its work as soon as possible. No appropriation has been made for it but no trouble is expected on this score.

It is designated as the National Law Enforcement Commission and as such, the President has repeatedly made known, is to study ways and means of reorganizing legal procedure, the judiciary, and generally to bring about general law enforcement.

There has been no official suggestion, and there is none in the personnel of the commission, that it will have anything to do with determining the enforcibility of prohibition laws. Rather all of the President's declarations have been that it will only determine ways and means of tightening up present laws.

But in the public mind it will be largely associated with prohibition, and it is in this connection that its personnel will be closely scrutinized.

Dry and Wet Groups Silent.

No comment as to the personnel was forthcoming from either the Anti-saloon League or the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, although a statement by Henry H. Curran, head of the latter organization, did say that it was a wonderful opportunity to go into the whole question of prohibition.

The organization's statement follows:

"The President's commission is in a position to do a great service to the country by going to the bottom of the perplexing problem of Federal prohibition. We shall gladly present to the commission all of the pertinent facts assembled by our research department, in accordance with our letter to the President of April 5, and his

COURT UPSETS PLAN OF I. C. C. VALUATION

Erred in Fixing Worth of O'Fallon Road, Rules Supreme Bench.

DECISION FAR - REACHING

(Associated Press.)

The result of years of labor by the Interstate Commerce Commission in valuing railroads for rate making and other purposes was seriously impaired, if not entirely swept aside, yesterday by the Supreme Court.

The highest tribunal, dividing 5 to 3, with Justice Butler not participating, held that the commission in its valuation work must observe such elements as the present cost of construction or reproduction.

The controversy reached the Supreme Court through an appeal by the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad, a 9-mile coal line in southern Illinois. It sought to have set aside an order issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission calling for a refund of a part of its earnings. Coming under what is known as the recapture clause of the transportation act, permitting railroads to retain one-half of their earnings in excess of 6 per cent, and requiring them to pay over to the Government the other half, the case was based primarily on the validity of the methods used by the commission in valuing railroad property.

The opinion of the court was delivered by Justice McReynolds after a quoting of the law which requires the commission to "give due consideration to all elements of value recognized by the law of the land for rate-making purposes" and of the court's former decision on the subject of valuations for rate-making purposes. The opinion stated that among the elements "is

FIRST LAP OF ROME HOP MADE TO MAINE

Bad Weather Likely to Halt Atlantic Air Race for Several Days.

FRENCH FLIERS WAIT ALSO

Old Orchard, Me., May 20 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—The "Green Flash" with Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, pilot and navigator, arrived here just before dusk today on the first lap of their proposed hop to Rome. Both Yancey and Williams expressed the hope of taking off at daylight tomorrow.

Only one element, and a most important one which may give the French fliers time to catch up, was against them—the weather.

James H. Kimball, meterologist of the United States Weather Bureau, who has been supplying the aviators with reports for the past week, joined other weather experts in describing conditions as unfavorable. He said tonight that his report to the Americans who hope to be the first to make the air crossing this year was against an immediate attempt and that no favorable report might be issued until the middle of the week.

The fliers who took off from Teterboro Airport, N. J., at 2.55 p. m., heading their plane in the direction of New York, with Old Orchard as their immediate goal, were accompanied by Ben Zbori, a mechanic. Zbori will not make the Rome flight.

Arriving at Old Orchard, Williams said the take-off tomorrow morning would be made only under favorable weather auspices. Their plane is the one in which Marten Jensen recently broke the world's solo endurance flight record.

It is being refueled tonight, Williams and Yancey bringing with them today only enough gasoline for the Old Orchard hop.

The fliers, though disappointed by Kimball's report, were buoyed up by re-

HOOVER PAVES WAY FOR DEBTS ACCORD

Ready to Accept Cut in German Payments if All Powers Share It.

U. S. INTERESTS GUARDED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Hoover has paved the way for American acceptance of the new reparations plan, which has been practically completed by the committee of experts at Paris. The American experts, Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan, have been notified of the views which Mr. Hoover entertains toward the features of the program which affect the interests of the United States and the President's views have matured after frequent conferences with members of his Cabinet and after a White House conference on Sunday at which several congressional leaders were present.

There is nothing binding on the United States as yet in the expression of the American viewpoint, transmitted to Paris by direction of the President; and Secretary of State Stimson made it clear yesterday that the respective governments will not be bound by any recommendations of the experts until such governments take steps to bind themselves. Mr. Stimson, in a frank and thorough discussion of America's interest in the new plan, pointed out that if the recommendations of the experts follow the expected line, the American views as now formulated will represent the reaction of the United States Government.

The following features stand out in Secretary Stimson's explanation:

First—The executive branch of the United States Government, with the cooperation of the Congress, will pass final judgment on proposed changes affecting America's payments from Germany, which include the 2¼ per cent of reparations payments and the costs for the American Army of [illegible] which have been coming at the rate of $5,000,000 gold marks annually under the Dawes plan.

Second—America is ready to agree to receive 2¼ per cent of a reduced total

WAR PLANE'S CRASH KILLS ARMY AVIATOR

MOTOR FAILURE BLAMED

Yellow Springs, Ohio, May 20 (A.P.).—Second Lieut. Florin W. Shade, of Hays, Kans., attached to the first pursuit group of the United States Army Air Corps at Selfridge Field, Mich., fell to his death late today when his plane crashed in a plowed field a few miles west of here.

The first pursuit group is assigned to Norton Field, Columbus, in the current Army maneuvers and mimic warfare over central and southern Ohio. Shade was flying to Norton Field from Wright Field, Dayton, when death overtook him.

Engine trouble apparently was the cause of the crash.

P. A. Donley, near whose home the ship fell, said that Shade was soaring along at an altitude of about 125 feet when his motor suddenly began to miss and then stopped entirely. The plane plunged into a nose dive and Shade had no chance to right it.

Donley ran to the field where the heap of wreckage had burrowed itself into the ground. The pilot apparently had been killed instantly, he said. His head was badly crushed.

Wright Field, which is but 8 miles west of the scene of the crash, was notified at once and Army officers were dispatched to make an investigation.

Lieut. Shade, who was regarded as among the best of the pilots in the first pursuit group, crack unit of the Air Corps, had experienced trouble with his motor when he left Norton Field today. His was one of eight pursuit ships that accompanied Maj. Ralph Royce, commanding officer of the Selfridge Field outfit from Norton Field to Wright Field.

Although the first pursuit group, mainstay of the Red army, is supposed to be at war with the Blue army, which has quarters at Wright Field, Maj.

Bandits' Machine Gun Kills Two Guards of Money Car

$13,800 Obtained in Hold-up of Auto on Busy San Diego Road.

San Diego, Calif., May 20 (A.P.).—Two special police officers, identified as N. Monroy, and A. Borreto, were shot and killed here today by three machine gun robbers who escaped with $80,000 in checks and $5,800 in cash, which the policemen were bringing to a San Diego bank. Three suspects were arrested here tonight.

The money belonged to the Agua Caliente Co., a resort concern near Tia Juana, by whom Monroy and Borreto were employed. The robbery and shooting occurred on the National City Dike road, shortly before noon while a steady stream of traffic was passing over the thoroughfare.

The robbers were chased several blocks by witnesses. Their car was

Guard of Rothstein Taken in Homicide

"Legs" Diamond Is Held in Tony Marlow Death of Last November.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—John T. "Legs" Diamond, former bodyguard for Arnold Rothstein, slain Broadway gambler, was arrested tonight on a charge of homicide in connection with the shooting of Tony Marlow here November 5 last.

Diamond, who described himself to police as a salesman, was shot and critically wounded in October, 1927, when Jacob Orgen, lower East Side gang leader, known as "Little Augie," was shot to death in what police described as an outbreak of gang warfare. The two were ambushed on the lower East Side and their assailants escaped in an automobile.

At one time it was reported that Diamond was being sought by police in connection with the slaying of Rothstein, but Inspector John D. Coughlin, then chief of detectives, later declared "Lega" was not being sought as Rothstein's slayer.

Chicago-New Orleans Air Express Is Planned

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Formal announcement will be made within a few days of the organization of the Mid-continent Air Express, operating air lines between Chicago and New Orleans, Wall Street learned today. The project is backed by the Talbot-Hanshue-Fokker group, which controls the Western Air Express, operating lines along the Pacific Coast, and which recently sold a 40 per cent interest in the Fokker Aircraft Co. to the General Motors Corporation.

Philip Philbin, jr., who has been named general manager of the company, is making a survey of proposed routes along the Mississippi Valley. All details regarding routes, landing fields, &c., are being withheld until Mr. Philbin has filed his report.

Board of Trade Bars Plan To Snoop on Law Violators

Informing on Smoke-Screen Operators Banned by Body at Meeting Here; Salary Increase for Police Department Indorsed by Vote.

There will be no snooping against law violators by members of the Washington Board of Trade, according to a vigorous vote to table a motion to the effect that members inform against all persons seen with smoke screen apparatus, at the dinner meeting of the public order committee of the board last night at the Raleigh Hotel.

Another motion advocating a raise in pay for the Police Department, virtually as recommended by the District auditor, which consists principally in a $300 a year raise for privates, was carried, as also was a motion indorsing the idea of preventing the sale and importation of firearms, if possible.

"I can not see the Board of Trade becomnig snoopers," Odell Smith, chairman of the committee, declared after placing the motion for discussion. "It's damnable and I don't think it's right. However, that is my personal opinion."

United States Marshal Edgar Snyder, in a plea for law enforcement and obedience to the law, declared that President Hoover is a great crusader in his efforts for law enforcement and law obedience.

"And don't you believe for a minute that prohibition is responsible for the increase of crime, for it isn't so," the marshal said. He said that Washington is better governed and has less crime in proportion to population than any other city in the United States.

However, Ernest W. Gibson, representative from Vermont, and chairman reply of April 8, to our offer contained in that letter."

This was a letter saying that the association held prohibition to be unenforceable and wanted to know if the President would permit this view to go before the commission. The President's secretary, Lawrence S. Richey, replied in a rather indefinite way that the President desired him to say that all information bearing on the question of enforcement of the laws was wanted.

Individual Tagging Doubtful.

As to the individual members it is doubtful if either the Anti-Saloon League or the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has them tagged as either wet or dry with the probable exception of Judge Kenyon, Baker and Anderson.

At first blush, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment might be said to be afraid of only Kenyon and Anderson. Baker in the last campaign came out as an avowed wet. Kenyon as senator was the author of the law preventing the importation of wet goods into dry territory, and Anderson is in politics in a politically dry State.

Baker, in explaining his support of Smith during the campaign, issued a statement saying "I have never been a prohibitionist," and to the effect that some of the best people in the country were in open revolt against the prohibition laws.

There is the chairman, former Attorney General Wickersham. Several days ago, addressing the students at Washington and Lee University, he was quoted as saying that the Jones law was so severe that it defeated its own purpose. A few days later, addressing the American Law Institute here, he declared that the law must be upheld. If he has ever made any pronounced wet or dry utterances, none is recalled. Wickersham is generally looked upon, however, as liberal-minded.

All of the members of the commission have attained a degree of eminence, at least, but not more than three or four are nationally known, and for that reason alone it would be hard to definitely classify them as wet or dry. But what is believed to be the general liberal-mindedness of the commission was eagerly seized upon by the wets as insuring them a square deal.

There was the case of Judge McCormick. Incidentally, he presided in the oil case that was decided in favor of the Government against Doheny. But the wets pointed out that the "Mc" of his name argued against his being a dry, certainly not a fanatical one.

Miss Comstock is the president of a liberal college. At least the girls smoke cigarettes there.

Loesch Vice Crusader.

Loesch is a 76-year vice crusader of Chicago, but a vice crusader there is one who wants the gangs to stop shooting. Drying up the city would probably be beyond the vision of the wildest idealist. It was he who went to see Al Capone, some time before his arrest, and obtained a pledge from him to quit the racket. He should know, it is generally agreed, a lot about crime.

It is not known whether Prof Pound is wet or dry. But he is liberal-minded; so much so, in fact, that he acquired considerable prominence, not altogether favorable, in the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Judge Grubb holds Federal court in a politically dry and klan-ridden State, Alabama, but inasmuch as he has never run for office it is doubtful if he could be classified as either wet or dry, but has undoubtedly picked up a lot of information on the workings of the dry laws while peering down over his judicial spectacles from the bench. He got his law training at Yale. He is a member of the council of the American Bar Association and of the American Law Institute.

Mackintosh Hoover Classmate.

Judge Mackintosh, of Seattle, was a classmate of President Hoover. In the last senatorial campaign he ran against Senator Dill. At first he was wet and then he was dry, so he should be right neutral on the question now.

Le Mann, prominent in both the bar association and law institute, practices law in New Orleans, not a dry atmosphere.

It is noteworthy, however, that none of the members can be identified as actively with either the wet or dry cause, unless Baker's activities in the recent campaign can be so classified. It is such an unfettered aggregation as the President wanted to get, and in sticking to his view he denied the recommendation of Bishop Cannon, Southern Methodist spokesman, that there be at least one member of the commission prominently identified with the dry cause and one with the wet side.

He did accept the bishop's recommendation that a woman be appointed, however, but it is doubtful if the bishop had Miss Comstock in mind.

Unquestionably, it was pointed out, all of the members must be students of the present state of lawlessness, which Mr. Hoover wants to correct. Col. Anderson, it was pointed out, might well view prohibition as a legal problem far different than he would when considering it as a political matter.

Politically, there are seven Republicans on the commission, Wickersham, Loesch, Pound, Kenyon, Mackintosh, McCormick and Anderson, and three Democrats, Baker, Grubb and Le Mann. Miss Comstock has no political affiliations listed.

Democrats Are Advised To Offer Party Bills

Democrats in Congress should introduce their own bills in substitute for Republican meaures, rather than limit their attack to criticism and the proposal of mere amendments, the Woman's National Democratic Club was told yesterday at its weekly forum luncheon by Henry Minor, former national committeeman of that party from Mississippi.

In reviewing the history of the Democratic party, he stressed the need for its members now to "set out to do for farm relief and the tariff what the party did for the financial systems of the country by the Federal Reserve act."

CONGRESS LEADERS APPROVE LAW BODY

Both Wets and Drys Expect Constructive Suggestions From Commission.

JONES DIFFERS ON NAMES

(Associated Press.)

Wet and dry leaders generally in Congress expressed satisfaction last night with the personnel of the national law enforcement commission named by President Hoover.

Senator Jones, of Washington, a champion of the dry cause, however, said he would have made different selections if he had been doing the selecting, while Representative LaGuardia, of New York, a wet leader, said "the naming of so many judges is a fundamental mistake."

Senator Edge, of New Jersey, long an advocate of Volstead act modification, asserted that "the high character of the appointees assures an impartial survey of present deplorable conditions."

Representative Cramton, of Michigan, chief spokesman for the drys in the House, said, "Knowing President Hoover's interest in the subject and knowing that the membership was selected with great care, I am bound to have confidence in the commission."

Borah Approves Selection.

"I think it is a very able commission," was the comment of Senator Borah, of Idaho, a dry advocate. Senator Sheppard, of Texas, one of the authors of the eighteenth amendment, withheld comment.

Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, and Bishop James Cannon, jr., among the foremost leaders of the organized drys, were absent from Washington. Bishop Cannon had asked for the apointment of an outstanding dry.

"I think the President has done fine," said Senator Norris, of Nebraska, chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, which would pass upon any recommendations for changes in existing laws relating to the Federal judicial and enforcement machinery.

Walsh Looks for Results.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, a prominent dry, said the commission was rather a high class one and that he looked for constructive sugestions from it. Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, a wet, said he considered the personnel "a very excellent one, although I would anticipate from its make-up a rather extreme conservative judgment."

"The personnel of the commission assures a careful consideration of the problems involved and prudent recommendations," was the statement of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the Senate. Representative Garner, of Texas, the Democratic leader in the House, said that so far as he was acquainted with the personnel, "it seems to me to be a very capable commission."

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the Republican leader in the House, said he thought the President had selected a splendid commission. "I see some whom I know to be wets, and others who are drys," he added.

Mother Is Freed Of Murder Charge

Insanity Plea Wins for Confessed Slayer of Ohio Priest.

Canton, Ohio, May 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Maeme Guerrieri, mother of five children and confessed slayer of the Rev. Father Joseph Riccardi, former pastor of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church here, tonight was acquitted of first-degree murder on the sole grounds of insanity. The verdict was returned by a jury of six men and six women after three and a half hours' deliberation.

Although acquitted of the murder charge, the status of the woman was uncertain tonight. Authorities had not decided whether to file an insanity affidavit against her. She was ordered held.

The shooting of the Rev. Father Riccardi followed completion of the morning mass in the church last March 10. Insanity was her defense during the trial.

Man Doomed to Die In Woman's Killing

Found Guilty of Murder by Jury of Two Women and Ten Men.

Andrew J. Hawkins, colored, was found guilty of first degree murder by a jury of two women and ten men in District Supreme Court last night. He was convicted on an indictment charging the fatal shooting of Ruth Watkins, colored, on December 22, last, at 457 N street northwest.

The verdict automatically carries with it the sentence of death. Sentence probably will be pronounced later in the week.

Shortly before the verdict was returned in the Hawkins case, another jury returned a verdict of second degree murder against Carrie Sutten, colored, charged with the knife-slaying of Robert Darnell, colored, last October.

Erring Churchman Jailed Like Father

Oakland Banker and Sunday School Treasurer Is Confessed Thief.

Oakland, Calif., May 20 (A.P.).—Roy B. Baker, formerly vice president of the Oakland Bank and church school treasurer, was sentenced to San Quentin prison for one to ten years today after pleading guilty to embezzling $62,000 from the bank and Berkeley Divinity School.

The former bank executive showed no emotion when sentenced. He left for prison at once. In a confession last week Baker said his peculations extended over three years.

Sixteen years ago Charles Baker, his father, who held a high position in a San Francisco bank, was convicted of embezzlement of $201,000. He was paroled after serving two years in prison.

Earl Peacox Indicted In Wife's Torch Death

White Plains, N. Y., May 20 (A.P.).—After hearing witnesses for two hours today the Westchester County grand jury voted an indictment charging Earl F. Peacox with murder in the first degree in the slaying of his wife, Dorothy, whose burned body was found in a thicket near here last month.

District Attorney Frank A. Coyne said the date for arraignment of Peacox, a radio repair man, had not been set.

Peacox was separated from his wife. He is charged with having induced her to accompany him to their former home on the first anniversary of their wedding and to have killed her there, hiding her body and later pouring kerosene over it and setting it afire.

EVIDENCE AGAINST WARDER OUTLINED

Investigator Alleges Former Bank Superintendent Showed Partiality.

TOOK GIFTS, IS CHARGE

New York, May 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The skeleton of a case against Frank H. Warder, former superintendent of banks, was erected today in the public investigation by Moreland Act Commissioner Robert Moses, into the collapse of the City Trust Co., in February of this year.

Evidence was spread upon the record to show, first, that Mr. Warder had given this bank extraordinary consideration in spite of the reports of his examiners that it was in bad condition and, second, that he or his family had accepted gifts from Francesco M. Ferrari, head of the bank, who died February 1.

Ferrari, it was shown, not only guaranteed the rent on the Warder apartment, but paid the first month's rent of $275 with a personal check, and paid for some $1,300 of rugs and about $900 worth of Louis XIV furniture which went into it.

Sedan Purchase Bared.

In addition, Walter H. Pollak, counsel to Commissioner Moses, brought out Warder's daughter, Virginia, drove a $2,209 sedan bought by a Ferrari concern, and subsequently, by an arrangement assisted by Ferrari, traded it on another sedan. The balance of $3,216 on the latter car, it was testified, was paid by the late Mrs. Warder in cash. Warder has denied that Ferrari paid his rent, and in the Federal bankruptcy hearing on the Ferrari concern last week, he testified that he had not received any gifts from Ferrari. He refused to waive immunity from criminal prosecution when he was put on the stand at the beginning of the Moreland inquiry today, and was therefore not examined.

In concentrating on Warder's connection with Ferrari, Mr. Pollak only skimmed the irregularities within the City Trust itself. General Sessions Judge Francis X. Mancuso, chairman of the City Trust Board, and Edward J. Glynn, nephew of Former Gov. Smith, were shown on the bank's records of recipients of unsecured loans.

Overdrafts Are Alleged.

H. Warren Hubbard, Tammany leader in the Eighteenth Assembly District, and H. H. Lazarus, city marshal, both directors of the bank, made overdrafts, according to the report. Judge Mancuso's name appeared several times. He declared tonight that he was involved in none of the transactions shown on the record. In developing this aspect of the case, Mr. Pollak hinted that he did not think the bank's records were entirely trustworthy.

After refusing to waive immunity, Warder took a front seat directly opposite Commissioner Moses in the hearing room and sat there most of the rest of the day with a fixed expression of sadness. He wore a mourning band for Mrs. Warder, who died eight days ago from a heart attack precipitated by the investigation of the City Trust failure.

He interrupted once to correct the date of a conference between himself and Ferrari, but, after being squelched by Commissioner Moses, held his peace. He was alone and no one except two of his former associates in the banking department addressed him.

TEXAS FLIERS ROAR ON TOWARD RECORD

Plane Out for Laurels of "Question Mark" Begins Second Night Aloft.

ONE PILOT BECOMES ILL

Fort Worth, Tex., May 20 (A.P.).—The single-motored Ryan brougham monoplane Fort Worth soared into its second night with two hopeful civilian pilots aboard determined to topple the refueling endurance record of 150 hours, 40 minutes, and 15 seconds established by the Army monoplane Question Mark. The ship, entirely rebuilt for the venture, took off here Sunday at 11:33 a. m.

The Fort Worth's chief pilot is Reg L. Robbins and the copilot is Jim Kelly, both resident here.

Floodlights were kept burning last night and tonight at municipal airport in order to guide the pilots. The plane visited the airport frequently Sunday and made regular trips over the field throughout the night.

The fliers are carrying flares for use in case of a forced landing after dark beyond the limits of the flying field.

Until the ship lands two officials will be on duty to keep the ground record of the flight. A comprehensive log is being kept in which sightings of the plane are recorded, with remarks about altitude and other data.

The first refueling contact was made early this morning, 110 gallons of gasoline being transferred, with oil and food. In notes dropped in the forenoon Robbins said he had been sick every time Kelly had been at the controls and requested that he be sent some medicine, explaining that he always becomes ill when in a plane he is not flying himself.

Under the rules that apply to such tests, the fliers must exceed the record by one hour to break it.

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., May 20 (A.P.).—An endurance record for airplanes powered by 90-horsepower motors was claimed tonight by Laurie Yonge, veteran Jacksonville aviator, who remained aloft in his monoplane Hotsy Totsy for 25 hours and 5 minutes before bringing it to a landing on the beach here shortly after noon today.

The previous mark for planes powered with similar motors was made by Miss Eleanor Smith, of New York. She remained in the air for 13 hours and 19 minutes.

In establishing his mark, Yonge successfully combated two thunderstorms, which forced him to deviate from his monotonous route over the beach. He was compelled to fly as far as Palatka, in the central part of the State, late yesterday to avoid inclement weather.

PRESBYTERIANS FAIL TO RULE ON DIVORCE

Establishment of Single Cause Is Vetoed by Pastors at Montreat.

EVOLUTION ISSUE ARISES

Montreat, N. C., May 20 (A.P.).—The sixty-ninth general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States voted this afternoon not to recognize the violation of the seventh commandment as the only unquestionable ground for divorce.

The vote upheld the report earlier in the day of a special committee appointed to consider ad interim majority and minority reports, that it did not favor the establishment of the ground for divorce as the only unquestionable one.

At present the church recognizes prolonged separation as well as infidelity as sufficient grounds for divorce.

The assembly to day voted to enjoin upon the Presbytery of Arkansas its duty to investigate rumors as to soundness in the faith of the Rev. Hay Watson Smith, pastor of the Second Church, Little Rock.

Charlottesville Is Selected.

Charlottesville, Va., today was selected for the next annual meeting.

The question of evolution entered the assembly when the committee on bills and overtures reported its answer to an overture from Augusta Presbytery requesting investigation of charges that the Rev. Mr. Smith had written pamphlets on evolution. A motion by Dr. W. M. McPheeters, Atlanta, that the Presbytery of Arkansas be enjoined to investigate the rumors, was adopted.

Overtures asking that any particular church desiring to be permitted to elect elders for a stipulated terms of years were negatively answered after a long debate.

Union Question Is Deferred.

The question of organic union with the United Presbyterians had been a special order of business for this afternoon, but was put over until tomorrow.

Among recommendations approved today were: As trustees, election for terms of three years, the Rev. Homer McMillan, D. D., Atlanta; Mrs. Cameron Morrison, Charlotte, N. C.; Miss Katherine H. Hawes, Richmond, Va., and the Rev. William E. Hill, Richmond. John Henry, of Birmingham, Ala., was recommended to fill the unexpired term of the Rev. Joseph G. Venable, D. D.

George A. Huggins, of Philadelphia, actuary for the Presbyterian Church, United States of America; Northern Baptist Church, Congregation Church and Church of the Disciples, submitted a statement of the plan proposed for ministers' annuity fund.

Led Fight Two Years Ago.

Little Rock, Ark., May 20 (A.P.).—The Rev. Hay Watson, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Little Rock, whose liberal views on religion are well known in Arkansas, was a leader in the fight two years ago to prevent the passage by the State Legislature of an antievolution act similar to the one initiated by referendum last year.

His church is one of the wealthiest in the city and often is referred to as "the rich man's church." Dr. Smith has boasted that his congregation is composed of persons of many religious faiths, attracted to that church by its liberalism.

Healing Art Boards Delayed.

The District commission on licensure of the healing arts failed to make its expected appointments of examining boards at its meeting in the District Building yesterday. One of those tentatively selected for membership on one of the boards was discovered to be a resident of nearby Maryland. Another, who had been expected to accept, asked to be excused. The boards probably will be named at the meeting of the commission next Monday.

ROLL CALL IN HOUSE ON DEBENTURE SEEN

Farm Relief Plan Ballot Is Expected After Suggestion by Senate Conferees.

ULTIMATUM IS PRESENTED

(Associated Press.)

A roll call vote in the House on the export debenture plan was seen as a possibility yesterday after members of the farm relief conference committee from that branch had agreed, at the suggestion of the Senate conferees, to ask their party leaders if such a vote might not be authorized.

Varying views were expressed immediately on whether the House should undertake such a vote because of the attitude there that the Senate had no right to initiate the debenture section, and indications were that the strongest inclination was to permit an early ballot in order to convince the Senate that the plan was not desired by the House.

More definite information is expected to be laid before the conference committee today. This committee is attempting to compose the differences in the farm bills passed separately by the two congressional branches.

At the outset of yesterday's meeting Senate members were confronted with what amounted to an ultimatum from House members that no sections of the two bills would be considered until the debenture controversy had been settled. The senators had hoped to dispose of all the minor differences first and then try to agree concerning the debenture section, but the House members flatly declined to arbitrate until satisfaction had been given their view that debentures must not be included in the farm measure.

Senate members countered with a contention that enactment of the farm bill would be seriously threatened unless House leaders permitted a vote in that branch directly on the debenture section. The House has never taken such a vote, the debenture plan having been barred from consideratoin as a part of the farm relief bill there on a point of order.

The sentiment in the House has always been regarded by the leaders as strongly opposed to the debenture section. In view of this there was a feeling that it might be well to order a vote at the earliest opportunity so as to have the House opposition on record. This, some leaders contended, would give the House conferees a stronger weapon for their negotiations with the Senate members of the conference committee.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

Just as last week was all "horse," this week is all "tennis." The Davis Cup Teams will play on the White House courts tomorrow before a most distinguished gallery. Don't you hope that the weather will be fair and dry?

It is time some of these charming summer clothes which have been purchased in the past several weeks were brought out for exhibition. The exhibition matches at Chevy Chase should bring out a very dressy gallery, too. Perhaps I will tell you about it in detail afterward.

Outdoor weddings were planned for this month and next, but some of them have been changed at the last minute to undershelter ceremonies.

The Tally-Ho Tavern Is Almost Ready

—to open again. You know it burned partly not long ago and since that time repairs have been rapidly under way until now it is nearly ready to open again. It will be new and wonderful, with all fresh, new equipment, new china, new glass and new details in the interior. It has always been tremendously attractive and will be lovelier than ever now.

The Tally-Ho Tavern is at 812 Seventeenth street, and has always been a favorite meeting place for men's conferences. Several groups of men come each week on a chosen day for their luncheon conferences. Watch for the opening about June 1st.

Tennis Dresses For Twelve-Fifty

—are in peach color, maize with all over embroidery, and one with white embroidery. You will find these in that nice little shop called "Herron's," up one flight at 1735 Connecticut avenue. Several models in Chinese damask at a comparatively low figure will interest you, too.

A lovely little printed silk for $16.50 has its coat and a sleeveless frock which gives the appearance of a skirt and a white tuck-in blouse. This is piped in purple. The frock has a modified sun-tan back.

One of the best inexpensive frocks I have seen this year is in Herron's in a bubble print silk, with orange and yellow and brown figures. The details in making are very good in this model.

Little Boys Need So Many Suits

—it is wonderful to hear of a remarkable sale where you can buy them for as little as $1 each. Go into the Barr Building (which, you know, is on Seventeenth street between I and K), take the elevator to suite 308 and and there you will find the quietest, most attractive shop of children's clothes, Nealon & Co. This firm has decided to not carry boys' clothes any more, so is selling out what remains at a small price.

While Nealon & Co. formerly carried only little girls' clothes, they have added to their displays sizes to 18 years, so the mothers are selecting pretty frocks for themselves at the same time they buy for the children. You will like the smart selections and the prices in this shop.

The Swimming Pool Is Open at Wardman

—which is one way you can tell that summer has come! This event is always anticipated with the greatest enthusiasm by all lovers of swimming. The location of the pool is such that you could easily imagine yourself up in the mountains, or at least in the North woods. You surely could scarcely believe that you were in a city.

As the dances end next Saturday night, the pool really takes the center of the stage for activities in this remarkable hotel.

It is quite the vogue to plan swimming parties for the afternoon, followed by a jolly dinner afterward in the hotel restaurant or coffee shop. I do not know whether there will be tables this year and a tea service at the edge of the pool. I think there was such a service one summer.

The pool is so attractive that it inspires you instantly to give some sort of a party, to wear your most fetching bathing togs and thoroughly enjoy the lovely setting which the place presents.

Even though you are not a resident in the hotel, you may secure a card giving you the privileges by applying to the management for it. At least, this has been possible in other seasons, and no doubt is the same this summer.

Reduced Prices at Pasternak's

—probably will not continue longer than this week. Women in general have shown their appreciation of this event to such an extent that not many models remain in the groups from the early showings, which were repriced for immediate clearance.

Hot sunny days will be with us soon, and it is best to be ready. Displays in Pasternak's show all the lovely frocks and hats for summer wear which are so necessary to a happy season. Adorable prints in the sweetest colors, filmy chiffons, tailored silks, everything which fashion approves you may find in Pasternak's, 1219 Connecticut avenue.

Portraits of Brides Are Loveliest

—When made by Underwood & Underwood. Do stop and see their window this week. They have several stunning brides' pictures on display. I suppose that this famous studio photographs practically every girl who takes the marriage vows in the National Capital. Part of the Underwood & Underwood service is to send the photographs to the publications which are most interested in using them, which in itself, saves the bride's family a lot of bother. And of course it has become the thing to do, to have your wedding picture in all the papers and magazines which your own particular circle reads.

Many girls have a picture made to use in the papers when their engagements are announced. Underwood & Underwood make home portraits or studio portraits, whichever you want. Some brides have their pictures made in their wedding gowns several days before the wedding, so that it can be done in a leisurely manner. But so often the gown isn't ready until the last minute, and since it is nice to have a photograph of the entire wedding party, the best way is to have some pictures made at least immediately preceding the wedding.

Affectionately,

REGULATION OF PRESS INTIMATED IN SENATE

Norris, in All-Day Speech, Flays Power Group's Lavish Spending.

NEWSPAPER QUIZ LOOMS

(Associated Press.)

Intimations of proposed legislation to control the ownership of newspapers were heard in the Senate yesterday as Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, assailed a "power trust" which he said was attempting to buy the press of the Nation.

The Nebraska senator, who spoke all day, placed before the Senate evidence which he contended proved a "power trust" was attempting not only to extend its power, but to influence public opinion through the newspapers.

The Nebraskan was questioned by Senators Walsh, of Massachusetts; Wheeler and Walsh, of Montana; Dill, of Washington, and McKellar, of Tennessee, all Democrats, who indicated agreement with his views.

The Massachusetts senator warned that "if the time comes when all the press is controlled by the power trust or by big business there is no other position for free people to take them to have the Government take over the press."

Senator Dill suggested that the right of special mail rates could be denied to papers being used to influence readers in behalf of special interests.

Norris Flays "Trust."

Disclosures in the Federal Trade Commission's investigation into newspaper investments by the International Paper & Power Co., received the particular attention of Senator Norris. Senator Wheeler proposed that the Trade Commission now inquire into the ownership of all newspapers.

Senator Norris ranged from coast to coast in his discussion of power groups' activities, starting at Boston and going to California, discussing conditions in Maine, Iowa, the South and Nebraska on the way.

"There is no more reason," he contended, "why the power companies should own newspapers than men engaging in making shoes or sewing machines should have newspapers. Newspapers get special privileges from the Government in reduced rates, which presupposes that these papers shall not be subsidized or printed in behalf of particular interests."

The recent appointment of Irvine Lenroot, former Wisconsin Republican senator, to the Court of Customs Appeals, also was attacked by Norris, who last week led an unsuccessful attempt to prevent his confirmation by the Senate.

"The power trust," he said, "hired Lenroot to help defeat the resolution of Senator Walsh, of Montana, for an investigation of the power companies, or at least to prevent the Senate making the inevstigation."

Wanted His Influence.

"Did they hire him because he was a lawyer? God bless you, no. Lenroot, up to the time he left the Senate, never practiced in his life. He was not permitted to practice before the Supreme Court of his own State.

"The power trust didn't want a lawyer. They wanted him because he was a former senator. The people of Wisconsin retired him to a lame duck. The power trust hired him at $20,000 fee because they thought that he might influence some United States senators.

"At Kansas City Lenroot did valuable service for Mr. Hoover, and now we find him ascending the bench for life at $12,000 a year, not because he is a lawyer, but because he had the favor of the leaders of his party, as well as the power trust. With $20,000 of power trust money jingling in his pockets, he mounts the bench for life.

"I hope the time will come when Presidents do not pay their presidential debts by placing men on the bench for life."

Senator Norris asserted that the Federal Trade Commission should reopen its investigation into the ownership of the San Diego, Calif., Tribune, by "going to the bottom" of the holding of Ira L. Copley, publisher of the papers, in Insull utility organizations.

The senator read a telegram from a man in California whom he did not name, declaring that Copley still owned $5,000,000 of securities in the Insull companies and that a bond issue on his paper had been handled by the W. W. Armstrong & Co., Aurora, Ills., which Norris Termed "the regional distributor in Illinois for utilities securiteis."

The Nebraskan then turned his attention to Iowa, and commented upon grand jury action in Fort Dodge, where he said 20 indictments were returned against the Fort Dodge Gas & Electric Co., for illegally giving funds in a campaign.

"In many parts of the country, the power trust buys newspapers," Norris said, "but in Iowa it buys men."

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, interrupted to say that the power companies had such a control over the Iowa legislature that it was impossible to get through an adequate public utility control bill.

Hits Mobile Situation.

Senator Norris spoke of the newspaper situation in Mobile, Ala. "The two existing newspapers of Mobile," he said, "have been fearless and independent. The power companies have not been able to control them.

"The power companies have established another paper there now. It is worthy of note that the stockholders in the new company are very close to the power companies."

Los Angeles, May 20 (A.P.).—Col. Ira C. Copley, president and owner of the Copley Press, tonight telegraphed United States Senator George W. Norris requesting that he be summoned as a witness before the Federal Trade Commission.

Col. Copley, in his wire to Senator Norris, declared the statements of Senator Norris before the Senate today relating to Copley were without foundation.

Convention Opened By Lutheran Synod

Churches of District and 4 States Represented at Frederick.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., May 20.—The Maryland Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America convened in annual session in the Boonsboro Church, the Rev. M. A. Ashby, pastor, tonight, and will continue four days. The synod embraces Maryland, the District of Columbia and congregations in Lovettsville, Va.; Waynesboro, Pa., and Martinsburg, W. Va., and has 138 congregations in its area.

The annual sermon was preached by the president, the Rev. J. E. Byers, of Baltimore, followed by celebration of the Holy Communion. New officers will be elected, committees appointed and reports adopted tomorrow. The most important business is the question of uniting the three theological seminaries at Philadelphia, Gettysburg and Selines Grove, Pa., and conducting them under one administration instead of having three administrations.

A campaign for funds for building a new college in Washington, D. C., for the education of young women also is planned. A site for the college, valued at $100,000, has been secured on Wisconsin avenue and buildings will cost, it is estimated, between $300,000 and $400,000.

ports which indicated that fair weather conditions may be expected halfway across the Atlantic.

W. B. Claussen, American representative of Rene Le Fevre and Jean Assolant, the French fliers, said in New York tonight that he did not believe they would take off on their ocean hop for another 36 hours, due in part to the unfavorable weather.

All gas, oil and water was removed today from the Bernard monoplane in which the French fliers expect to fly to Paris in order to obtain the exact weight of the ship. This was said to be necessary because additional instruments have been installed in the craft since her flight to Morocco and the pilots wanted to know just how much fuel and other cargo they could carry. The plane was found to weigh 5,080 pounds.

Armeno Lotti, jr., backer of the project, will make the flight with Le Fevre and Assolant.

Williams and Yancey arrived here at 6:05 p. m. in their Bellanca. They had made two test flights at Teterboro earlier in the day. These were regarded as satisfactory and indicated, the aviators said, that 500 gallons of gasoline will be enough to take them across the Atlantic.

BOARD OF TRADE BARS POLICY FOR SNOOPING

of the special investigating committee of the District committee, which has been delving into crime and its relationships, said that in crime "Washington is on a level with the rest of the country," and cited figures to show there were more homicides in this city in 1927 than in all of England. He then declared that the United States leads the world in homicides.

Representative Gibson advocated that the District of Columbia have representatives in Congress. He outlined the many problems and the duties of congressmen in addition to making law, and urged that efforts be continued to secure representation.

Charles Bates, an attorney, startled the eeting by advocating that every one "defend your property at the cost of your life against bandits and then banditry will soon stop. Of course some of us will be killed, but it will solve that problem."

A member of the committee arose and voiced objections to this heroic treatment. He put forth the argument of "women and children first; our wives and children need us more than we do our pocketbooks."

The committee also voted to give a prize to the policeman's relay race at the meeting of the A. A. U. at Central High School Stadium on June 8, and advocated encouragement for forming track teams among the entire force.

abandoned when they transferred to another automobile that apparently was waiting for them.

Police said the best account of the incident was substantially as follows:

When the money car was drawing near the bridge on Main street, a light closed car bearing two men shot out from the regular line of traffic. A shot was heard and a rear tire of the money car was flattened. Then one of the occupants of the bandit car sprayed the two policemen with machine gun bullets. Borreto, who was sitting beside the driver, attempted to leap from the car and return the fire but was shot dead. After the two officers had been killed one of the bandits took a money sack from the officer's car, leaped into the bandit machine and sped away.

Police said they believed an accomplice was standing near where the shooting occurred and leaped into the bandit car after aiding in the robbery. County, city, and State police have united in a search for the bandits.

Whittemore Bandit Trio Gets 20 Years

Brother of Hanged Leader and Two Mates Given Term in Robbery.

Westminster, Md., May 20 (A.P.).—Sentences of 20 years each in the penitentiary for robbing the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank here were imposed on three men today in circuit court.

The men, Rawlings V. Whittemore, jr., Robert Milner and August Beyers, all of Baltimore, pleaded guilty to charges of robbery, assault with a deadly weapon, and receiving stolen goods. The sentences were 20 years on each count, to run concurrently.

In addition, Whittemore was found guilty of assault on Arthur Blizzard, a Westminster garage keeper and was sentenced to serve an additional year on that charge.

Loening amphibian plane in which he, his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, and other members of the Morrow family flew here from New York Saturday.

The plane, which had been refueled earlier in the day with a special consignment of 55 gallons of gasoline from Rockland, was pursued by news photographers in a seaplane, who attempted to secure pictures.

Lindbergh and the news plane engaged in a long game of hide and seek, but the superior speed of the amphibian kept the cameramen at a safe distance.

Children Are Guests.

North Haven school children and North Havenites were treated to their first view of the aviator this afternoon, when they were guests at the Morrow estate for an inspection of the monster amphibian.

After the inspection of the plane had been completed under Col. Lindbergh's guidance, the Morrow beach wagon was seen to leave the Morrow estate. Lindbergh and several members of the family were in the automobile, but newspaper men, kept at bay by a cordon of guards, were unable to get near enough to see who was driving or which members of the family were in the party.

They rode over the lanes and byways of the island for some time, keeping to those sections unfrequented by the newspaper men.

Mexico City, May 20 (A.P.).—Dwight Morrow, American Ambassador to Mexico, plans to leave for the United States late this week.

He will go by way of Laredo, and will visit New York, Washington and his home in Englewood, N. J. He will be accompanied by Allen Dawson, embassy secretary.

Senate to Limit Debate On Reapportioning Bill

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday agreed to limit debate after 3 p. m. Thursday on the bill to reapportion the House of Representatives. This insures a final vote shortly afterward.

Now Are the Salad Days

To take liberties with a line of poetry—"now, if ever, come salad days." The heavy, solid foods of winter and early spring have lost their appeal. Nature wisely demands a change of diet. Crisp, fresh green things, vegetables and salads, are what the body craves at this time of year.

A good salad is one that is tempting to the eye and well iced. American Ice, clear as crystal, will keep your refrigerator perfectly chilled and will protect perishable, expensive food.

CHILD LABOR RAPPED BY GREEN AT PARLEY

Maryland and District Bodies Affiliated With Federation Hear Chief's Speech.

TELLS RITCHIE OPPOSITION

Special to The Washington Post.

Frostburg, Md., May 20.—President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, in an address here today at the opening of the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federations of Labor discussed child labor legislation in Maryland.

He appealed for the enactment of a law to prevent children of tender age from starting to work. He called attention to the alleged refusal of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to countenance legislation along this line, referring to a bill introduced by a Baltimore delegate in the General Assembly two years ago and reintroduced at the late session by Delegate Irvin C. Hamilton, of Cumberland.

He said he had written Gov. Ritchie several letters in support of this bill, but was refused any assistance. The bill was to "prevent or suffer to work for hire any child under 14 years of age in any business or office whatever," and Mr. Hamilton was "almost thrown off the floor" for presenting it. He declared that Ritchie was one of the strongest opponents of child labor legislation in the United States.

Mr. Green denounced the action of some employers in refusing to consider men past 45 years of age as competent. Mr. Green referred briefly to retirement legislation to increase pay bill and half-holiday bill for all Federal employes at Washington, D. C., all of which the American Federation of Labor heartily indorses.

More than 100 delegates answered the roll call. Mayor Frederick Crowe gave the address of welcome. After standing committees were named, President Irvin C. Hamilton, of Cumberland, who was a member of the last House of Delegates, made his report. He said:

Enumerates Various Bills.

"There has been much unemployment during the last year in Maryland and the District of Columbia. This question is one that we should devote an entire session of this convention to discuss. Some means must be found to solve this great economic problem. Some plans must be devised to meet this situation and we can well afford to devote our thoughts and our time to a thorough discussion of this question."

He enumerated the bills introduced at the Maryland Assembly, thanked the members of the federation for their splendid support and stated that it was no fault of his that the legislative program of the organization was not passed in its entirety, as he as a delegate to that body of legislators had worked day and night trying to have members of the House and Senate agree on the passage of the bills he introduced. "Until organized labor takes a part," said Mr. Hamilton "in the selection of the members of the Maryland legislature we will not receive consideration for our legislative program when it is presented to them at Annapolis."

Bills to increase the compensation of the members of the General Assembly to $10 per day, instead of $5, and to provide for the vocational rehabilitation and placement of physically disabled persons were passed. Nine other bills were introduced, but were killed.

Bus Drivers Organied.

It was pointed out that the bus drivers employed by the Potomac Edison Co. had been organized during the last year and that the Cumberland and Allegany Trades Council had been instrumental in affiliating five crafts employed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer, Frank J. Coleman, Washington, D. C., and J. E. Toone, Mount Vernon, respectively, followed.

Tonight in Cumberland there was a public mass meeting at the State Armory, preceded by a parade with three bands escorting President Green, the mayor, members of the council, and other city officials. President Hamilton presided.

Maryland Woman Hurt In Car Crash With Truck

Mrs. Mary A. Towner, 67 years old, of Silver Spring, Md., suffered lacerations on the left side of her face and nose, together with several broken ribs, when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband collided with a truck yesterday morning at Nineteenth and N street northwest.

The truck, which overturned, was said by police to have been driven by Henry Carson, colored, of 625 Second street northwest.

LORD ROSEBERY DIES AT HOME IN ENGLAND

Former Premier and Sportsman Expires at Age of 82; Had Great Wealth.

CAREER VARIED, METEORIC

Epsom, England, May 21 (Tuesday) (U.P.).—Lord Rosebery, 82 years old, one of the most distinguished elder statesmen of England and one of its greatest sportsmen, died at his home, the Durdans, at 2:45 a. m. today.

Lord Rosebery was Liberal Prime Minister of Great Britain from 1894 to 1895.

The fifth Earl of Rosebery was Archibald Philip Primrose, born May 7, 1847. His father was Lord Archibald Dalmeny. He married the daughter of Baron Meyer de Rothschild in 1878.

He was one of the great sportsmen of the country and had two horses entered in this year's derby—Midlothian and The Bastard. Both horses will be scratched and all bets canceled because of the owner's death.

Always prominent in British political life, it was his career as a sportsman which was most colorful. There was a story told of Lord Rosebery which reflected his determination and ambition, whether precisely true or not.

It was said that early in life he was asked what his ambitions were and replied that he wanted to be premier, to marry the richest heiress and to win the Derby.

Lord Rosebery did all three of those things. He married Hannah, eldest daughter and heiress of the wealthy Baron Rothschild. He became premier sixteen years later, in 1894; and he won the great Derby three times, 1894, 1895 and 1905.

When Gladstone was premier, Lord Rosebery was just starting on what was destined to be a long political career. He came to the attention of the premier, who introduced him to political life. Gladstone gave him his first appointment as undersecretary of the home office in 1881.

Lord Rosebery's personal popularity was high when Gladstone resigned the premiership, and he was selected by Queen Victoria to head the government. The Liberal party, however, was in a weak condition and its majority in the House of Commons dwindled away. His accomplishments as prime minister, therefore, were not great and his government was defeated in June, 1895.

Until 1910 he played a less prominent but forceful part in British politics and appeared in a prominent role in the east European crisis of 1909.

He took an active part in the constitutional crisis of the next two years, especially with his efforts to arouse national sentiment against the Parliament bill.

His younger son, Right Hon. Neil Primrose, was killed in the war in 1917. His other son, Lord Dalmeny, succeeds to the title. He married a daughter of Lord Henry Grosvenor in 1909, but retired from Parliament in 1910.

Miller's Funeral Set for Tomorrow

Central High School Wil Be Closed During Last Rites for Principal.

Funeral services for Alvin W. Miller, principal of Central High School, who succumbed from the bite of a pet cat Sunday morning at Garfield Hospital, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Dumbarton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemtery.

Pallbearers will be Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of public schools; Dr. E. S. Newton, principal of Western High School; Allan Davis, principal of Business High School; Frank C. Daniel, principal of McKinley High School, Charles Hart, principal of Eastern High School, and L. G. Hoover, assistant principal of Central High School.

Central High School will be closed during the hours of the funeral. The school was closed yesterday in respect for Mr. Miller and today will be closed in the afternoon. Mr. Miller, whose home is at 1323 Randolph street northwest, is survived by the widow and two daughters, Marjorie and Helen.

President's Friend To Be Buried Today

W. M. Fitzhugh, Wealthy Geologist, Often Fished With Hoover.

San Francisco, May 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—One of Herbert Hoover's fishing pals, and one of San Francisco's most illustrious citizens, will be laid to rest here tomorrow, when funeral services are held for William M. Fitzhugh, multimillionaire geologist, who died Sunday.

Victim of heart trouble, Fitzhugh was 75 years of age. His life story was a romance of rare and varying fortunes. He was widely known as an engineer, sportsman and connoisseur of art.

Fitzhugh and President Hoover often fished together at the former's home, on the McCloud River. In his early days as an engineer at Stanford, Hoover often conferred with the geologist.

Born of an old Southern family, Fitzhugh spent his youth in Maryland, then came West. The famous Catoctin estate in Maryland, recently bought by President Hoover, was the old Fitzhugh home and his birthplace.

RITES FOR REAR ADM. BERRY.

Retired Naval Officer Will Be Buried Tomorrow at Arlington.

Rear Admiral Robert M. Berry, of the United States Navy, retired, who died Sunday morning at Tryon, N. C., will be buried tomorrow afternoon at Arlington National Cemetery with military honors.

Rear Admiral Berry served on board the Macedonian during the last summer of the Civil War and engaged in the pursuit of the Confederate steamers Florida and Tallahassee. Two years after the close of the Civil War he completed his course at the Naval Academy. He retired in 1908, but served during the World War as commander of the United States Naval unit, University of Michigan.

"Marse Henry's" Widow Succumbs

Pneumonia Proves Fatal to Mrs. Rebecca Ewing Watterson.

Louisville, Ky., May 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Rebecca Ewing Watterson, 86, widow of Henry Watterson, one of the two founders of the Courier-Journal, died here last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Bainbridge Richardson, after a three-month illness from pneumonia.

Mrs. Watterson was the daughter of the late Andrew Ewing, a prominent Nashville, Tenn., attorney. She is survived by a brother, Judge Robert Ewing, of Nashville; a son, Henry Watterson, jr., Washington, D. C.; a sister, Mrs. Spencer Eakin, New Orleans, La., and Mrs. Richardson.

Mrs. Watterson spent most of her girlhood at Mansfield, Tenn. It was from this home that Mrs. Watterson, after she moved to Kentucky, secured the name for the estate at which she and her husband, "Marse Henry," established their residence after he became editor of the Louisville Journal after the Civil War.

In 1866, while Col. Watterson was editing the old Republican Banner, in Nashville, they were married.

Canneries Are Removed From Meat Packing Suit

(Associated Press.)

The Government finally succeeded in the Supreme Court yesterday in its efforts to give effect to the consent decree, entered in 1920 aimed to confine the packers exclusively to the meat-packing industry.

The court ordered the California cooperative canneries removed from the controversy. When the canneries were permitted to intervene in 1924 the decree was suspended, and has not since been in effect. By removing the canneries from the case the Government will be enabled to have the decree made effective.

PRESENT COST RULE APPLIED IN CAPITAL

District Utilities Costs Have Been Based on Factor Stressed in O'Fallon Case.

GO BEYOND NEW DECISION

The United States Supreme Court decision in the O'Fallon case is not tantamount to an order increasing the valuations of District utilities corporations, but, on the contrary, will be used as ammunition by opponents of the high valuations claimed by the local corporations.

The reproduction value theory has been put into effect by the District courts in every case which the utilities have taken before them in a dispute over the valuations made by the District Public Utilities Commission.

But the District courts have gone considerably farther than did the United States Supreme Court in applying the reproduction value theory to the valuation of public utilities, having applied "spot" prices all along the line and given the corporation the full benefit of these prices.

But the United States Supreme Court decision declared that the reproduction new, or replacement value of properties, was only "an element" to be taken into consideration in fixing a valuation for rate making purposes.

Does Not Affect Blaine Plan.

Neither does the O'Fallon decision, it was said by experts in utilities law, eliminate the Blaine amendment from consideration in the street car merger fight. The Blaine plan is based on the prudent investment theory, that is, that the proper valuation of a utility for rate making purposes is that value represented by actual money prudently and wisely invested. Under this plan, for example, watered stock would be squeezed properly dry before the public would be called on to pay interest on it through rates fixed by the Utilities Commission.

Blaine's proposal, if adopted, would be a part of the street car merger agreement, or contract, and, as such, would be safe from adverse court rulings such as was made in the O'Fallon case by the United States Supreme Court.

It was, it is said, for that reason, anticipating a possible adverse ruling in the O'Fallon case, that Blaine refused to be lured from his plan by representatives of the street car companies, who sought to induce him to give his approval to the merger plan without his amendment incorporated in it.

Rests With New Commission.

His amendment, they urged, could be enacted as a general law affecting the District utilities. On this basis, however, it is doubtful, in view of the O'Fallon decision, if the Blaine proposal would be permitted to stand.

What will be the effect of the O'Fallon decision on District utilities affairs will remain a matter for the decision of the newly appointed Public Utilities Commission.

The commission is not under obligation to do more than consider reproduction values as "an element" in making its valuations, and, in the light of other court decisions in the past, must give consideration also to actual money invested, and property actually used and useful. In other words, the danger from the O'Fallon decision lies principally in the manner in which the District Utilities Commission will interpret and apply it.

Rate of Return Not Affected.

No ruling as to the proper or "just" rate of return was made by the Supreme Court in the O'Fallon case and there is no rule binding the utilities commission to a high rate of return, although a 7 per cent return has been declared not to be excessive. But with the steady inflation of securities values the rate of return has been decreasing in securities. For instance a stock with a par value of $100 pays 6 per cent interest. The market value of the stock reaches $200 and the rate of return automatically becomes 3 per cent instead of 6 per cent.

Another factor which is becoming more and more important especially insofar as the Potomac Electric Power and other utilities which have widely developed in recent years, is the steady decline in prices. Study shows that general commodity prices throughout the country have dropped 7 per cent since January 1.

I. C. C. RATE VALUATION SCHEME OVERTURNED BY SUPREME COURT

the present cost of construction or reproduction."

The commission had carefully refrained, the decision said, "from stating that any consideration whatever was given to present or reproduction cost in estimating the value of the carrier's property."

The court, however, reached the conclusion that substantially no consideration had been given.

"In the exercise of its proper function this court has declared the law of the land concerning valuations for rate-making purposes," the opinion stated. "The commission disregarded the approved rule and has already failed to discharge the definite duty imposed by Congress.

Minority Stand Is Approved.

"Unfortunately, proper heed was denied the timely admonition of the minority (of the commission) that 'the function of this commission is not to act as an arbiter in economics, but as an agency of Congress, to apply the law of the land to facts developed of record in matters committed by Congress to our (the commission's) jurisdiction.' "

The question on which the commission divided, as stated by the court was "when seeking to ascertain the value of railroad property for recapture purposes, must it give consideration to current, or reproduction costs?"

"The weight to be accorded thereto is not the matter before us," it added "No doubt there are some, perhaps many, railroads the ultimate value of which should be placed far below the sum necessary for reproduction. But Congress has directed that values shall be fixed upon a consideration of present costs along with all other pertinent facts, and this mandate must be obeyed."

Dissenting Views Presented.

The court did not indicate the weight to be given reproduction value, but it was the opinion of some of those familiar with the commission's valuation work that much of it must be revised, and that while the decision was in a recapture case it would affect all valuations of railroad property by the commission, including those for rate-making purposes.

Justice Holmes, Brandies and Stone dissented. The latter two justices read statements explaining their contrary views, but Justice Holmes merely assented to Brandies' opinion.

"As was pointed out in the case of Smyth vs. Ames," Justice Brandies said: "We are dealing with a legislation question which can be 'more easily determined by a commission composed of persons whose special skill, observation and experience qualifies them to so handle great problems of transportation as to do justice both to the public and to those whose money has been used to construct and maintain highways for the benefit of the people.'

Brandies Points to Difficulties.

"The difficulties by which the commission was confronted when requested to apply the evidence of reproduction cost can hardly be imagined," he said, explaining "the evidence was of such a character that it did not satisfactorily establish what would have been the current cost of reproduction during the recapture periods."

Another obstacle to applying the evidence, he declared, was a lack of evidence to show to what extent, if any, higher reproduction cost in the recapture period "implied a value higher than that theretofore prevailing.

"The commission believed it could act only on proof * * * and that to assign, under the circumstances, any weight to the evidence of reconstruction cost would be mere conjecture."

Stone Joins in Dissent.

Justice Stone approved Brandeis' judgment and added that evidence that the commission gave consideration to present reproduction costs "appears not only from its own statement but from the fact that it gave full effect to increased current market values in determining the value of land and to additions and betterments.

"Had the commission not turned aside to point out in its report the economic fallacies of the use of reproduction cost as a standard of value for rate making purposes, which is nevertheless considered and to some extent applied, I suppose it would not have occurred to any one to question the validity of its order.

"In any case, in view of the statement of the commission that it considered all the elements of value brought to its attention by the carrier, I should not have supposed that we could rightly set aside the present order without some consideration of the probative value of the evidence of present reproduction costs which the commission discussed at length in its report."

New Test Case Probable.

Members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, after studying the St. Louis and O'Fallon decision, were inclined to believe that the next step would be the presentation of another test case to the courts for the purpose of clearing up the railroad valuation issues. It was pointed out that the court had indicated that the finding of the commission as to the O'Fallon valuation was improper under the law because of insufficient allowance for the cost of reproduction. It is not the opinion of commissioners that the O'Fallon decision of the court yesterday sustained the entire railroad position in attacking the principles of valuation which the Government has so far followed.

Intimations that any serious disturbance to railroad rate levels were in prospect as a result of the decision were not regarded seriously at the commission. It was said that the O'Fallon case very largely dealt with the resistance which railroads are making to the commission's attempt to capture excess earnings. While the valuations placed upon railroad property to a degree determine rail rates, it was said that their effect on the railroad rate structure under the decision would be less than has been estimated in some quarters.

As an administrative matter, it was stated that the commission's clerical and engineering work will not be materially disturbed. The data gathered is not in question, and the problem for the commission will be to develop new principles of valuation to guide the use of its figures. In view of the submission of the O'Fallon case to the court as a test, the commission has withheld work on valuation and has not brought calculations down to date. This will be attempted now in the light of today's decision, and further litigation might ensue.

Mexican General, Six Others Killed in Fight

Mexico City, May 20 (A.P.).—Dispatches to El Universal today from Acatlan, Puebla, said Gen. Ricardo Reyes Marques, a congressman, one companion and four other men were killed in a fight there today, when the congressman and his companion attempted to arrest the four, who were holding an allegedly seditious meeting.

Marques and his companion attempted to force their way into a house where ten or twelve men were conferring. A fight ensued, both being killed, but not until after they themselves had killed four men. Police made a number of arrests.

SUGAR RATE POLICY OF COOLIDGE BARED

Report to Senate Reveals He Failed to Act Because of Committee Division.

SOUGHT COMPLETE DATA

(Associated Press.)

Failure of a divided Federal tariff commission to agree on figures to support its recommendation for a reduction of the tariff on sugar was disclosed yesterday in a report sent to the Senate as the reason why Calvin Coolidge declined to act on the matter in the middle of his presidential campaign of 1924.

In a letter sent to the three commissioners, who filed a report with him suggesting a reduction from 2.202 cents a pound to 1.54, Coolidge declared "there was a wide conflict of opinion within the commission over the questions at issue."

Two of the six members of the commission had submitted a minority report, and one member took no part in the inquiry.

"These differences," Coolidge wrote, "appear to be based on different methods of use and different interpretations of the cost and other data collected by the commission."

Held Reconsideration Possible.

In another statement, which was made a part of the report, Coolidge promised, however, that "a change in conditions might warrant a reconsideration" of his decision to postpone action indefinitely, "if through decreased production, or other conditions, the world market should be relieved of the weight of sugar now pressing upon it."

The question was at issue all through Coolidge's campaign and the report rested on his desk almost all of that time, a constant reminder to newspaper men to propound questions. His final decision was not announced until it was made public in the report yesterday.

The name of C. Bascom Slemp, the former President's secretary for a time, was mentioned in the report in a memorandum initialed by "W B" and "W S C." William S. Culberton was then chairman of the commission and William Burgess was one of its members.

More Information Obtained.

Dated October 25, the memorandum said: "In conference today with Mr. Slemp, he stated that data now available need not be sent to the President at once and that if it were sent he (Slemp) would probably hold it until other data arrived before submitting it to the President."

After the recommendations were submitted on July 26, 1924, Coolidge asked for more figures and information and there followed an exchange of letters with the commission members until a short time after November 14, when his final decision was made.

"After full consideration of all the facts shown in the reports of the members of the Tariff Commission," Coolidge said, in the final statement, "I do not find the differences in cost of production are sufficiently established under present conditions to warrant any change from the present policy."

Claudel to Take Part In Event at Baltimore

(Associated Press.)

Ambassador Claudel of France has accepted the invitation of the Rainbow Division Veterans to take part July 15, in their celebration at Baltimore of the Champagne battle of 1918. Gen. H. E. J. Gouraud, military governor of Paris, who commanded the troops in that engagement, which marked the turn of the tide against Germany, also has announced his intention to participate with many other notables.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5 o'clock to noon today.

Received from the President the nomination of Dwight F. Davis to be Governor General of the Philippines.

Agreed to limit debate on the bill to reapportion the House of Representatives at 3 o'clock Thursday, thus insuring an early vote on the measure.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, declared that the power trust is attempting to gain Nationwide control of public opinion through ownership of newspapers.

Norris said that Irvine L. Lenroot was made a judge "after working down South to get a few colored delegations for Hoover."

Vice President Curtis made public a report from the Tariff Commission showing that in 1924 a majority of the commission had recommended a reduction in the sugar duty from $1.76 a barrel (the present rate) to $1.23 a barrel.

Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, introduced a bill authorizing $50,000 for a replica of the home in which George Washington was born at Wakefield, Va.

Senate and House conferees began consideration of the farm relief bill.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 5 o'clock to noon today.

HOOVER DEBT OFFER CALLED HELPFUL ACT

Reparations Cut is Friendly but Unimportant Gesture, Paris Opinion.

DIFFERENCE OF $1,191,000

Paris, May 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—President Hoover's offer to reduce German payments for the American Army of Occupation of the Rhineland by 10 per cent has been received here as a friendly and helpful gesture, although it will only make a difference of about $1,191,000 yearly.

It will reduce German annuities by about one-quarter of 1 per cent. It is also less than 1 per cent of the gap of $142,920,000 which originally existed between the allied demand and the German offer which has been reduced by weeks of hard negotiations until it has been almost closed. Germany increased her offer by $95,280,000 and the allies cut theirs by $47,640,000, so that the profered American reduction of $1,191,000 does not seem highly important.

However, Germany's chief creditors have had great difficulty in deciding which of them would take a loss of about $3,573,000, or three-quarters of 1 per cent. The United States, by taking $1,191,000, or one-third of this difficult residue, would leave only $2,382,000, or half of 1 per cent to be disposed of. The value, however, is regarded as largely symbolic.

Wilson Presents Hoover Note.

Secretary of the American Embassy here, Edwin C. Wilson, an unofficial observer on the reparations commission, delivered President Hoover's note to a committee of the reparations experts headed by Dr. Alberto Perelli, of Italy, which has been receiving the demands and observations of Germany's smaller reparations creditors who are not represented at the Paris parleys.

While no comment has been made by the American delegation, it is believed that President Hoover offered a 10 per cent cut only on the Army occupation costs, which are $13,101,000 annually, and did not offer to make a similar cut in the payments for mixed claims, which are about $11,910,000 more.

On the total American claims, therefore, the proferred American cut represents only a little more than 8 per cent, but the difficulties of getting reduction of any kind without favorable action first being taken by Congress is understood.

All Nations to See Report.

That the experts' final report will, however, have to pass under the scrutiny of the various governments has just been made clear by Premier Raymond Poincare in an address at the inauguration of the Douaumont Monument on the Battlefield of Verdun.

Equitable settlement, the French premier said, should leave on France's shoulders none of the expenses necessitated by the war. France is, nevertheless ready to make concessions, he said, and is waiting for the experts to finish their report to see if its conclusions are clear and definite.

Premier Poincare declared "the government can only have an opinion after it has examined the report and has consulted with parliament. We hope for a definite settlement, but it would be unjust and inadmissable to have France pay for the healing of wounds."

HOOVER CONFERENCES MAP WAY TO AGREEMENT ON REPARATIONS

of German annual reparation payments, provided the other interested powers agree to maintain their percentages under the Dawes plan and thus receive their proportion of "a smaller pot."

Third—America's Army costs may be reduced, but this all-important feature of the new program is not explained with the same clarity as the feature covering the 2¼ per cent of reparations.

Mr. Stimson left the impression on members of the press that America's reduction in the matter of Army costs would be no greater than the reductions agreed to by the other powers. Until it is clear just what these reductions are, it will not be possible to ascertain whether or not America has been discriminated against in this feature of the experts' plan. If there has been such discrimination, there undoubtedly will be much American opposition, and it is not unlikely that the United States Government will insist upon a fair adjustment when the time comes for governments to formally accept the recommendations of the committee of experts.

Army Cost Payments Factor.

It would be unfair to America, for example, if the experts agree for all of the interested powers to now accept postponements in payment of army costs. This is because Great Britain and France have already had their army costs practically paid, while American Army costs have not been paid in like proportion.

On August 31, 1925, all but 120,000,000 gold marks of the British army costs had been paid and all but 140,000,000 gold marks of the French army costs ha been paid. America on the same date had 868,000,000 gold marks unpaid for her Army costs.

Thus America obviously would be placed in an absurb position if the experts decided to postpone army cost payments after the French and British have been practically paid in full and American payments are still due to the tune of $217,000,000.

It is assumed that the United States Government is insisting upon a more equitable distribution in this matter, but details are not disclosed here.

Secretary Stimson prefaced his explanation yesterday by stating that the two big features of the work being done by the experts covered the total amount Germany is to pay and the actual payments to be made in conformity, with the recognized and admitted power of Germany to pay.

Ratio of Payments to be Kept.

Manifestly there will be a reduction in German payments, it was explained, and Mr. Young has been working to get the countries to consent to a division of this smaller amount upon the same percentages which the powers have been receiving of the larger amounts, representing the Dawes plan payments. The pot is going to be smaller, but the percentages in the pot will remain the same, Mr. Stimson added. This was the question which was discussed at the White House conference on Sunday and it was the general feeling that if the other countries consented to the necessary reductions of the pot, with the percentages remaining the same, the United States could not do less than the other countries. That was the substance of the discussion at the White House conference, it was pointed out.

There would be a smaller amount received by America annually under the 2¼ per cent due the United States under the Dawes plan. At present this 2¼ per cent is limited by a maximum of 45,000,000 gold marks a year.

These payments go to satisfy American payments under the mixed claims commission and there would be a lengthening of time with respect to reparations payments, which perhaps would cause delay in payment of some of the larger American claims. All American claims up to $100,000 already have been paid. There, however, would be no actual loss in payments to America, excepting such slight loss as would result from interest on slow payments as compared to payments made more rapidly.

Cooperatoin of Congress Asked.

This aspect of the situation is not causing much concern in congressional circles and leaders of both the Senate and the House were given an opportunity Sunday of seeing the report available as an index of what the committee of experts will recommend. The purpose of submitting the matter to members of the Senate and House, it was explained, was to obtain their views, in order that President Hoover might act with knowledge of the views of members of Congress.

The cards were laid on the table yesterday by Secretary Stimson in so far as the 2¼ per cent of reparations is concerned, but it was not expedient for him to be so explicit in the matter of Army costs. It was stated, however, that no suggestion has been made that America receive a less percentage of our Army costs than other countries do of theirs. If America, therefore gets 90 per cent of her Army costs, paid without postponement, and is thereby placed on an equitable basis with Great Britain and France, which have had their army costs 90 per cent paid, there will be no discrimination.

Secretary Stimson made it clear that the action of the experts is not binding on the governments, but that all of the interested governments are keeping in close touch with the work of the committee of experts.

COL. W. RICHARDSON IS DEAD AT HOSPITAL

Officer Who Served in World Was as Brigadier General III Two Months.

ROAD BUILDER IN ALASKA

Col. Wilds P. Richardson, United States Army, retired, a brigadier general in the National Army during the World War, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital, where he had been a patient for two months.

Col. Richardson was born in Texas and was appointed from that State to the United States Military Academy, from which he graduated in 1884. During his entire service in the Army he was attached to the infantry branch. When he was a first lieutenant he was assigned to duty at West Point as an instructor in military tactics and was in command of one of the cadet companies.

He later was ordered to Alaska, where he selected sites for military posts and supervised their construction, also becoming a road and trail builder of the Territory. His service in Alaska lasted for twenty years and his work was commended by a succession of Secretaries of War. The longest highway of Alaska, constructed by Col. Richardson, was named in his honor by executive order the Richardson Trail.

Although he had not seen service with troops for many years, the road builder, who then had reached the rank of colonel of infantry, was promoted to the rank of brigadier general in the National Army and assigned to the command of a brigade which went overseas.

Serving in France until after the armistice, he was sent for by Gen. Pershing and, because of his experience in Alaska and of his general record as a soldier, was ordered to Archangel in north Russia to take command of American troops there. He succeeded in removing the misunderstandings which had arisen with the allied commands in that country, and so conducted the campaign that he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his work.

After his retirement from active duty, Col. Richardson lived at the Army and Navy Club in this city. In addition to membership in the Army and Navy Club, he was a member of the Military Order of the Carabao and the Alfalfa Club of this city, and the Lambs and the University Clubs of New York City.

Col. Richardson is survived by two sisters, Mrs. M. H. Turner and Mrs. O. P. Oglivie, of Ottawa, Canada, and a cousin, Capt. J. O. Richardson, U. S. N., now stationed in this city. Interment will be in the cadet cemetery at West Point this afternoon.

53 Persons Killed In Turkish Quake

Many Are Hurt as Tremor Rocks Asia Minor and Terrorizes Citizens.

Constantinople, May 20 (A.P.).—At least 53 persons were killed and 39 injured in northern Anatolia last night by a disastrous earthquake.

The latest report stated that 39 persons were killed and 33 injured at Soucherni, near Sivas, Asia Minor, while 14 were killed and 6 injured in the region of Chabin-Karahissar.

The government rushed aid to the disaster zone, where the population is camping out in fear of more quakes.

The earthquake cut short the sacred Moslem sheep festival, during which Anatolians annually commemorate an ancient sacrifice, feasting on rams slaughtered with solemn ritual.

Bucharest, Roumania, May 20 (A.P.). A slight earthquake shock was felt in Bucharest at 2 o'clock this afternoon. No casualties or damage was reported.

An Open Letter

To you, old patrons and friends who have made our

"Onward March of Progress"

here in Washington a gratifying reality, we extend to you and your friends a hearty welcome to our new home, Kimball Hall, where "open house" prevails day and evening throughout this entire week.

OF ESPECIAL INTEREST is the First Sensational Showing of New Kimball Piano 1930 Models, embodying a long-heralded and improved tone invention which has revolutionized the industry. A great achievement by the technicians and acoustical engineers of the House of Kimball, who have made possible a long desired "Low Even Tension Scale", requiring many years of effort, patient research and unlimited financing to develop and perfect. A marvelous outstanding and exclusive improvement, considered the foremost step in the art of piano craftsmanship since eighty-eight notes became standardized. This new scale adds tonal color and new life to the pianoforte, bringing to the Kimball great distinction in the home, school, church and theatre. Once heard, this wonderful tone is never forgotten.

AS AN ADDED APPEAL, a number of styles in each of the Kimball upright, player and grand pianos, omitted from the new catalog and selling right up to January first, this year, at their well known and nationally established retail prices, carry both wholesale and retail discounts during the coming week's festival. The true savings on these particular pianos range from $120 up to $315 and represent a notable collection of very rare and unusual values.

IN OUR NEW RADIO DIVISION, the most modern and well-known equipments for your entertainment and inspection are presented. Here you will find a few minutes' spare time particularly interesting and profitable where refined tonal receptions are featured thru improved radio devices and when sold become subject to the incomparable Kimball Guarantee and Service Bond, backed by the strongest financial institution of the kind in America.

WE ARE LOOKING FORWARD to a reunion with those who have patronized our distributors during an uninterrupted Kimball representation here in Washington for more than fifty years, as well as those whom it has been our privilege to meet personally since the establishment of our own Local Factory Branch.

YOUR PRESENCE WILL HELP US CELEBRATE OUR INAUGURAL MOST APPROPRIATELY.

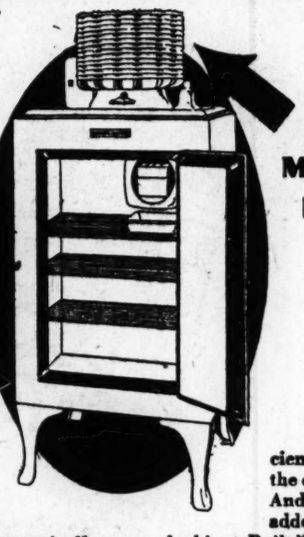
2 OUTSTANDING ADVANTAGES



ALL THE MECHANISM IS ON TOP

THE CABINET IS ALL-STEEL

OF the many advantages of General Electric Refrigerators, two are especially vital—the hermetically sealed, on-top mechanism and the all-steel warp-proof cabinet.

The mechanism in any electric refrigerator has but one purpose—to absorb heat from the food. It must be permitted to radiate that heat rapidly just as heat is conducted away from the engine of your car. As heat naturally rises, it can be radiated from the top of the refrigerator. To place the radiating coils anywhere else cuts down their efficiency and increases the cost of operation. And now has been added the new all-steel cabinet. Built like a safe, it can't warp—it operates on the least amount of current—its doors always retain their perfect fit which shuts out heat. Available in six sizes at prices surprisingly low. The small family size is but $215, at the factory. Sold on convenient time payments.

Listen in on the General Electric Hour, broadcast every Saturday evening, 8 to 9, Eastern Standard Time, over the N. B. C. network of 42 stations.

BOMBER PREPARED FOR COAST ATTACK

Radio to Carry Story Tonight of "War" on New York and Atlantic City.

GROUND BATTLE IN OHIO

Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, May 20 (A.P.).—New York, Atlantic City and other Eastern points will get a glimpse of Ohio's war of the air tomorrow night, and the rest of the country will hear about it first hand when a giant bomber accompanied by a plane equipped for radio broadcasting will set out from here to "bomb" the two coast cities.

The plane is scheduled to make a nonstop refueling flight, speeding to New York to drop imaginary bombs on the metropolis, taking a side trip to Atlantic City, then returning to Wright Field. The radio broadcast plane, an Army transport, will fly with the bomber and broadcast its activity on two wave lengths, 750 meters and 80 meters.

A refueling plane will also accompany the bomber. At Bolling Field, Washington, the bomber will be refueled from the accompanying plane, and it will receive another stock of fuel while aloft at Bolling Field on the return trip.

Infantry to Cooperate.

Uncle Sam's war game came down to earth tonight as 800,000 imaginary soldiers "dug in" along the shores of Darby Creek, near Columbus, in preparation for the joint air-ground maneuvers which start tomorrow.

The maneuvers thus far have consisted solely of air tactical exercises, but at midnight tomorrow hostilities will be resumed in which both air and ground forces will coordinate. They will be preceded tomorrow by observation flights through which the attacking Blue army, with headquarters here, and the defending Red army, with headquarters at Columbus, will attempt to locate each other's division headquarters and other stations of ground troops.

While most of the ground troops are imaginary, there are enough actual flesh and blood soldiers engaged to give the countryside near Columbus a military aspect. These troops will manipulate the "panels" that indicate the vast armies in the battle. Detachments of the Tenth Infantry from Fort Thomas, Ky., and Fort Hayes, Columbus, and of the Eleventh Infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., are on the front.

Radio to Play Big Role.

Maj. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan is in command of the Blue Army, seeking to capture Columbus, with Brig. Gen. George H. Jamerson, Fort Benjamin Harrison, commanding the First Corps and Maj. Gen. Benson W. Hough, Ohio National Guard, the Second. Col. W. H. Waldron, Fort Thomas, is in command of the Red First Army.

The radio will play a prominent part in the second phase of the war game that starts tomorrow. Communication betw n ground and air forces will be maintained through its use.

As the imaginary soldiers took up their positions the staff officers were busy tonight figuring out moves their forces will make during the next several days of fighting.

Kansas Killed in Ball Game.

Emporia, Kans., May 20 (U.P.).—Hit in the head by a pitched ball during a baseball game between nines of Olivet and Reading, Kans., Glenn Schraeder, 31 years old, died in a hospital today.

Read The Washington Post classified section daily for information. Use it for a satisfactory announcement of your wants.

Royce decided to pay the enemy a friendly call and the other fliers went along for the ride.

All got away to a good start except Lieut. Shade. Something went wrong with his engine, he climbed out of the cockpit, made a few adjustments and went on, well behind his fellow airmen. The same thing happened at Wright Field when he tried to get away on the return trip. He was forced to make further adjustments to the engine there. It was hardly more than a few minutes after he hopped off from Wright Field that the motor died completely.

The victim received his training at Kelley Field, Texas. He was graduated from the advanced class there last March and was assigned to Selfridge Field.

Refueling of Plane In Air Is Scheduled

Bombing Craft to Get Gas at Bolling Today; Radio to Describe Event.

Refueling of the bombing plane that is to drop flares over New York City tonight will take place shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon in midair over Bolling Field.

A description of the refueling is to be broadcast over station WRC via the flying radio laboratory which will accompany the bomber to Washington and New York. The refueling plane will arrive at Bolling Field shortly before the bomber in order to take on a load of gasoline for the refueling.

Lieut. Odas Moon, who will pilot the bomber, is expected to converse with O. B. Hanson, of the National Broadcasting Co., who will be in the radio plane during the refueling. This conversation also will be carried over WRC.

Instruction in Tailspin Costs Life of Teacher

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., May 20 (A.P.). Arthur Argles, of the Canadian Air Corps reserve, a commercial aviation instructor, was fatally injured today when the plane in which he was training Albert H. Harris, of New York City, fell 2,000 feet near Roosevelt Field. Harris, who has only a slight chance for recovery, had sent the plane into a tailspin as part of his training. The craft was wrecked.

Argles died at the Mineola Hospital about an hour after the crash. He was a captain in the Royal Flying Corps during the World War and last June was designated as copilot with Oliver Le Boutillier for a transatlantic flight projected by Mabel Boll. The flight was never made. Argles was born in Omaha.

Canton Reported In Kwangsi Hands

Kwantung's Capital Believed to Have Fallen Before Provincial Invaders.

Shanghai, China, May 20 (A.P.).—Chinese and Japanese reports state that Kwangsi forces captured Canton at noon today. No confirmation was available here.

Factional warfare between the provinces of Kwangsi and Kwangtung was in full progress by May 8 when the Kwangsi forces were threatening the capture of Canton, capital of Kwangtung.

Behind the warfare lay the struggle between the Nanking or nationalist central government and the Kwangsi military clique, as well as a more localized rivalry between the two provinces. Kwangtung had always been more or less under the domination of Kwangsi, but during the recent fighting in the region of Hankow between the central government at Nanking and the Kwangsi leaders, the Kwangtung leaders announced neutrality, an action regarded as tatamount to a declaration in favor of Nanking.

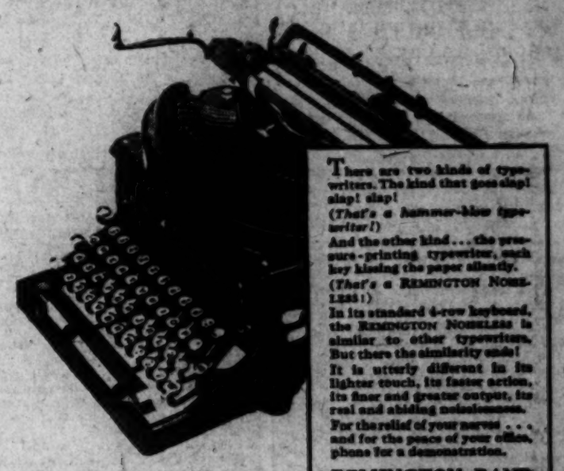
Peace parleys between the two provinces went on for some time, but eventually these broke down and open warfare broke out. The Kwangsi troops made a steady drive on Canton and have been threatening it ever since.

Laundering of Stamps Charged to Merchant

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 21 (U.P.).—Charges that he laundered canceled postage stamps and used them over again, were contained in a Federal indictment returned today against Charles William Gramm, vice president of a firm of Brooklyn ship chandlers.

Gramm pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Federal Judge Robert A. Inch and was held in $1,000 bail. His residence is in Cranford, N. J.

the ONLY NOISELESS*



There are two kinds of typewriters. The kind that goes slap! slap! slap!
(That's a hammer-blow typewriter!)
And the other kind . . . the pressure-printing typewriter, each key kissing the paper silently.
(That's a REMINGTON NOISELESS!)
In its standard 4-row keyboard, the REMINGTON NOISELESS is similar to other typewriters. But there the similarity ends!
It is utterly different in its lighter touch, its faster action, its finer and greater output, its real and abiding noiselessness.
For the relief of your nerves . . . and for the peace of your office, phone for a demonstration.

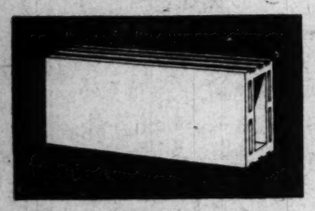
For Women of Middle Age

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up and for the Change of Life and I can't get along without it. I lost about twenty pounds and I felt weak and run-down. I find it gives me strength and quiets my nerves. I have two daughters and I gave it to them when they came into womanhood and was greatly pleased at the results. I will answer any letter asking for information."—Mrs. L. E. Hanson, Waterloo, Iowa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



When the wall is up—it is finished, and beautifully finished, if it's built of Natco Vitritile. Each unit laid forms a section of a load-bearing, vermin-proof, insulated, finished-face wall. The smooth glazed surface needs no paint, needs no plaster, needs no adornment of any kind. And it is permanently free from such maintenance, for the beautiful glass-like glaze will last as long as the building.

Furnished in pleasing blends of harmonious and subdued colors which range from a light to an orange buff, with rich brown contrasting trim, Natco Vitritile adds immensely to the attractiveness of any structure in which it is used. It is easily cleaned and kept clean, is permanently sanitary and pleasing.

An innovation only a little over a year ago, Natco Vitritile is an established favorite today. Its numerous outstanding advantages have led to its general adoption for walls in corridors, basements, hospitals, gymnasiums, auto show rooms and garages, laundries, laboratories, natatoriums, restaurants, dairies, and a wide variety of other applications. Units for forming corners, copings, wainscot, and so on are available, affording great latitude in use and treatment.

Natco Vitritile is a structural unit, suitable for either interior or exterior load-bearing walls and partitions, and is also furnished "kerfed" or split, for furring. It is shipped protected by corrugated wrappers; its arrival in first-class condition is thus assured.

If you are thinking of building, think of Natco Vitritile. Somewhere, in every structure, it has a place. It will bring new beauty, assure welcome and continuous economy, be a permanent mark of the taste and judgment of the owner.

Natco Vitritile is a member of the famous Natco family—the Complete Line of Structural Clay Tile that provides a unit for every building need. For information see your Natco dealer, or write the address below.

NOT one tire buyer in a thousand is capable of judging a tire from its appearance, or even from a cross-section.

—The only way to play safe is to buy a tire that for years has maintained its reputation as a quality product. And the most convenient and satisfactory way to buy such tires is to buy them here on your charge account, or on our convenient terms with only $3 down. And there's no charge for mounting.

—If you are looking for real tire values, look at these prices on Kelly-built Buckeyes. There's many a first-line tire that wouldn't give you the mileage you'll get from a Buckeye, yet Buckeyes sell for no more than you'd pay for the product of some unknown manufacturer. NITROGEN DIOXIDE BLAMED AT CLINIC

First Official Statement Is Made of Actual Cause of 124 Deaths.

DR. CRILE UNCERTAIN YET

Cleveland, May 20 (A.P.).—Nitrogen dioxide formed from the decomposition of the nitrocellulose X-ray films caused the deaths of the 124 men and women in the Cleveland clinic disaster last Wednesday, Dr. William E. Tower, co-founder of the clinic and one of its directors, declared late today.

This was the first official statement to come from a director of the clinic regarding the actual cause of the deaths.

This statement was given in the presence of Dr. George W. Crile, founder and director of the clinic.

"It was horrible. I still am dazed by the tragedy of it all," Dr. Crile said.

"I have not had time to determine just what the cause was or how the deadly gas was generated.

"There is no one quite so anxious to get every fact in connection with the explosion and fire, but we have not had time to investigate. That must come later.

"When I arrived in front of the building and saw the condition of the patients being carried out, it was evident that they were victims of gas. What it was I do not know and have not had time to find out."

Dr. Tower's statement follows:

"Our investigation so far indicates that many, perhaps all of the victims, died as a result of inhaling nitrogen dioxide fumes.

"Other persons may have contributed. That, we have not determined.

"Nitrogen dioxide causes death very quickly in most instances. In others the first effects are not noticeable and the victim may succumb from 1 to 24 hours later.

"Apparently the gas that caused the deaths was generated by the decomposition of the film covering the X-ray plates.

Texan Starts Up Pikes Peak Pushing Peanut With Nose

Squirrel Hazard Is Encountered First Day, But Bill Williams Covers One and Three-tenths Miles and Wears Out Six Goobers.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 20 (U.P.) (By Courier from Pike's Peak).—The big push started today when Bill Williams, of Rio Hondo, Tex., strapped on his knee pads, adjusted his new-fangled peanut pusher to his nose, and started up the side of Pike's Peak, pushing a peanut.

For gold and glory Bill got away by a nose at 10 a. m. He started glorifying the lowly peanut with a wire device hooked onto his nose. The device is widely heralded by peanut pushers as the very latest in propellors for peanuts.

Bill and his galloping goober covered 1 3-10 miles on the first day, although the going was rough. Much of the push was over a gravel trail and Bill wore out six of his little playmates. Bill, who is making the push on a bet with neighbors in his home town of Rio Hondo, estimated a first-class peanut ought to be good for 2 miles on a paved road, but he doesn't expect to get that mileage on the mountains.

The start was made from Rainbow Falls, in Ute Pass, 22 miles from the summit of the Peak.

Lowering clouds and a strong wind threatened for a time, but Bill and the goober advanced steadily. It was obvious that Bill was anxious to make hay while the sun shone, that is, put mileage on the peanut, but as the afternoon started to slip away, the squirrel hazard was encountered. This had been anticipated, but not even the rankest pessimist had expected it to develop on the initial day.

The hazard was a group of chattering mountain squirrels, who paralleled the peanut course for several minutes. The squirrels displayed intense interest in the peanut, but disappeared without taking any action.

Many automobile loads of spectators witnessed the first few hundred yards of the big push. The start was ceremonious. A judge was on hand, presumably to guard against Bill's picking up the peanut and walking. County and city officials swelled the ranks of sight-seers at the getaway.

After making sure that one of the gallery would bring along his lunch pail, Bill adjusted his knee pads and heavy canvas gloves and dropped on all fours to the task of pushing.

"The summit or bust," was Bill's slogan.

Camera fans fluttered around him all day. Mrs. Williams and her 9-year-old daughter were on the mountain and distributed peanuts to spectators. Each peanut was all dressed up in a blue ribbon.

Barring adverse weather, Bill hopes to push the peanut to the topmost point of the peak by three weeks from Tuesday night. Bill's bet was made with neighbors who remarked on his talents for peanut pushing after he paid an election bet by pushing a goober 11 miles last fall.

SENATE ROLL CALL ON LENROOT BARED

Arkansas, Democratic floor leader. The amendments now are pending in the rules committee.

Repeated efforts were made before the vote was taken, to force consideration of the nomination in open executive session and the Senate voted 38 to 36 in favor of publication of a preliminary roll call, but Vice President Curtis ruled a two-thirds majority was necessary for publication.

The contest against Lenroot was led by senators who have been fighting the power interests because Lenroot was employed as counsel for the interests since he was defeated for reelection to the Senate two years ago.

VALUE OF RAILROADS.

The St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad is relatively unimportant in the American transportation scheme, but the victory it won yesterday in a decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court is of first importance to the railroads and the public. The O'Fallon case, as it has come to be known, was in the nature of a challenge of the valuation theories of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The railroad, by virtue of the decision, succeeded in upsetting the valuation placed upon it by the Government for rate-making and other regulatory purposes.

The matter of valuation is one of the most difficult questions involved in the regulation of public utilities. Two general theories of valuation have prevailed; the first, that valuation should be decided upon an original cost basis, and the second, that it should be based upon replacement cost. In view of the fact that commodity prices have continually increased, and show no signs, at present, of ever decreasing, a wide gulf separates original and replacement costs. The Interstate Commerce Commission has subscribed to the original cost theory, whereas public utilities, generally speaking, claim that the fair value of their properties is represented in what it would cost to replace them.

By approving, as the basis of railroad valuation, the cost of reproduction at prevailing prices, the Supreme Court reverses the lesser courts, which had adopted the original cost theory as espoused by the commission. The Supreme Court rules that the reproduction at prevailing price cost must be given consideration in determining valuation. The decision will add an estimated $11,000,000,000 to the valuation of American railroads, and will force the commission to discard the valuations it has established, at considerable cost, through the years, replacing them with new valuations in which are considered reproduction values.

Of principal interest is the effect the new valuations will have on tariffs. With their valuations increased materially the railroads will be enabled overnight to petition for increased fare and freight schedules, and since "fair" return has been well established by court decisions there seems to be no way by which the commission can refuse to grant their requests. "What the traffic will bear," however, will enter in. During hearings of the O'Fallon case, counsel for the railroads repeatedly asserted that rates would generally be governed by this element, and with competition in the transportation field at its present high pitch there is reason to believe that the railroads will be wary in asking for tariff increases. The Supreme Court decision, however, opens the way for increases and promises to alter materially theories of valuation as applied not only by Federal authority, but by State and local utilities commissions as well.

THE BOY SCOUT PROGRAM.

The national council of the Boy Scouts of America at its annual meeting in New York decided that an endowment fund of $10,000,000 is necessary to carry on its work among boys on an adequate scale. Efforts will be made to raise this sum through a Nation-wide campaign. A board will be created to hold the fund in trust.

The growth of the Boy Scout movement has been such, according to Mortimer L. Schiff, chairman of of the finance committee of the National Executive Board, that it is necessary to finance its activities on a large scale. Part of the money will be used to finance an expanded five-year program, to provide a retirement fund for professional scout leaders, for publication of books and magazines, and for establishment of a scout leaders' training school. The remainder will be converted into a special fund, the income of which will be devoted to new projects, such as development of scouting among farm boys, and making similar training available for boys under the required age for membership.

In view of the achievements of this organization of boys, the national council should have little difficulty in raising the fund desired. The interest of the public in its success has recently been manifest by a bequest of $100,000 and a gift of $200,000. The new endowment fund offers an excellent opportunity for philanthropists to invest in the youth of America. No other organization in the country is in a position to make such advantageous use of funds for the wholesome training of boys as is the Boy Scouts of America.

THE HOOVER COMMISSION.

President Hoover's national law enforcement commission is composed of highly respected citizens, most of them distinguished lawyers. None of them, with the possible exception of Judge Kenyon, has taken a pronounced position on the prohibition question. Republicans are in the majority on the commission. All sections of the country are represented. The woman member, Ada L. Comstock, is well qualified to perform the exacting duties that will fall upon all members of the commission.

The scope of the proposed inquiry is so broad, and the questions to be considered are so controversial, that the commission's conclusions may be long delayed and not unanimous. But the best wishes of disinterested citizens ought to encourage the commission to go forward, in the hope that concrete recommendations may be agreed upon, looking to an improvement in the administration of justice and a quickening of public conscience in the vital duty of respect for law.

Naturally, the commission must devote the greater part of its inquiries into the problem of prohibition enforcement. This is not because it is desired by the President to emphasize this law above others, but because the prohibition law is still an experiment and is regarded as unenforceable by a large proportion of the people.

Since lawyers preponderate on the commission, it may be that passion and confusion may be eliminated from the strictly legal view of prohibition, so that the people may gain a clearer idea of the nature of the great change they made when they adopted the eighteenth amendment. They altered a fundamental relationship between the Government and the States when they gave the police power to the Government. Possibly the commission will make this fact clear in its report. If so, a decided step forward will have been taken, either toward a return of the police power to the States, or toward a better method of exercising the police power by the Government.

BALDWIN'S CHANCES.

The political campaign in Britain was enlivened by a flurry in the betting on the London Stock Exchange last week, during which a change of three points was noted in favor of the Baldwin administration's nominees, and a drop of two points was recorded against the chances of the Liberals, led by David Lloyd George. If, as has been so often proclaimed, "money talks," that betting seems to foreshadow a stalemate as the result of the election, for it assigns 277-281 seats in the House of Commons to the Conservatives, 239-243 to the Labor party, and 90-94 to the Liberals, and 308 are necessary for any party to have a bare majority out of a total membership of 615.

With a socialist administration, backed by an explosive and highly dangerous Communist element, as apparently the only alternative to the Conservative government that has held sway for the last five years, it seems surprising to an observer that it could be possible for the latter body to drop from its present strength of 400 to the maximum of 281 assigned to it by the stock exchange figures. The explanation would appear to lie in that acathy of the electorate which has, up to the present, been so conspicuous, for the British newspapers of all shades of opinion are agreed that it will harm the Conservatives much more than either of the other two major parties.

Another factor that may play an important part in cutting down the Conservative strength in the constituencies is the announced determination of Prime Minister Baldwin, in the event of a victory of his party, to retain Sir Austen Chamberlain in charge of the foreign office. This determination shows the magnanimity of Baldwin and his sense of loyalty to a colleague, for Chamberlain's bungling has undoubtedly discredited his party considerable in Britain. Even the conservative Evening Standard, dealing with this subject, says:

> This is not a choice that will meet with universal approval. The handling of foreign affairs has been the least successful feature of the present administration, and the country would be glad to see a new foreign secretary with fewer attachments—especially one who speaks no foreign languages and who will remain rigidly on this side of the channel.

From many points of view it would be desirable to have some one else besides Mr. Chamberlain engaged in the conduct of the negotiations for the reduction of naval armaments, as well as in the revisions of the present arms treaty, scheduled to come up in 1931.

SAFETY A PERSONAL MATTER.

There is no decrease in the automobile accident toll. Each day witnesses its tragedies, and Sunday, when many persons venture forth in holiday mood, doubles the record. Yesterday morning's papers chronicled 24 injuries in traffic accidents in and near Washington. Six of the number were injured in accidents involving buses, and two were injured in accidents involving street cars. Last Sunday was not extraordinary in respect to the number of traffic accidents. In nearly every town in the country it has become a day of tragedy.

Through the reports of last week-end's accidents runs a story of carelessness. The driver of an automobile dashes heedlessly from a side road into a main highway and his vehicle is crushed by an oncoming bus. A child darts from the pavement directly into the path of a moving machine so suddenly that its driver can neither stop nor avoid him. Some accidents are "unavoidable," but in the great majority of cases accidents would not have occurred had those concerned not been careless or had they recognized the fact that crowded highways are zones of deadly danger.

The police and the traffic director are trying their best to make local highways safer. The authorities of every town and city in the country are wrestling with the problem. All their regulations and devices, however, can not prevail against carelessness. The people must look out for their own safety.

Calvin Coolidge, says Will Rogers, has more subtle, downright humor than any one else in public life. This confirms Mr. Rogers' reputation as a humorist.

There is no rigid caste system in America—just the two groups of cigarette consumers and cigarette indorsers.

College really develops the mind. Who but a college boy could think up so many ways to ask for money?

HOOVER AND THE SENATE.

By THEODORE G. JOSLIN,
In the Boston Transcript.

President Hoover is going through the same heart-breaking experiences that have fallen to the lot of so many of his predecessors. Like them, he entered the White House inspired to write a record of achievements unexampled in the history of the Republic. He was actuated by no thought of self-glorification; rather he was moved only by the desire to serve the country that had honored him so signally. * * *

By working without interruption he succeeded in the first month of his administration in doing more than even his most intimate friends believed he could accomplish. He got away to a start that pleased his associates tremendously and that confounded his critics. Then came the extra session of Congress and the beginning of trouble that still is to be ended. He, like those who have preceded him in the White House, has had to learn that a President can be successful only under the most trying circumstances, that difficulties must be expected and can be conquered only by painstaking effort. His troubles are due, as were those of Presidents Coolidge and Harding, to the unwillingness of the United States Senate, or rather a majority thereof, to accept his leadership and cooperate with him. It may be that the Senate is unpopular with the country, but whether it is or not, does not help him one iota. He must secure legislative enactment of recommendations which he has made if his administration is to be successful; if he fails or if he is compelled to compromise on important principles then the success of his administration will be measured by the extent to which he has to reconcile his differences with Congress.

It was during the latter part of the presidential campaign that Mr. Hoover authorized the statement that if elected in November and if the last Congress did not solve the agricultural problem he would call the new Congress into session to enact the legislation so vitally needed by the farmers of the West.

It can hardly be gainsaid that he made the promise because of political consideration. Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who was giving him greater assistance than almost any other speaker on the stump, and who, incidentally, broke with him over export debentures last week, was insisting that he make the pronouncement. By no means was the senator the only party leader who was bringing pressure to bear upon him. * * * They thought that if they got him committed to an extra session his election would be a certainty. Anyway, they drew the statement from him.

Having made the promise at their behest and the last Congress having failed to act on agricultural relief, there was nothing Mr. Hoover could do but call the session for consideration of that subject and tariff revision as well. Many are saying, wholly truthfully, that the extra session was not absolutely necessary and that if he had not made the promise he would have had nine months in which to perfect his machinery for conducting the affairs of the Government

There is another side of the question that should not be overlooked, and that, in the minds of some experts, justifies the extra session. The demand for tariff revision was almost as great as that for agricultural relief. More than six years have passed since any change has been made in the tariff law, other than under the flexible provision. Business conditions have changed since 1922 and industries were crying for legislative assistance. Had no extra session been called tariff revision would have come up during the regular session beginning next December. It would have had to be considered at the same time that the appropriation bills, not to mention other general legislation, were under discussion. Inevitably the tariff bill would not have been passed for six or eight months and perhaps not until the senatorial and congressional campaigns of 1930 had actually started. History proves that the tariff causes trouble for any party in power, and sometimes retires it from power. This bill will be no exception. If its enactment were delayed until July or August of next year it is not at all improbable that the Republican party would be in serious straits. Mr. Hoover might even have his majority in one of the branches completely wiped out. From this point of view, at least, it may be just as well to have the fracas now and have it over with by next November, so that the months intervening before the campaign begins can be devoted to reconciling the differences that inevitably will develop.

Regardless of whether the extra session was wise or unwise, it is being held and the administration and the country must make the best of it. There are serious differences between the President and Congress. The differences can be fatal to Mr. Hoover and the Republican party, or they can be ironed out. No one can foretell what the future will bring, but this much can be said—if Mr. Hoover's administration is a failure rather than the success that the country had the right to expect it would be, the blame can be placed where it belongs, namely, on the group of willful senators who profess to be Republicans but who absolutely refuse to accept the leadership of any man, even when that man holds office by an unexampled vote of confidence by the American people.

Louisville Courier-Journal: What a mark in scholarship those ancient Greek philosophers would have made if they had enjiyed the advantages of a liberal education.

Safe Prediction.

Detroit News: Only three weeks more before the Indianapolis motor classic. We have no predictions in mind, other than that some machine will carry away part of a fence.

Our Ambition.

Ohio State Journal: Our ambition is to be carrying home a quart bottle of castor oil, nicely wrapped up, and be stopped and searched by four undercover men, provided they don't decide to shoot anyway.

Be a Butcher.

Detroit News: Senator Borah tells Washington reporters he would like to wear a straw hat the year round. We have no suggestion to offer, other than that he open a meat market.

Gosh!

Milwaukee Journal: One of the great consolations of old age is to read a prediction that 50 years from now men and women will be dancing naked in the snow.

There'll Be No Speeches.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Hermann Oelrichs, of New York, has offered a prize of $100 for the best farewell address to be delivered by him when, inevitably, he will be hanged for taking a drink. We think he's spending his money foolishly. When Mr. Oelrichs is hanged for taking a drink the drys will have matters so completely in hand that they won't stand for pre-executional sass from Mr. Oelrichs or any other discredited scofflaw.

Chains Are for Men Not Yet Qualified for Freedom.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

PEOPLE wast too much sympathy on the downtrodden in history.

Let us assume that you are a middle-class American; that you have some knowledge of your fellow citizens; that you are not a snob.

You are not the perfect flower of your civilization, for you know people who are superior to you in wit, education, intelligence and culture; yet you know people so far beneath you—unwashed, stupid, ignorant, vile people so repulsive that you could not tolerate them at your dinner table.

These are among the "down-trodden." These are the "wronged unfortunates."

Can you be blamed for their state? Are you at fault if you can not enjoy their company?

You do not tread on them. You merely flock with your own kind and avoid them.

Is it your duty to lift them up? Try it. Try to inspire them with ambition; try to make them understand and intelligently obey some simple instruction; try to teach them a sense of responsibility. Disgust and resentment will be your reward.

Now go back to the time when the majority of men were serfs or virtual slaves; when the rabble was whipped to its kennels; when lousy caps were jerked from matted heads as the master approached; when only the few had any smattering of knowledge or knew the taste of luxury.

Were these few conscious of injustice to their fellow men? No; they lived among their own kind, enjoying their advantages with a clear conscience, taking what they could get and hold as men do now.

If they had made an effort to uplift, wash and educate the low, their reward would have been suspicion and sullen resentment.

The low never are lifted up; they climb up.

The "nobles" began as unwashed pirates who lifted themselves up by means of sword and torch and consolidated their advantage by a judicious use of the gallows.

Men remain low and are trodden under foot until they develop a capacity and a yearning for higher things, and then they climb. It is the history of human progress.

If we blame the high for the condition of the low, then we must with equal justice praise them for the tyranny that prompts the low to revolt and gain a higher status.

The truth is, a class or people occupies the place in civilization to which its abilities entitle it; and, as though by natural law, it pulls itself up when it is ready for promoton.

You can't keep a good man down—nor can you keep him up until he develops the ability to pull himself up.

The "down-trodden" are not kept down by the evil intent of the high; they are trodden because they are too shiftless, stupid and ignorant to get out from underfoot.

Men are not given freedom; they take it.

Men endure slavery while they have the spirit of slaves; but when they develop manhood, woe to their masters who stand in the way.

SEA SERPENTS.

The many accounts of the great sea serpent's appearance deserves a patient hearing and judicial investigation, writes D'Arcy Wentworth Thompson in "Science of the Sea." More things than one seem to have been included under its name. It is now "that sea beast Leviathan, which God of all His works created hugest that swim the ocean stream;" in Milton's account of which is mixed up the eastern tale of Sinbad the Sailor, and the great whale on which he and his comrades landed and built their fire. * * *

Now, we do know, for certain, that cuttlefish of enormous size exist in the various oceans. Prof. Owen described one which came ashore on the Island of Achill, whose arms were 30 feet long and whose eyes were great globes 15 inches in diameter; and Prof. Verrill has collected notes of a considerable number observed from time to time, chiefly on Newfoundland, whose arms ranged from 30 to 42 feet in length, and whose entire length, body and arms and all were in some cases over 50 feet.

We have every reason to suppose that these few stragglers that have been stranded and measured give us but a very imperfect idea of the dimensions that may actually be attained. * * * Even in such accounts of the long serpent, with pointed head, swimming rapidly on a calm sea, coil after coil, Mr. Lee thinks that we have all that could well be seen from the deck of the body of a gigantic cuttlefish, propelling itself, as its habit is, backwards by the rush of water expelled from its "funnel," with its tail fin simulating the serpent's head, and the wavy outline of its trunk, head and tentacles giving the appearance of the long serpentine body.

BRITISH OR ENGLISH.

The extreme sensitiveness of the Scotch and Welsh about the use of the word "English" as a general adjective for the inhabitants of this island is well known, writes the London correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. Speakers in the House of Commons are continually being heckled on the subject. They must say (at least so the members from north of the Clyde insist) "British," and not "English." This has led to many plaints that the word "English" or "Englishman" can hope for a good reception anywhere in the world except in Westminster.

So sensitive are the Scots generally at being left out in this way that there is a story that once, during the war, some Scottish soldiers who broke into the Hindenburg line were indignant to find the notice "Gott Strafe England" posted in an abandoned dugout. They immediately crossed out the last word and substituted "Britain."

An amusing example of this has come to light in the tearoom of the House of Commons. A new law has just come into effect that every egg sold in London shall bear an indelible stamp naming its origin and quality. Scotch and Welsh members theretofore have been indignant to find that their eggs were stamped "English laid." They demand to know why they are not stamped "British laid." The question, it is said, is to be brought before the House.

Poor Owen.

New York World: Probably Mr. Owen Young will get little thanks for his job, no matter what the result will be. France and Belgium, and possibly the United States, will feel that he wasn't severe enough with Germany; and Germany will feel that he was too stern and unrelenting. The only task in the world that is more thankless is that of a physician recommender.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Navy Loses Lieut. Comdr. Richard H. Gifford, an Outstanding Civil Engineer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Public Works Department flag is at half-mast—and in the heart of every man in the department is sorrow, deep and sincere, at the loss of a beloved chieftain, the former public works officer, Richard Haight Gifford, Civil Engineer Corps, U. S. Navy, who on Sunday, May 12, 1929, gave his life in the service of his country.

Richard Gifford was born in New York on November 27, 1891, several months subsequent to the death of his father. He was an honor graduate in civil engineering at Lehigh University, after which he took a very lucrative position in the steel rolling mills of Pennsylvania.

In 1917 when the United States was engaged in the World War, he left the cauldrons of the rolling mills to answer the call to colors and passed the examination for civil engineers in the United States Navy. He was subsequently sent to the coal fields in Alaska with the Navy Coal Commission. His work in this zone is outstanding. On his return to Washington he was married to Miss Anna Patterson, of Indian Head, Md., and transferred to duty at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., where from June 6, 1922, to July 6, 1925, he served as public works officer of the air station and of the Eighth Naval District. He was transferred on that date to duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics and Yards and Docks in the Navy Department, where he remained until his illness as an aftermath of the dreaded Spanish influenza required that he be relieved and sent to the Naval Hospital for treatment.

Streets Used as Garages and Cluttered With Cars Undergoing a Bath.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A nuisance that should be stopped is the cleaning of automobiles in the streets, courtyards and parks. The street in a residential section where there may be a public garage is converted into a veritable stable yard by the activities of the chauffeurs. The owners of the splendid motor cars, kept at public garages would not tolerate such work being done at their own imposing front door, although apparently they have no scruples about it being performed at the front doors of other residents.

The occasional wiping of dust from cars is not objectionable, but some ultra fastidious people insist upon highly polished conveyances and the operation, which is almost a daily occurrence, is quite protracted. You may be resting in a delightful grove beside still waters in Rock Creek Park and your reverie on the beauties of nature will be abruptly dissolved by the polishing operations of an intruding car operator who is experimenting with some innovation polish and who finds the garage or alley less attractive for such work.

What would be thought of the householder who toted his home furnishings outdoors and beat the rugs against the tree trunks and brushed the upholstered chairs upon the sidewalk as autoists do the floor coverings and cushions of cars? He would be promptly escorted to the nearest police station or perhaps sent to an asylum for mental observation, but the automobile has taken such possession of us that, like the baby, everything is subordinate to it.

Disappearance of Big Timber—School Children Called Out to See Specimens.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Large timber has become such a curiosity that in the case of a recent shipment from the Pacific Coast they stopped a freight train at various points in the United States in order to allow the school children to see it as it passed through.

Even in my day a pine tree stood on land I owned in Maine that measured seven feet in diameter, and when I remonstrated with my woodsman for having had this cut down during my absence, and I told him that I intended having a tablet placed on its trunk so that future generations of school children might see a monument to the forests of the past, he simply laughed at me; and I can imagine that his mental reservation might have been, "the poor nut." Today they are even glad to show the school children sticks of timber that have been hauled 3,000 miles. And so scepters pass.

Prohibition Does Not Mean Increased Use of Dope, Says Rural New Yorker.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every once in a while, or more likely twice in a while, a fanatical wet rears up on his hind legs, flaps his ears and brays that prohibition means increased use of dope. He is blind to the facts; the drug fiends of today are mostly found in the wet, law-defying cities.

And he is forgetful of pre-prohibition conditions, when drug addiction was increasing every year. Before me are two old newspapers, published in 1916. Both carry items about the alarming increase in the use of dangerous drugs. In the opinion of the District Attorney of the Bronx, the number of drug addicts in New York City had increased to 200,000.

This is not the "guess" of an imaginative writer, but the testimony of those in position to know.

Now You Know Why Mr. Borah Takes the Opposite Side.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Opposition is the sine qua non of existence. Every face has a back to it, a reverse side; and to each further side there is an opposite.

Nothing bores more than one-sidedness. A one-sided newspaper, giving only that side, is an abomination. Has not Mr. Borah a right to oppose as well as acquiesce? No. He must be regular or be damned.

CAPITAL SOCIETY EVENTS OF INTEREST

THE brilliant reception at the Cuban Embassy yesterday afternoon, arranged to mark the anniversary of Cuban independence, had a double interest since it also celebrated the re-inauguration of President Machado of Cuba.

Many of the chiefs of diplomatic missions were conspicuous by their absence, being in Havana to represent their governments at the inaugural ceremonies. But in most instances their wives were present at the reception, and in the company assembled to share in this anniversary fete the diplomatic, official and resident groups were represented in happy proportion.

The Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Ferrara received in the first of a series of spacious drawing rooms, opening from the gallery, to which leads a great double stairway, one of the most interesting architectural features of an embassy, perfectly adapted to entertaining. After greeting their hosts, the guests foregathered in animated groups about the tea table in the dining room, decorated with spring flowers in a great beaten silver bowl, or drifted into the ballroom, whence came the strains of music. There, too, a long buffet table was laid, flower-bedecked and candle-lighted. Some of those who drank toasts to Cuba yesterday had helped celebrate the establishment of her independence a score of years ago.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, was among the guests, constantly surrounded by an animated group, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, who was an early arrival, held an impromptu reception throughout the afternoon.

The Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla attended the reception, with their daughters, Senorita Maria Padilla and Senorita Rosa Padilla. Many eyes followed the Minister of China and Mme. Wu in their progress through the drawing rooms, for the latter, as always, wore her picturesque native costume. Others among the guests from the Diplomatic Corps were Senaro de Tellez, wife of the Mexican Ambassador; Senora de Varela, wife of the Minister of Uruguay; the Minister of osta Rica; Mme. Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama, and Mme. Veverka, wife of the Minister of Czechoslovakia.

There was Cabinet representation in the distinguished persons of the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, and the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles F. Adams. The former Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. William M. Jardine were also "among those present." Others glimpsed in ever-shifting groups—to name but a few at random—were Mrs. James Couzens, with Miss Margo Couzens and Miss Rahel Davies; Mrs. Burton Wheeler, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom, commissioner and Mrs. Proctor Dougherty, Judge and Mrs. Peyton Gordon, Maj. Gen. George Barnett, Mrs. Victor Kauffmann, Mrs. Everett Sanders and Col. and Mrs. Osmun Latrobe.

The company of several hundred guests also included Mrs. James S. Parker, Mrs. Chandler Anderson, Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, Mrs. Frederick C. Hicks, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. McClure Kelley, Mrs. Samuel Jordan Graham, Mrs. Robert Love Taylor, Mrs. Francis G. Newlands, Mrs. Beverly Williamson, Mme. Sanchez Latour, Mme. Fisa, Miss Anne Squire, Mrs. Alexandrer Legare, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Mrs. Robert Mackenzie, Mrs. Morris Evans, Miss Meta Evans and Col. Rawson Warren.

Senora de Ferrara had chosen for this occasion a charming afternoon gown of flowered chiffon, a black ground with scattered flowers in shades of rose, over which she wore a coat of black lace, its flounced skirt dipping gracefully in the back in the prevailing mode.

Mrs. Hoover was hostess yesterday afternoon to the delegates attending the meeting of the Florence Crittenton Mission, receiving them at the White House.

The Chilean Ambassador, Senor Don Carlos G. Davila, left yesterday for a brief visit to Philadelphia and New York. He will return tomorrow.

The Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of the United States Ambassador to Japan, Mr. Charles MacVeagh. Other guests were the Undersecretary of State, Mr. J. Reuben Clark, jr.; the Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Nelson T. Johnson; Mr. Stanley Hornbeck; the First Secretary of the American Embassy in Tokyo, Mr. Louis Albert Sussdorf, jr.; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ballentine, Commander and Mrs. George M. Courts, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic William Wile, Mr. Benjamin Fleisher and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Fleisher.

The Minister of Venezuela, Senor Dr. Don Carlos Grisanti, has as his guest Senor Romero Sanchez, of Venezuela, for whom he entertained at luncheon Sunday.

The Minister of Egypt and Mme. Samy Pasha will entertain at dinner Friday evening.

The Minister of Roumania, Mr. George Cretziano, will entertain a company of sixteen at dinner this evening.

The Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite, was the guest of honor at a dinner given last evening in New York at the Ritz Tower by the National Committee of the Irish Center of America.

Minister of China Entertains at Dinner.

entertained at dinner at the legation last evening, having as guests Admiral Charles B. McVay, who is to take command of the Asiatic Fleet, and Mrs. McVay; Mr. Nelson Johnson, Assistant Secretary of State, and his sister, Miss Johnson; Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. George R. Farnum, Col. and Mrs. Foy, Col. and Mrs. W. S. Drysdale and Commander and Mrs. Theodore Wilkinson.

Mme. Wu had as luncheon guests yesterday Mrs. William Howard Taft, Mrs. William DeWitt Mitchell, Mrs. James S. Parker, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. Lawrence Richey, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Karl Klemm and Mme. Chao, wife of a former director of Chinese students in the United States.

Today Dr. and Mme. Wu will go to New York to attend a dinner to be given tomorrow night by the American-Asiatic Association in honor of the Minister.

The Postmaster General, Mr. Walter F. Brown, will return this morning from Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Brown returned last night from Atlantic City, where she passed a few days.

Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the Secretary of Labor, and her five children saw the circus yesterday afternoon. When Mrs. Coolidge was mistress of the White House, it was her annual custom to take the Davis children to the circus with her and she always enjoyed the performance as much as the younsters.

The Assistant Attorney General, Mr. John Marshall, was among those lunching at the Carlton yesterday. Others there were Senora de la Barra, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Bolivia; Mr. Joseph Tumulty, Miss Norvell Munford and Miss Anne Devereux.

Senator and Mrs. Francis E. Warren have returned to Washington after passing some time in Pittsfield, Mass.

Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg have been joined at the Wardman Park Hotel by their son, Mr. Arthur H. Vandenberg, jr., who has come from Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, Brig. Gen. Augusto Villa, who is on a trip in the South, expects to return to the Wardman Park Hotel at the end of the month.

Mrs. George Barnett Expected in City Today.

Mrs. George Barnett landed in New York yesterday, after having spent several months abroad, and will come to Washington today. Her daughter, Mrs. Robert R. Dickey, jr., who has a villa on the Riviera, and her three children, Gordon, Robert R. 3d and Lelia Montague Dickey, will arrive in this country on June 2. They will come to Washington to be with Gen. and Mrs. Barnett and later will go with them to Wakefield, their country home in Virginia.

Harris & Ewing.

SENORA DE FERRARA, wife of the Cuban Ambassador, who entertained yesterday afternoon at a reception in celebration of the independence of Cuba.

Mrs. Emory Land and her mother, Mrs. Dwight Chester, have arrived from New York and are at the Carlton. Mrs. Land made her home in Washington until Capt. Land was given leave of absence from the Navy to become vice president and treasurer of the Guggenheim Foundation.

Henry Minor, of Mississippi, was the guest of honor and speaker at the weekly forum luncheon of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday. His subject was "The Political Value of History."

Some of the guests at the luncheon were Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, William Price, former Minister to Panama; Mrs. E. A. Stuart, Mrs C. A. Douglas, Mrs Eugene R. Barrett, Miss Eleanor Smith, Mrs. A. E. Spangler, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Miss Charl Williams, Mrs. L. J. Battle, Mrs. Charles G. Matthews, Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, Mrs. Harry N. Rickey, Mrs. Charles Hamlin, Mrs. J. D Brodhead, Mrs. L. D. Tyson, Mrs. Donald MacDonald, Miss Marie McDonald, Mrs. Frank S. Bright, Mrs. George M. Eckels, Mrs. Theodore J. Pickett, Mrs. Hobart Brooks, Mrs. Frank Hiram Snell, Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams, Mrs. D. Tucker Brown and Miss Eleanor Connolly.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. David Taylor have as their guest their daughter, Mrs. John Powell, of Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. William Rapley will entertain at dinner tomorrow evening in celebration of the former's birthday.

Mrs. James Parker Nolan will entertain at a bridge tea tomorrow afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Devereux, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Ryan Devereux, whose marriage wil take place next month.

Mrs. Clarence Cary is passing several days in New York at the Drake Hotel.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Stephen O. Fuqua will be the guests of honor at a reception, to be given by the infantry officers stationed in Washington, this afternoon from 4:30 until 6 o'clock, at the Army War College Club.

Senator Millard E. Tydings will be the ranking guest at a dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred P. Dennis this evening at their home on Twenty-first street.

Mr. Henry Ravenel to Wed Miss Nancie Benoist June 6.

The marriage of Miss Nancie Benoist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Benoist, to Mr. Henry Ravenel will take place Thursday, June 6, at the home of the bride, 1734 Q street, at 3:30 o'clock. A reception will follow at 4 o'clock.

The bride's younger sister, Miss Harriot Benoist, will be maid of honor and Miss Julia Worthington, a cousin, will be bridesmaid. There will be two ribbon bearers, little Mimi Worthington and Billy Peelle, a nephew of the bridegrom.

Miss Benoist and Mr. Ravenel will be the guests in whose honor Mr. and Mrs. James Parker Nolan will entertain at dinner at the Chevy Chase Club Saturday evening, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Baker will entertain at dinner in their honor on Saturday, June 1.

Mrs. John B. Henderson has returned to Washington after passing three weeks at Battle Creek, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Noyes have issued cards for an at-home tomorrow afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock at their home, "Merrywood," in McLean, Va.

Mrs. William P. Wooten, wife of Col. Wooten, will entertain informally at luncheon tomorrow.

Mrs. Wooten will have as her guest over the week-end Mrs. Arthur Sinclair, of New York, who will arrive Saturday.

Mr. Thomas Pearson's talk at the Arts Club on "The West in Teheran," announced for this evening, has been postponed until Tuesday evening of next week. An informal dinner dance will be given at the Arts Club tonight.

Mr. Mackall, Jr., to Wed Miss Mary Earle Hoxton.

The marriage of Miss Mary Earle Hoxton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Robinson Hoxton, to Mr. William Whann Mackall, jr., son of Mr. William W. Mackall, of Savannah, Ga., will take place this evening at 7 o'clock in Emanuel Chapel of the Virginia Theological Seminary near Alexandria, Va. The ceremony will be followed by a reception for members of the immediate families and the bridal party at the home of the bride's parents at the seminary.

Capt. and Mrs. A. C. Pickens entertained the bridal party at a buffet supper last evening at their home in Alexandria, following a rehearsal of the wedding. Mrs. Arthur Bryant entertained at a luncheon yesterday in Miss Hoxton's honor. Among other entertainments for Miss Hoxton and Mr. Mackall were a luncheon given by Mrs. Eliphalet Andrews on Sunday at her country place, Vaucleuse, and a dinner given by Miss Elizabeth Simms Saturday evening at the Chevy Chase Club.

Mrs. Lewis Vanderbilt, of Newark, N. J., is passing the week here at the Grace Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. Emeric R. Leonard entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of Mrs. Charles P. Harris, jr., wife of Col. Harris, of Governor's Island.

Cards Issued for Wedding Of Miss Annie G. Hume.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hume have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Annie Graham Hume, to Mr. Charles Willard Hayes, jr., on Tuesday, June 11, at 4 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Miss Julia du Pont Andrews, daughter of Mrs. James Newman Andrews, of Bethesda, Md., whose marriage to Mr. Alfred E. Bissell, of Wilmington, Del., will take place at 4 o'clock Saturday, June 1, in Christ Church, Wilmington, will have her sister, Mrs. Coleman Walker, as matron of honor and another sister, Miss Amy E. Andrews, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Mary Darrah, Miss Margaret West, Miss Edith Sinclair, of Asheville, N. C., and Miss Anne Andrews, sister of the bride.

A reception at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Amy E. Du Pont, in Wilmington, will follow the ceremony.

The House of Mercy garden party will be held today at Cathedral Close if the weather permits. In case of rain the party will be held tomorrow.

The Assistant Solicitor of the State Department and Mrs. Joseph R. Baker will go to New York this morning and will sail tomorrow for Europe on the George Washington. Mr. Baker is a delegate to the International Air Navigation Conference to be held in Paris early in June. Mr. and Mrs. Baker will pass a few months abroad, including visits in Germany and Great Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. Anson Herrick, of San Francisco, are passing several days in Washington at the Mayflower before going to New York, where they will take a steamer for the Pacific coast, returning by way of the Panama Canal. They have been visiting friends in Baltimore and Annapolis during the past two weeks.

The League of Republican Women will be the guests of Maj. Howard C. Davidson, commandant of Bolling Field, and Mrs. Davidson on Friday at 3 o'clock, at which time officers will escort the members to points of interest on the field.

The regular weekly tea held each Friday afternoon at the Barr Building will be omitted Friday.

Mrs. John E. Fowler will entertain at a tea at 1424 Sixteenth street northwest this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock for her daughter, Miss Dorothy Gould Fowler, in honor of the graduating class of the Eastman School. Mrs. Fowler and Miss Fowler will be assisted in receiving by Miss Sarah Louise Mill, Miss Doris Mechlin, Miss Alice Carter Bowie and Miss Josephine Augustus Duckett. Presiding at the tea table will be Miss Ellen Lee Bayard, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard; Miss Dorothy Gamble and Miss Sarah Lloyd.

Final plans have been made by the Massachusetts Society of Washington for its May meeting, to be held at Wardman Park Hotel Thursday evening. Tables will be arranged for those desiring to play cards, and reservations may be made through Mrs. Frank E. Hickey, chairman of the card committee. An entertainment, featuring cabaret dancing, will follow, and dancing will be continuous from 9 until 1 o'clock. Lewis W. Hart is in charge of the dancing. The committee for the affair is under the leadership of George R. Farnum, Assistant Attorney General, who is president of the society.

Mrs. Jessie H. Ridenour and her daughter, Mrs. Bertha Delaney, will sail on the George Washington Wednesday to pass the summer in England and France.

A special feature of the Southern Society May ball, to be given Wednesday evening in honor of the newly elected members of Congress, will be a Maypole dance by the children of Neighborhood House. These dances were especially arranged by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Neligh, and were given at the White House on Easter Monday.

"I wish all girls knew how important this is"
Says a 1929 debutante

A delicate subject, yet women should recognize the importance of this new process which deodorizes Kotex . . . already perfected in cut and improved in every comfort detail.

THERE is one uncomfortable social situation women are now spared. The latest discovery in Kotex Laboratories banishes all odor and each Kotex sanitary pad is treated by this patented* process. No self-consciousness now, no fear of offending in this way. This one remaining problem in connection with sanitary pads is solved!

So soft—and shaped to fit

Because corners of the pad are rounded and tapered, it may be worn without evidence under the most clinging gown. There is none of that conspicuous bulkiness so often associated with old-fashioned methods. The amazing absorption of Cellucotton absorbent wadding is a tremendous advantage. It is actually 5 times more absorbent than cotton. The identical material used in 85% of the leading hospitals of the country, Cellucotton absorbent wadding is preferred by surgeons for its delicate softness and hygienic comfort. You can adjust the filler to suit your own special needs. It is easily disposed of, no laundering is necessary. A new process makes it softer than ever before.

Buy a box today . . . 45 cents for a box of twelve. On sale at all drug, dry goods and department stores; also through vending cabinets in rest-rooms.

SUPER-SIZE KOTEX
Formerly 90c—Now 65c
Some women find Super-size Kotex a special comfort. Exactly the same as the Regular size Kotex, but with added layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, Monday, May 20—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, rain in morning, mostly cloudy with slowly rising temperature in afternoon Tuesday; Wednesday fair and warmer; moderate northeast and north winds.

For Maryland and Virginia, rain in morning, mostly cloudy with slowly rising temperature in afternoon Tuesday; Wednesday fair and warmer; fresh northeast and north winds, diminishing Tuesday.

The southern disturbance has moved very slowly eastward to southern Georgia and northwestern Florida. Macon, Ga., 29.88 inches, and an offshoot from this disturbance is developing over North Carolina, Hatteras, 29.94 inches. The western trough of low pressure is advancing slowly eastward. Phoenix, Ariz., 29.62 inches, and Fort Smith, B. N. T., 29.74 inches. Pressure is high over northern and eastern Canada, the western Atlantic Ocean, and the greater part of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains, except the Southeastern States, with centers as follows: Halifax, N. S., 30.44 inches; Hamilton, Bermuda, 30.42 inches; Charles City, Iowa, 30.26 inches, and White River, Ont., 30.30 inches. The southern disturbance has been attended by general rains within the last 24 hours from the southern portions of Pennsylvania and New Jersey southward to Florida. The rainfall was heavy in portions of the Carolinas, Georgia and southeastern Virginia. Local showers have occurred in portions of Iowa, Kansas and the southern Rocky Mountain region. The temperature has fallen in the Atlantic States as far south as South Carolina and in the southern plateau and southern Rocky Mountain region, and has risen in the lake region, the upper Mississippi Valley, the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming and the western Canadian Provinces. The temperature is much below normal from Maryland to western North Carolina, and it is much above normal in Montana, Wyoming and the western Canadian Provinces.

The indications are for rain in the Atlantic States and the northern Appalachian region Tuesday, probably ending by Tuesday afternoon, except in the North Atlantic States. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Tuesday and Wednesday east of the Mississippi River. The temperature will rise slowly in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the Appalachian region, and the interior of the Middle Atlantic States Tuesday and Wednesday, and in the lower lake region and the North Atlantic States Wednesday.

Chicago Theater Men Kidnaped, Safe Robbed

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—Max and Harry Ascher, directors of a corporation operating a string of moving picture theaters here and in Wisconsin, were kidnaped late last night and released three hours later after a safe in one of their theaters had been robbed of $4,000.

While one robber guarded the Aschers in their car, after making them tell the combination of the safe, another went to the theater. There the third had hidden himself at the close of the evening's performance and had bound two ushers and a porter in an office. The fourth bandit drove the robbers' car between the theater and the alley, where the Aschers were held captive.

MORRIS ELLER CASE DROPPED IN CHICAGO

State Fails to Win New Continuance on Election Plot Charge.

SON MUST FACE TRIAL

Chicago, Ill., May 20 (A.P.).—The law's delays have set free Morris Eller, indicted last year as the arch conspirator in the reign of terror that marred the 1928 primary election in Eller's "bloody twentieth" ward. The ward boss and city collector was discharged today on the conspiracy counts of which fifteen of his followers were convicted.

Four times the State had been granted a continuance to prepare its case. Today counsel for Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, demanded immediate trial and again the State demurred. Frank J. Loesch, assistant State's attorney, offered an affidavit purporting to show evidence two State witnesses would present against Judge Eller, and asserting that the two witnesses have disappeared. He requested 60 days in which to round them up.

The court refused, directing trial forthwith. Then defense counsel pointed out that the affidavit made no reference to Morris Eller and that the State was not ready to try him. Judge Francis S. Wilson then dismissed the charges.

The son, Judge Eller, will go on trial Tuesday.

Morris Eller was cited as the instigator of the orgy of kidnaping, slugging, vote frauds and the slaying of his colored rival for ward committeeman, Octavius Granady, a year ago. A grand jury investigation resulted in the indictment of the two Ellers and several henchmen on conspiracy charges, including the whole list of primary day outbreaks.

The Ellers won a separate trial and while their codefendants were being convicted and fined they obtained a change of venue and the State let pass the four continuances that entitle the defendants to dismissal.

Their henchmen later were tried again, this time on the specific charge of kidnaping one of the election workers, and after a trial marked by citation of four defense witnesses for perjury or contempt, were acquitted. Four of the group are now on trial on a second kidnaping charge.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

A paroxysm of glittering generalities inspired by the tantalizing trailer being screened at the Fox Theater was narrowly averted by opportune receipt of a bundle of pertinent information concerning the "Fox Movietone Follies," scheduled to open on F street Saturday, sent down by Mr. Meakin just as this machina de escribir, as we say in the pure Castillian, was about to begin to rattle. I am now happily in a position to state facts instead of conjectures.

Clark and McCullough, it seems, are not, after all, to be in the "Movietone Follies." Although they were originally nominated for a place in this screen innovation, their "bit" was given the name of "The Girl From Samoa" and presented as an added all-talking, singing and dancing attraction at the Fox some weeks ago, with Lois Moran in the feminine lead. This prerelease eliminated Clark and McCullough, as well as Miss Moran, from the more pretentious offering now imminent.

The remainder of the information is affirmative, to wit:

Marcel Silver, director of the song and dance revue numbers, hails from Paris and is a pioneer among directors of the talking films.

David Butler, director of the book, has specialized in pictures dominated by the spirit of American youth and is one of the youngest megaphone wielders in Hollywood, in addition to being an athlete-actor of parts.

Con Conrad, Sidney Mitchell and Archie Gottler wrote the lyrics and music. They are one of the most successful song writing combinations in the United States.

Fanchon and Marco, widely known as originators of novel effects—especially on the West Coast—contributed generously to the ensembles and chorus routines.

Billie K. Wells, who has graduated from the authorship of burlesque skits for the smoker circuits to the top revues of Broadway, is author of the book.

The orchestra leader is Arthur Kay, who presides over 60 musicians of the first rank, whose efforts are said to have been exceptionally well recorded.

Certified cost sheets from the Fox studios, I am assured, set a sum slightly in excess of $1,000,000 as the aggregate expenditure required to complete this first of the gelatine gaucheries to reach the big time.

Take it or leave it—and see if I care!

Holding no brief for those who completely altered the psychology and the plot development of "Coquette" for Mary Pickford's use upon the audible screen, nor yet condemning them for it, I fail to see how this admirable vehicle for the introduction of a new facet of the art of "America's sweetheart" can fail to gain a place high on the list of the more notable talking films of the year. Certainly it proves that of all the world Mary Pickford knew herself the best.

It has been suggested, and I am inclined to subscribe to the view, that Mrs. Pickford was the dominant member of the close partnership always existing between herself and her talented daughter and that it was she who saw to it that the Pickford tradition of juvenility was scrupulously maintained. Left to her own decision, and aided by the advice of Douglas Fairbanks, her husband, Miss Pickford evidently concluded that those dormant abilities which she knew herself to possess should be given adequate opportunity to assert and establish themselves, upon the passing of the guiding spirit to whom she had dedicated a lifelong devotion. One need only attend the Columbia to learn the wisdom of that conclusion.

Miss Pickford's apparent overstressing of emotion in one scene is largely a matter of personal opinion with arguments in ample number both pro and con. The same may be said of the only other minor defect in her performance that suggests itself to one whose skepticism regarding Mary Pickford's right to a claim to greatness has been wholly dissipated. It seemed to me on Saturday afternoon that the purling drawl of the deep South was occasionally carried to a point by all of the principals in the cast where it savored a little more of Moran and Mack than of the soft cadences of Dixie's cultured aristocracy.

So trivial do I deem the fault—if it be one at all—that it was not even mentioned in Monday's review of a picture that it would be grossly unfair to look upon as anything but an extremely free and remote translation of its stage original.

It has been brought to my attention that the Weather Bureau has had nothing to do with all of this rainy spell we have been having. Mr. Ewing, of the Stanley-Crandall Co. publicity department, arranged it with the Warner brothers upon his recent visit to New York as an atmospheric prologue to the engagement of "Noah's Ark," at the Metropolitan!

Yes, to answer 1,000 questions in one swell foop, or fell swoop, or whatever it is questions are answered in, "Poley" McClintock, the clown drummer; Freddie Buck, banjoist; Nels Keller, "hot" trumpeter; Jimmie Gillilan, the de luxe trombonist, and all the rest of the favorites are still with Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, as may be clearly distinguished by looking closely at their scenes in "Syncopation," at the Rialto.

Tom Waring is the only one of the old timers missing, he being a "single" in vaudeville these many months come St. Swithin's.

Sorry to turn you down, but my passes to the circus are all gone.

"IN THE PLAYHOUSE"

by JOHN J. DALY

S. E. Cochran offers National Theater Players in "Pigs," a comedy in three acts, by Anne Morrison and Patterson McNutt, staged by Addison Pitt, and scenery by Charles Squires.

THE CAST.

Thomas Atkins, sr., a none too successful lawyer.....Charles Hampden
Tommy Atkins, jr., his younger son.....Roger Pryor
Hector Spencer, his brother-in-law.....Edward Arnold
Grandma Spencer, his mother-in-law.....Adelaide Hibbard
Ellen Atkins, his wife.....Estelle Wentworth
Spencer Atkins, his elder son.....Robert Brister
Mildred Cushing, Junior's unrecognized fiance.....Edith King
Lenore Hastings, just in love most of the time.....Helen Wallace
Smith Hastings, her father..Claus Bogel
Dr. Springer, a veterinary.....Arthur Rhodes

Strange as it may seem, there is a lot of good, clean comedy in "Pigs," which the National Theater Players have elected to stage at the National this week. Only one speck of mud prevents it from being absolutely wholesome all the way through; but, then, it seems too much like quibbling even to recall the love affair of Uncle Hector and Tillie, which serves as another note of comedy in a delectable morsel of theater. "Pigs" is "Pigs."

Built for amusement, pure and simple, "Pigs" is one of those rural comedies that has everything in the world for enjoyment. The action all takes place in a small town. There is, to begin with, the Atkins family—father, mother, and two sons: Spencer, the elder, is following in the footsteps of his shyster-lawyer father; only more so. Spencer is going to give up an unprofitable law practice to write poetry. Tommy Atkins, jr.—called Junior—yearns to be a first class veterinarian. He even goes so far as to try out some of his medicines on a worthless uncle, who hangs around the house doing nothing, and lots of it. Tommy, junior, being in love with Mildred Cushing, and Mildred, even at her youthful age, having intentions of matrimony, intends to go in the pig business—and does. Hence the title. The pigs, at a time when American porkdom is besieged with cholera, turn out A No. 1, and Tommy makes the fortune that lifts the mortgage from the old homestead.

Such is the homely yarn, spun out for all it's worth, with more injections of comedy than the average play ever boasts—and it is turned out as a masterful piece of hilarity by the National Theater Players, with most of the players having the time of their lives. The well-known Charles Hampden plays the father—Pop-pa—and does it handsomely. The newcomer, Miss Estelle Wentworth, brings a lot of elocution to the part of the mother; perhaps too much. Edward Arnold, of the rising risibilities, has his best part in eons, however long that may be, as Uncle Hector who "ain't done right by our Nell," the villain. Mrs. Hibbard is a scream as a mother-in-law in Poppa Atkins' household, cajoling her son Hector. Really, one of the funniest bits of the season. Robert Brister is the poetry-writing-reciting son, Helen Wallace his inamorata, and Arthur Rhodes the old veterinarian.

Thus, having accounted for all but the two principals in the play, the girl and boy, it becomes a pleasant duty to mention the fact that Miss Edith King and Roger Pryor add to their laurels by the naturalness invoked for this piece. They play in excellent taste and manner. To them, honor and glory!

"Pigs" is far from being sty stuff.

Air-Rail Service Across Continent Begins July 1

Columbus, Ohio, May 20 (A.P.).—Officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., announced here today that their transcontinental air-rail service with the Pennsylvania Railroad would be started July 1. Practice flights will be started June 15 so that fliers will be acquainted with their routes and equipment.

The air-rail system will permit travelers from New York or Pennsylvania trains to transfer to planes here and be carried to the West. The planes will carry 10 passengers each. Two will be operated daily from Columbus and two will arrive here daily. Meals will be served on the planes while in flight.

Toronto Servant, Lonely, Phones London; Toll $50

Toronto, May 20 (A.P.).—In Canada only a week, an English domestic employed in a local household, became depressed through loneliness and put through a long distance telephone call to her folks in London, England.

The toll, which amounted to approximately $50, will be deducted from her wages. She has been warned by her employer that further telephone calls to England are taboo.

THE RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright protected. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

TRACKING A "TRICKSTER" TO TENNESSEE.

CHAPTER THREE.

Getting Next to Boston Ben.

In the second chapter the Bradys interview Mrs. McNally, whose husband has mysteriously disappeared. Harry gets some inside information from police headquarters about Boston Ben. The Bradys then leave for Tennessee on the trail of McNally and Benjamin Bloomer.

Old King Brady's judgment proved to be correct and Harry was convinced that they were on the right track. Soon after breakfast they called on the chief of the Knoxville police, who was immediately interested.

"If the men you describe came to Knoxville we can soon find out, but their nearest route to Cutts Creek would have been through Wheeling," he informed Old King Brady. "My man at the station will tell me at once."

"We will meet you there,' said the old detective. "There is just about time to make the train for Cumberland Gap. I will be in disguise, so you may have a little difficulty in recognizing me."

"A word will be sufficient," said the chief, and the two detectives hastily returned to the hotel.

Here Old King Brady made up as J. A. Spalding once more, and Harry prepared to pose as his son.

At the station they were informed that the men they were looking for had left Knoxville at midnight. Old King Brady questioned the station detectives and felt sure the man made no mistake. So the Bradys started for the Cumberland Mountains.

Just before their train pulled out, another from Washington came into the station. "Keep an eye out for Boston Ben, Harry," said the old detective.

"Don't need to," chuckled Harry, who was staring out of the window, "for there he is now."

"By jove, you are right. And the woman, too! Look! They are headed straight for this train," and Old King Brady showed a little excitement. "They are taking the car behind us."

"Old King Brady produced a newspaper while Harry departed to the next car. In a few minutes Boston Ben came into the smoker and sat down in the seat directly in front of Old King Brady.

"Come, we are getting on," thought the old detective. "Strange that I should be brought up against this man after so many years."

Boston Ben produced a cigar and was fumbling for a match when Old King Brady passed his match-safe over the back of the seat.

"At your service, sir, if you wish them," he said, thankful that he had decided to adopt his disguise.

"Thank you," said the man, lighting his cigar.

"Can you tell me at what time we should reach Cumberland Gap?" inquired the detective, who reflected that the question would start Boston Ben to thinking. "In a moment he will be trying to cultivate my acquaintance in order to find out why I am going there," he said to himself.

And so it proved. Boston Ben fidgeted about his seat for a little, and then turned to the detective. "Are you acquainted at Cumberland Gap?" he inquired.

"Not at all," replied the detective, blandly. "Are you?"

"I have been there before. Are you from Boston, too?"

"No; I belong in the West; but I am seeking investments in Tennessee." The shrewd old detective threw out the word "investments" as another bait.

Boston Ben not only bit, but swallowed the bait, hook and all.

"I know Senator Dingwell very well. You could not find a better man to point out the chances for investments in this State," he said. "Would you like to be introduced to the senator?"

"I certainly would."

"You may have the chance, then, if you are intending to stay in Cumberland Gap any length of time."

"I am not at all pressed for time. My son and I are looking up the mineral resources of this section of the country. I made a fortune in the West and sold out. But I find I am not content to sit idly down and enjoy my money, so if I can find a mine to suit me in the Cumberland Mountains I am prepared to invest heavily."

"May I inquire your name, sir?"

"Certainly. My name is Spalding—and yours?"

"Bohrman, Benjamin Bohrman. Pleased to make your acquaintance, Mr. Spalding," said Ben blandly.

"The same here," replied the detective, who thought to himself, "If he heard the name from Bloomer, it ought to come out."

But Boston Ben showed no familiarity with the name of Spalding. He began to talk mines, dwelling particularly on the coal resources of east Tennessee.

"Is there any possibility that I may meet the senator soon in Cumberland Gap?" said Old King Brady, returning to the charge again.

"Well, not at the Gap," replied Ben, "his home is at Cutt's Creek, near by. If he is there now, I could introduce you. I am going there direct from the train."

"Then I may decide to join you there," said Old King Brady.

A sudden jolt interrupted the conversation as the wheels of the car left the track and began bumping over the rails. In an instant the car rolled over an embankment and landed on its side. Boston Ben dragged Old King Brady from between the seats and they crawled out through a window—unharmed. Old King Brady noticed Harry helping a woman out of the rear car. It was Boston Ben's companion. They rushed about rendering what help they could to the injured passengers and then later met and were duly introduced to the woman.

"What do you say—shall we go on to Cutt's Creek?" asked Old King Brady, turning to Harry.

"It is for you to say, father," replied Harry, dutifully.

"I think I will accompany you, Mr. Bohrman," said the detective.

"Good!" replied the crook. "I will speak to the conductor and see how much of a walk it is back to Dunk's Mills."

"I will go with you to the conductor," said Old King Brady. Looking at Harry he said: "My son can remain here and look after your wife." He thought the woman would have something to say if left alone—and he was right. They had no sooner departed than Mrs. Bohrman began to talk to Harry.

"Don't go," she said in a low voice. "You are a stranger to me and I shan't speak again. But I warn you now, once and for all, don't go, and don't let your father go."

Harry's answer to the woman was an engaging smile. "What is there to fear?"

"I do not want to say more. I don't want to see you get into trouble, that's all. I know these mountains well, and this is a dangerous trail," the woman answered quickly.

"But you don't tell me what the danger is—I confess I am curious to know."

"Then I'll tell you—the trail my husband proposes to follow is a moonshiner's trail. These people hate strangers, and if we should happen to encounter them it would mean death."

Just then Boston Ben and Old King Brady returned with the news that it was only 3 miles to Dunk's Mills, and they decided to walk it. Ben led the way down the track, walking with his wife. The Bradys kept a little behind.

"What did she say to you?" queried the detective.

"She warned me not to go. Danger from moonshiners," replied Harry. "Do you think Ben suspects us?"

"No. We are well made up. He thinks I have money and he intends to work me for all I am worth."

After they had gone a little distance Boston Ben and his wife fell back and joined in the conversation. He was a well-informed man and able to converse on all ordinary subjects. The woman had very little to say.

They found Dunk's Mills consisted of a hotel, station and four dwelling houses. No trace of the mill was left. Boston Ben knew the hotel proprietor and had no difficulty in getting saddle horses for the party.

As they neared the final rise in the mountains Boston Ben sprang the proposition which Old King Brady had been waiting for.

"Do you see that column of smoke way up there on the mountain-side, Mr Spalding?" he asked.

"I do—I suppose it means moonshine," said Old King Brady.

"You bet, and moonshine means money, old man."

"Show me the money, and I am ready as the next man to snap my fingers at the law, providing it is safe. But I don't care to start a moonshine still in these mountains," retorted Old King Brady.

"Indeed, you wouldn't. If you were to do it your life would not be worth 3 cents. But—how deep are you willing to go in? Could you raise $50,000, for instance?"

"Easily," replied the detective. "I could raise a hundred thousand."

"Well, then, here goes. Up in these mountains there lies hidden 5,000 barrels of whisky which has not seen the light of day for 45 years. It will take a fortune to buy it—but another can be made by landing it in Louisville free of duty. That part is my secret. It will cost $20 a barrel but can be sold for a great deal more."

"Heavens, man, you take my breath away."

"Well, the story of it is this: At the breaking out of the Civil War the senator's father was a moonshiner. Dingwell, anticipating the war, went in heavy for three years previous and actually barreled all this whisky. He hid it in a large cavern. He was killed in a political quarrel at Cutt's Creek earily in '61 his secret dying with him. The senator searched the mountains for the hiding place, but never discovered it. I accidentally discovered it by the merest accident about a month ago."

This then was the wonderful fairy story which had captured the unfortunate McNally! The whole thing was plain enough to Old King Brady. The intention was to lead the would-be investor in this liquid bonanza into the mountains and there hold him until he had paid all that could be wrung out of him. But could it be possible that a man of Senator Dingwell's social and political standing would lend himself to such a scheme?

Another chapter in this serial masterpiece is in tomorrow's paper. Don't miss it. Old King Brady is after Bad Man Brown.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

YOU NEVER CAN TELL BY THE PHONE CONVERSATION.

She—Hello, is this you, dear?

He—Yes. Why so excited?

She—She's much worse since you left. I'm really alarmed.

He—I think you're unduly disturbed, dear, but tell me what's happened?

She—I can't get her up at all now.

He—Hasn't she been up at all?

She—Not at all, except for a minute and she went right back again. She acts awfully strange. I've never seen her like that.

He—Perhaps she's just tired. She was up late last night, you know.

She—Yes, but it can't be that. She's really sick. I'm positive there's something radically wrong with her.

He—How's her tongue?

She—She won't let me look at it. That's another thing; she never acts like that ordinarily.

He—Is she in bed now?

She—Certainly. Just lying there in a sort of stupor or trance. Don't you think I should call the doctor?

He—How about breakfast? Did she eat anything?

She—No, I got up a nice breakfast of just the things she loves but she wouldn't touch it. Now you know when she acts that way there is something to be worried about. I'm really dreadfully distressed. It might be pneumonia, you know.

He—Has she a fever?

She—Of course she has. I thought I told you that in the first place.

He—Well just watch her a while and phone me later. There's no use getting upset yet.

She—Of course you wouldn't get upset. That's just like a man. The poor dear is lying there sick and perhaps with a critical illness. She may be dying, and yet you say watch her a while. You just haven't any heart. You're insensitive to suffering. You're cruel. You're * * *

He—Oh, all right, get a doctor. Get Wymess, the specialist. You've got me wrong, dear. I just thought it would be all right to wait until noon. I'm just as fond of that dog as you are!

MORE BAD NEWS.

Well, the worst has happened; even the animated cartoons have become "talkies." This definitely removes moving pictures from the world of entertainment and places them among the world's major disturbances.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

UNATTAINED.

There is glory to be gained,
There are great deeds to be done,
There are goals still unattained,
Waiting some courageous one.
What was finished yesterday
Merely paves tomorrow's way.

Growing old is growing tired,
Strength of purpose almost spent.
No new conquest is desired,
With the past is Age content.
Only they stay young who see
That their best can better be.

Now men write their books anew,
Now the scientists appear
Following some shadowy clue
With discoveries every year.
Always keen and eager youth
Ventures out in search of truth.

Glory is tomorrow's prize,
Ere another year has flown
Light shall flash before men's eyes
Which the world has never known.
Every distant goal that's won
Urges youth to venture on.

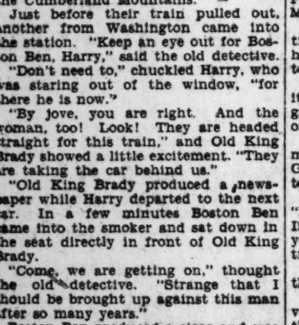
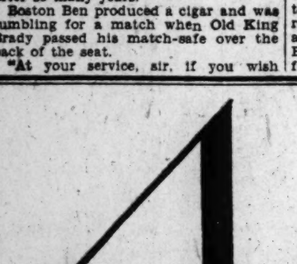
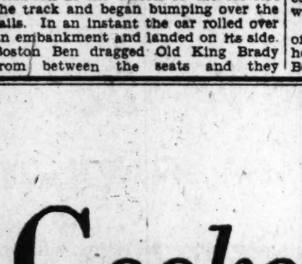
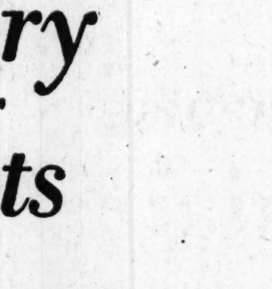
4 Cookery Experts rediscover a lost Art







They decide by unanimous vote, after exhaustive tests, in favor of sugar and small amount of water in cooking vegetables.



FOUR well-known cooking experts recently conducted a series of unique tests in a kitchen high up in a New York skyscraper. The purpose of the tests was to decide, that every person in the United States might know, the most delicious of all ways for cooking vegetables.

Numerous of these healthful foods were cooked: 1. With liberal water without sugar. 2. With little water and no sugar. 3. Liberal water with sugar. 4. Little water with sugar. In every case, when the vote was taken, liberal water without sugar lost, and in every case little water with sugar won.

What a simple discovery this is, and yet how far-reaching it can be. It means that children and adults can be encouraged to eat enough of the vitamin and mineral-bearing vegetables, because a small amount of sugar makes them more palatable.

Eminent medical and scientific authorities are warning the people of the United States that extreme dieting for slimness has gone too far. The health of young girls is being endangered by undernutrition, and the health of thousands of women and men is being permanently injured. Health in diet comes from eating good foods, varied foods, flavored to please the taste. Sugar used judiciously in their preparation makes cereals, fruits, vegetables and meats more enjoyable. It acts as a harmonizer of other condiments and develops the natural, appetizing flavors of the foods.

Sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. It is also the cheapest nutriment that comes to the table. Remember cakes and cookies, ice creams, candies or stewed fruits for dessert. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute, 129 Front Street, New York.

Television Is 20 Years Off, Says Expert

Owner of Radio Sets Need Fear No Immediate Displacement, A. F. Carroll States; How Noise Is Made in Broadcasting.

Television can not be counted upon as entertainment for at least a decade, according to A. F. Carroll, of the Carroll Electric Co.

A great deal is being said about visual broadcasting, but the public must realize that television is only in the "crystal stages" at the present time. The largest image actually broadcast is about 1½ inches square, and when magnified shows clearly the coarse 30-degree screen.

"This was brought home to me," Carroll said, "when I talked with Joseph D. R. Freed, radio pioneer and head of the Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation, which we represent in this territory. Mr. Freed had just made application for two television channels from their New Jersey plant."

The Washingtonian declared that Freed believed it would be at least a decade before the problems that television has to solve would be met, and that even then the actual televisor would be incomplete without a radio receiver as an adjunct.

"In other words, a prospective purchaser of a radio set today need not fear that the set he buys will be quickly outmoded by a televisor, but can be assured that no matter how quickly television arrives upon the scene his radio set will be an important portion of the visual broadcast receiver," Mr. Carroll continued. "The Freed-Eisemann Radio Corporation has already, in conjunction with the Charles Freshman Co., Inc., started its experimental work with a special engineering department that will develop televisors. Actual sight broadcasts will be sent forth every day if the commission grants Mr. Freed's application for the television channels."

Practically all of the noise-making devices used to imitate various sounds on the stage were found to be all wrong for the radio. The little whistles that give realistic bird twitterings from the wings of the stage sounded hoarse over the microphone. A bottle broken in front of a microphone did not sound like breaking glass to radio listeners. It was the same with almost every sound effect.

However, many of these defects have been corrected by Harry Edison, chief percussionist of the National Broadcasting Co. His most famous invention was the imitation of a roar of an airplane.

Edison used a twelve-horsepower motor. To its shaft he attached a heavy wooden block and to this block are screwed heavy straps of leather. Then toms-toms were attached to a frame so that they would be struck by the revolving straps. The motor going at full power reproduces realistically the roar of an airplane. When Lindbergh returned to America Edison was on the air sixteen hours running his "airplane" between every program.

Reports from approximately 20 per cent of the 39,159 radio dealers queried in the April 1, 1929, quarterly survey of stocks in dealers' hands, conducted by the Department of Commerce in cooperation with the radio division of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, showed a volume of business of $25,540,245 for the first quarter of this year, or an indicated total retail sales volume of $132,000,000.

Indicated total retail sales volume figures for the January 1, 1929, and October 1, 1928, quarterly surveys are placed at $186,000,000 and $96,000,000, respectively.

The average volume of business per dealer reporting for the first quarter of 1929 was $3,370, as compared with $5,700 for the last quarter of 1928.

The dealers reported 139,347 electric sets and 15,623 battery sets sold during January, February and March, 1929. The average volume of business per set sold amounted to $165, as compared with $158 per set for the last three months of 1928.

Sixty per cent of the total replies, which originated in the New England, Middle Atlantic and East North Central States, showed that 59 per cent of the total business reported for the United States was consummated there.

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

An attractive dress of pale blue georgette with a dark blue painted border and a flower design in dark blue, orange and green, not to mention the blue, yellow and green flowers that end just at the girdle of the frock. (Courtesy of Maison Paul Poiret, Paris.)

ONE of the most charming and popular of Parisian actresses, Huguette ex-Duflos, is not only a talented artist but understands the true Parisian art of costuming herself as do few others.

Her wardrobe attracted wide comment on her recent tour of the Orient. She is appearing now in Paris, and her gowns again are a revelation of true Parisianism.

One of the secrets of her charm of dress is her sure understanding of color. Her own pale blonde coloring demands soft, cool tones, and these she invariably affects.

In her latest play, for example, we find her in the first act in a dress of "dream blue," softly fashioned of voile. In the second act she wears an equally graceful gown of sapphire blue mousseline trimmed in ermine, and on her third appearance she is magnificent in a gown of midnight blue crepe de chine, with a pattern of gray.

All these are not only lovely in themselves but accord perfectly with the delicate coloring of the star.

The cunningest kitchen lampshades! The nicest modernistic bathroom shades! The daintiest boudoir shades —the smartest studio shades!

All these and ever so many more we tell you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you may send a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post.

Wouldn't you like to relamp-shade your house this spring? If not this spring, you may want to do it some other spring, and then the leaflet won't be available! So——

A truly delightful boutonniere is now made of flat metal discs and peals, real metal, not lame (la-may). It is really a brooch, but is worn on the lapel of tailored suits and dresses.

One does not wear this with the flat metal necklaces that are worn with sports wear and street costumes, but enough is enough, as it were. Worn singly, as the only ornament, it is truly lovely.

Wonders of Liquid Air

HOW many forms can water take? It is easy to think of several. Water may be a liquid. It may be frozen into a block of ice, or turned into snowflakes, frost or hail. It becomes a gas when it is turned into steam by boiling.

Roses, after being dipped in liquid air, become hard and brittle and may be ground to powder.

The air we breathe is made up of gases, chiefly oxygen and nitrogen.

It may be hard to think of air being turned into a liquid, but that has been done. The result is known as "liquid air."

Liquid air is very, very cold. In fact, it is 325 degrees below zero! If you put your finger in the liquid and pull it out right away, there will be no damage; but let your finger remain in liquid air for five minutes and there will be no finger left!

So don't hold your finger in liquid air! It would be as bad as holding it in a flame.

I have watched liquid air when it was poured from a bottle. When it came into an open container, it bubbled and boiled.

Liquid air is made by machines which use common air. The air is put under great pressure, and is made to flow through coils of copper pipe. Heat is thus taken out of the air, and the final result is a steel-blue liquid.

If roses are dipped in liquid air, the petals become very hard. Then they can be scraped and powdered almost like chalk.

If a piece of iron is soaked in liquid air, it will become brittle and can be easily crushed.

If meat, eggs or fruit are dipped in liquid air, they become hard. That is because meat, eggs and fruit contain water.

You may wonder how liquid air can be kept in a bottle, since heat might come into it from outside. The fact is that it would warm up if kept in a common bottle or jar. The custom is to keep liquid air in a sort of thermos bottle. The thermos bottle has a double wall which prevents heat from passing either way. You can keep coffee hot in a thermos bottle; you can also use such a bottle for keeping water cold.

Play of 60 Years Ago on Air Tonight

"Under the Gaslight" of Civil War Days on WRC at 8, Forrester to be Villain; Popular Songs Offered in Whiteman Hour.

A flash back to our stage as it was in the days of the carpetbaggers is always interesting, if only to show what vast progress American dramatists have made. The "Unhand Me, Sir!" type of play was what knocked them stiff in the sixties. Actors wore beards as dense as duck blinds. Actresses were not supposed to have legs.

The radio audience will hear a revival of one of these dramatic oddities of the sixties. "Under the Gaslight," that famous old thriller of Civil War days, will feature the Eveready Hour program at 8 o'clock from WRC. This play was first seen on the stage August 12, 1867, at the New York Theater.

Frederick Forrester, star of "White Cargo" and "Cobra," will be before the microphone as the mustached villain of Daly's play and a large company of Eveready Hour players will support him in the revival.

One of the great scenes of "Under the Gaslight" is where Laura, the delicate heroine, breaks out of a warehouse with an axe just in time to drag the boy friend from the thundering wheels of an express train. This hair-raiser and all other actions of the play will be reproduced exactly as in the original. The musical numbers, including such jewels as "The Man on the Flying Trapeze" and "The Baggage Coach Ahead," which were also in the original play, will be rendered by Nathaniel Shilkret and the Eveready Orchestra.

A short talk by Gov. John H. Trumbull, of Connecticut, to be followed by a Soconyland sketch, depicting the dramatic story of the famous Charter Oak, will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock from WRC.

A new St. Louis version of the old "St. Louis Blues," which has probably undergone more musical arranging than any other current composition, will be presented by Gene Rodemich, the new conductor of the Prophylactic Orchestra, at 7:30 o'clock.

An adventure of the war days of 1917, when Capt. Jimmy Morton was kept prisoner aboard a German submarine, will be recreated in the broadcast of "Harbor Lights" at 9:30 o'clock.

"The Jones Law" will be the subject for discussion during the Voters' Service period at 6 o'clock from WRC.

The voice of Johnny Marvin, popular vocalist, will be carried from coast to coast through WJZ, WBAL and a network of stations, at 9:30 o'clock tonight during the Orchestradians period.

The following program has been announced for the Paul Whiteman hour at 8 o'clock, from WMAL:

"California, Here I Come," "Hello, Frisco," "When I First Met Kate by the Golden Gate," medley of "There's a Song in My Heart," "Yours Sincerely' and "Why Cant I?" waltz medley of "I'm Sorry Dear,' "Evangeline," "Oh Sweetheart Where Are You Tonight?" "Red Hair and Freckles,' "Oh! Miss Hannah," "When Dreams Come True," "It's Orange Blossom Time," "Hallelujah," "Mean to Me," "Laughing Marionettes;" medley of "I Can't Give You Anything but Love," "I Never Know," "Tea for Two," "Margy" and "Lady of the Evening," "Avalon Town," "I Heard You Singing," "Shy Little Violets" and "Stars and Stripes."

A tone journey, describing life on the Mississippi River, will be the feature of the program that the United States Navy Band will present at 7:15 o'clock tonight from WMAL. "Mississippi" is specially arranged by Ferdie Grofe. It is divided into four parts, and, in describing life on this river, is built around such subjects as "Father of Waters," "Huckleberry Finn," "Old Creole Days" and "Mardi Gras."

Other selections of note by the Navy Band will include "Wotan's Farewell" and the "Fire Music" from the "Walkure;" Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody" and excerpts from Friml's "The Three Musketeers."

George Bolet, Cuban pianist, a pupil of the Curtis Institute of Music, will be heard in a recital at 9 o'clock tonight. He is only 14 years old, and is building a fine reputation. Fiorenzo Tasso, Italian tenor, pupil of Emilio di Gogorzo, will also be heard in this broadcast.

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase Girls Glee Club will be presented from WOL at 8 o'clock tonight. Howard Green, pianist, and Estelle Hunt Dean, pianist, are also scheduled during the early evening hours.

WJSV will present a recital of the Jefferson School pupils, directed by Christine E. Monogue, at 9 o'clock tonight, followed by the Columbia Trio and Silver String Revelers.

The following is today's "Misplayed Hand."

South Declarer, contract No Trump; West led the Jack of Diamonds. North won with the singleton King and led a small Club. East playing small. South's singleton Queen won and Declarer then put North (dummy) in with the Spade King. He next tried to drop the Ace of Clubs by leading the Ten from dummy, but East held it up a second time and West won with the Jack. West continued Diamonds, South won and put dummy in with the King of Hearts. It being obviously useless to establish the Clubs without an entry in dummy to cash them, he attempted to make game by returning the Spade from dummy and finessing the Jack. When this finesse lost, West led another Diamond and Declarer's winnings were limited to two Spades, two Hearts, three Diamonds and one Club—total, eight tricks.

Was this hand played correctly?

The Correct Play.

Declarer, winning the first trick with Dummy's Diamond King, should appreciate that there were but two more entries in dummy and, as he probably would lose two Club tricks, he would need both of them—one to get in again to establish his Clubs, and the second to get in and cash them. He could not afford, therefore to win the first Club trick in the Closed Hand; he should have led the King of Clubs from dummy to trick 2. Whether East played the Ace would be immaterial. If he did, the adversaries would win the first Club trick and the suit would be within one trick of establishment: if he did not, dummy would win the first Club trick and the adversaries would win the second with the Jack. The result would be the same. Dummy would get in to establish his Clubs and again to cash them; so played, Declarer would make two Spades, two Hearts, three Diamonds and four Clubs—three more tricks than were made in the play as first described.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

MAY 21.

IMPORTANT reforms in the prison system of Great Britain, France and Germany were made as a result of the work done by Elizabeth Fry, born this day, 1780. She was one of the most noted of English philanthropists and reformers.

Mabel Taliaferro, the famous American actress, was born this day, 1887. In 1903 the actress was engaged for the part of Lovey Mary in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," a part which she played for more than 500 performances. She was succeeded in the part by her younger sister, Edith, also a famous actress.

Miss Taliaferro achieved her greatest success in "Polly of the Circus." Other plays in which she took the leading role were, "Alice In Wonderland," "The Piper," "Luck In Pawn," "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," "The Banker's Wife," "Young Wisdom," "Ingomar," and "The Land of Heart's Desire."

Other famous women born this day include Countess Mary of Cork and Orrey, 1746; Queen Catherine Paulovna of Wurtemburg, 1788; Rosa Miller Avery, American antislavery writer, 1830, and Anna C. Brackett, American educator, 1836.

What Today Means to You

May 21.

"TAURUS."

IF May 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you are from 8 a. m. to 9:35 a. m.; from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 11 p. m.; the danger periods are from 12 noon to 2 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

There will be a tendency May 21 toward garrulousness, and it would be well to remember that "who speaks, sows; who listens, reaps," and not become one of the sowers. Do not form hasty judgments.

Children born on May 21 will have strong characters and will be sufficient unto themselves. They will have a strong sense of logic, will be methodical and industrious. Nature and the country will make a strong appeal to them.

You lead rather an aimless life, and life needs its blue prints more than any building. If your girlhood or boyhood dreams have fallen short of the mark in realization, it is hard because you have not been the architect of your destiny, and until you are you will never see the towers of success rise. You leave altogether too much to luck, and this illusive god is often innocently blamed for your own shortcomings.

Your mental attitude is wrong, and its effect is not good upon those who come in contact with it. You are lacking in self-confidence and your self-diffidence is met with distrust. The world accepts you at your own rating—your present value is self-fixed, and it can be self-changed if you so desire. Learn to recognize your actual and potential values and strive to raise your price!

You have within you all the power that you will ever need, and you should seek to develop an environment in which you may unfold and put that power to use. You possess good business ability, an your forte is in a business or commercial field. When you curb your impatience, you are a very accurate executant. Neatness characterizes both you and your work.

Successful People Born May 21.

STOCK LIST REACTS AFTER LIVELY RISE

O'Fallon Ruling Causes Swift Upswing in Rails—Industrials Suddenly Sag.

BEARS STAGE LATE DRIVE

New York May 20 (A.P.).—The stock market leaped forward with the announcement of the decision in the St. Louis & O'Fallon case today only to miss its footing in its haste and suffer the worst spill since late March. The rails surged up about 2 to more than 20 points only to lose much of their gains in the late collapse as a wide assortment of prominent industrials tumbled from 2 to 20 points.

The erratic conduct of the market reflected the state of nerves which has developed from the unstable condition of credit. Although call money was officially at 7 per cent all day and available in the outside market at 6 for a time, time money still held at the highest rate in years, and the American Acceptance Council reported a drop in outstanding acceptances of $94,138,171 during April, the largest reduction since its records have been compiled, definitely indicating that the acceptance business is suffering from high rates.

There was little to account for the market's abrupt break save that traders unloaded industrials to buy rails, and became frightened with the consequent drop in the industrials. The action of the market was particularly confusing as its violent gyrations all took place in the last hour.

Heralded as Bull Development.

The O'Fallon decision, appearing on the news tickers at about 2 o'clock, was at once heralded as the greatest bull development of the year. The list generally had exhibited an easing tendency since the opening, but started upward along with the rails.

The industrials soon began to sag, however, and when it was disappointingly evident that no major bull movement was getting under way, the bear element apparently found the time opportune to launch a concerted drive.

In addition to the clean cut decision in the O'Fallon case, which, it is estimated in rail circles, may eventually result in an increase in rail valuations of as much as $20,000,000,000, Wall street was treated to a number of favorable news developmnets, including the resumption of dividends by Goodyear at the annual rate of $5, increasing the Kennecott annual dividend rate to $5 from $4, payment of an extra of 50 cents by Dupont and of $1 by R. H. Macy, and a two-for-one split-up by Warner Brothers.

Market Remains Professional.

The day's turnover totaled but 3,811,750 shares, indicating that the market remained for the most part a professional affair. The Associated Press index of 50 industrials dropped 7 points, as compared to 6.6 on March 25, at the time of the severe call money crisis, and the index of 20 utilities dropped 5.3 points both today and on that date. The 20 rails, however, moved up 1.9 points today, in contrast to a drop of 2.2 on March 25.

Chesapeake & Ohio led the upturn in the rails with a jump of 22½ points to 220, but it fell back to 208. Frisco mounted 14½ points to 125, only to slip back to 115. New York Central sold up 12½ points, and dropped 10 points from the top. Norfolk & Western, Rock Island and Atchison also made wide gains, much of which were lost. New Haven actually dropped nearly 2 points below Saturday's close.

A few specialties made some headway, with Sparks Withington shooting up 15 points more to a new top at 275.

Slump in General Electric.

General Electric, which was rushed up to a record price at 295 last week, broke 21½ points to 270½, and closed at 272. The Advance Rumely issues tumbled about 7 and 8 points each to within a fraction of their 1929 lows. Such issues as American Can, Anaconda, Curtiss Aero, Auburn Auto, Du Pont, Goodyear, Johns Manville, Kennecott, Radio, Chrysler, Packard and United Aircraft dropped about 5 to 10 points. General Motors sagged about 2 points to 78½, within a point of its 1929 low.

The commodities were generally firmer. Wheat futures mounted 1 to 1½ cents on a decrease in the visible supply, and corn turned upward on unfavorable weather. Cotton mounted 75 cents to $1 a bale on reports of rains and floods in the South, but lost its gain in profit taking.

Foreign exchanges were extremely dull because of the Whitsuntide holiday abroad. Sterling cables held steady at $4.85.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—After showing considerable strength during today's earlier trading, owing to unfavorable weather reports, the cotton market reacted under realizing in the late trading. July contracts, which had advanced to 18.99, declined to 18.82 and closed at 18.85, with the general market closing barely steady net 7 points higher to 3 points lower. Old crop positions showed net advances of 7 points, while the new crop months were 1 point higher to 6 points lower.

The market opened firm at an advance of 6 to 13 points on reports of rains in the western and central belts over the week-end. Realizing was encountered on the advance, but it was absorbed by a continuation of the buying movement, which included a considerable trade demand for near months and a commission house demand for the later deliveries. The further rains reported over the week-end appared to increase apprehensions that some low land in the Mississippi Valley would remain flooded too long to permit of planting this season. This idea, as well as the unfavorable weather for field work, contributed to the advance, which extended to 19.79 for May and 19.06 for December contracts, or about 15 to 22 points net higher.

While the unfavorable weather and crop advices were considered chiefly responsible for the advance, old crop months were relatively firm. There appeared to be some trade buying of May, possibly to fix prices for mills, while spot houses bought July.

The demand for later deliveries was attributed to covering or rebuying by recent sellers, while there was also some local and commission house buying which may have reflected increased nervousness over the new crop outlook. Such buying power as was set in motion by the weather news, however, appeared to have been supplied on the advance, and when some of the early buyers started to take profits there was not a great deal of demand in evidence. December broke to 18.85, while May sold off to 19.62, or about 17 to 21 points from the high level of the day in the late trading. The close was a few points up from the lowest on covering.

Owing to the holidays abroad the futures markets at Liverpool, Bremen and Havre were closed. Business will be resumed in the Liverpool market tomorrow.

Prospects for rather better weather in the South probably increased the disposition to take profits in the late trading here.

Exports today, 5,817, making 7,547,539 so far this season. Port receipts, 9,624. United States port stocks, 1,193,407.

HAPLESS NATS IN NEW YORK FOR TWO TWIN BILLS

6,000 Watch U. S. Net Aces Score

Tilden-Hunter Team and Hunter-Wills Win at Paris.

Borotra Takes Court After Crowd Demands His Appearance.

By J. E. ANGLY
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

PARIS, May 20 (A.P.).—With only doubles on display for the early customers, the French hard courts tennis championships opened today with the triumphant appearance of favorites before a holiday crowd of 6,000, a third of them vacationists from England and tourists from America. The latter had the pleasure of seeing their old and new champions bowl over continental opponents under a beaming May-time sun.

Big Bill Tilden, staging another comeback, was his old-time self again. Paired with Francis T. Hunter he quickly eliminated two Nordic blondes from Denmark, Rasmussen and Nielson, by scores of 6—0, 6—1, 6—0.

An hour later, bare-legged Helen Wills stepped upon the center court where twenty photographers heralded her appearance, then paired with Hunter to win in straight sets from the French pair, Mlle. Doris Metaxa and S. Glasser, 6—3, 6—3. Mlle Metaxa is not yet 16 years old, and though she has been in junior championships and has won them, this was her first appearance before so large a crowd. She was too stage struck to be of much help to her partner.

Crowd Piqued at Attempt of Borotra to Postpone Match.

The only Americans to lose were Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, a champion over two decades ago, and Miss Marjorie Morrill, of Boston, member of the most recent tennis generation. They were defeated by the younger and nimbler combination of Miles. Amaury and Adamoff, 9—7, 6—3, but only after as keen a contest as the scores indicate.

The only French star scheduled for the center court on the opening day was Jean Borotra, one of the champion Davis Cup musketeers, and he was of a mind to be temperamental. He wished to put off his appearance until tomorrow, but the Gallic element among the spectators, determined to see what they had paid for, demanded his appearance and got it.

In the cool of the evening the announcer informed the galleries that Borotra and his partner, Senora Lili d'Alvarez, would not play as scheduled today, but would be on view tomorrow. The Anglo-Saxon portion of the crowd swallowed the sad news complacently, but not so the French.

Dreaded Whistling Chorus Changes Star's Mind.

They began to howl and in a few moments some one spotted Borotra sitting as big as you please up in the special players stands. Then the crowd began to whistle—which is just what happened back in 1789 before the French Revolution burst into flames.

In seconds, it seemed, the Bounding Basque bounced out of his seat, hurried downstairs, slipped on his "ice cream" trousers, and raced onto the court. He didn't even have time to grab his famous beret and spent part of his energy during the first set trying to keep his long pompadour in place. Somebody brought him a close-fitting Basque headpiece between sets, of which there were but two. Playing brilliantly, Borotra and Senorita d'Alvarez eliminated the Franco-Russian team of Mme. Michel Bernard and M. Magaloff, 6—2, 6—2, and the customers were satisfied.

Eastern League Team Defeats Yankees, 3 to 2

New Haven, Conn., May 20.—The New Haven Team of the Eastern League today defeated the slugging New York Yankees in an exhibition game here, 3 to 2. Both Sherrid, of the American League club, and Kamp, of the local team, pitched effectively.

Boxing Has Lost Its Lure, Dempsey Done With Ring, He Again Informs World

By EDWARD J. NEIL,
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, May 20 (A.P.).—Stretched out in a barber's chair while a razor fought with his blue-black beard and a manicurist clipped his nails, Jack Dempsey blew the lather from his lips today and declared without reservation that he is farther away than ever from another ring comeback.

As forcefully as a man could say it, the former heavyweight king declared that the retirement he announced after Gene Tunney whipped him for the second time in Chicago still stands. More so now than ever. The ring had lost its lure, fighting days are behind him, and a new career stretches ahead.

As the barber rubbed Jack's face with perfumed lotion, the big fellow winced. Working out in a gym here last week "to keep my clothes fitting," Dempsey damaged a vertebrae in his neck. The neck is stiff and painful and he plans to have X-Ray pictures.

Would Be "Fine Sap" to Fight Again, He Says.

"What a fine sap I'd be to ever fight again," he said as the barber chided a "big strong fellow like you" for jumping when his neck was twisted. "I've got a million dollars and that's enough. If Gene Normile, my former manager, said in Reno that he had an agreement with me for another fight, he was all wrong. We are mixed up in a proposition together, but it doesn't involve boxing.

"Almost every day I receive offers of one kind or another to fight again. I answer them all the same way, thanking them for the offer, but saying that I have no plans for getting into the ring again.

"Of course, if some one came along with a bona fide offer for $1,000,000, I'd have to consider it seriously, if some one offered to make it worth my while for me to start training, and find out if I could get in shape again. I'd have to think that over, too.

Expects No Offers to Fight for a Million.

"There have been no million-dollar offers and I don't expect any. Even if one did come, I'm not so sure but that I wouldn't refuse it after all. I'm a promoter now and have a mass of theatrical offers. I'll never fight again."

Would Be "Fine Sap" to Fight Again, He Says.

Reports that Dempsey had decided to return to the ring have been piling up within the past few days Shortly after visiting Dempsey here, Normile announced in Reno that the former champion would box again in Agua Caliente, Mexico, for a million-dollar purse. Humbert J. Fugazy, Dempsey's partner in promotion, declared several days ago that Jack would battle the winner of the Paulino Uzcudun-Max Schmeling fight here this fall.

Yankee Stadium Disaster Recalls Rickard's "Luck"

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The stampede in the right field bleachers at the Yankee Stadium in which a young girl and a middle-aged teamster were trampled to death is a reminder of the disasters that never happened at the old Madison Square Garden and in the pine arena at Boyles Thirty Acres in Jersey City, although Tex Rickard gambled with panic almost at evens.

At the old Garden Tex closed off some of the exit doors in order to keep the gate crashers out. The man trap at Jersey City was overbuilt, which is to say that in order to hold all the people Rickard's shows could draw it had to be carried much higher than it should have been. So it swayed like a tree house under the stress as the customers rose suddenly at dramatic moments.

Tex Died Ignorant of Luck Attending His Fire Traps.

The ball yard pale on Sunday afternoon began in a good-natured rush to shelter from a sudden gust of rain and the bleacher customers were trapped in a runway of the greatest, and presumably the safest, ball park in the country. Until he built the new Garden, Tex did business in traps and in the case of the old Garden, at least, he magnified the danger from fire and panic by stopping some of the escapes it was cheaper to close them than to police them with trustworthy guards.

The old Garden and the Jersey City kindling box are gone now and Tex died without knowing his luck. A stampede at either place, starting from some cause no more important than the one that set the customers off at the Yankee Stadium would have been something historic. Stampedes start from trivial causes. The disaster on Brooklyn Bridge, which is one of the old standard horrors of New York, was started by a cry of "Pickpockets!" The pickpockets tried to break through the crowd to get away.

That set the people to milling and twenty or so were trampled lifeless.

Fight Promoters Usually Shiftless And Incompetent Showmen.

The panic in the Chicago Coliseum a few months ago in which two people were killed began as a private row between a white customer and a negro while a mixed prizefight was going on in the ring.

In that case, the promoter, Mr. James (Moon) Mullen, was running his bouts after the usual fashion of the shiftless, irresponsible, incompetent showman, which is to oversell the house if possible and turn the customers loose inside to fight the ushers and one another for their seats, and protect themselves at all times. Most prizefight promoters are shiftless, irresponsible and incompetent and most arenas are traps.

Tex was a shiftless fellow and he certainly wasn't bowed down by any sense of responsibility for the lives of his customers, but he was competent and generally handled crowds well. The Philadelphia crowd got away from him in the general dash to get out of the downpour at the end of the first Tunney-Dempsey fight but that was largely due to the indiscipline of the Philadelphia police, who get only $5 a day and have neither the morale nor bearing of self-respecting constabulary.

Squad of Police Convoys One Upper Class Customer.

When the fight was over one squad of policemen fell in around one of Mr. Rickard's upper class customers, a politician of some note who probably was drunk because he usually was drunk, and formed themselves into a flying wedge to convoy the distinguished citizen. I saw several women knocked over the disordered rows of folding church basement chairs and walked upon in the mud as the escort went by. But the whole organization had gone to pieces by then.

The worst trap I know of is the Queensboro Arena on the yonder side of the Fifty-ninth Street Bridge, New York, where there was a dash from the rain one summer night, similar to the one at the Yankees' Park. The rain came on suddenly and there was not only a play of lightning but a great spit of green flame from the contact show of an elevated railway train rounding the curve just above the crowd. The mob, which was an old style prize fight attendance unlike the fastidious devotees of the new Garden, became wedged in a long runway and the press was solid and almost unbearable before the people began to realize that they were in trouble. Then they began to struggle and the crowd in back, with rain dousing them, pushed harder than ever. I don't know how that one happened to end well.

A strong patrol of competent policemen is the best substitute for self-control in a crowd. The people in the region of Broad and Wall streets were out of their wits after the great bomb went off but when the policemen began to hop off the running boards of taxicabs and pop out of the subway exits the disorder abated quickly.

But I suppose architects can't build policemen into their stadiums and good ones cost $8 a day.

Browns Bunch Bingles To Beat White Sox, 6-3

St. Louis, Mo., May 20 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns hit often and timely today and won the opening game of the series with the White Sox, 6 to 3. Manush hit a homer and Blue and Schang each got three singles.

Sam Gray chalked up his fifth victory of the season after three consecutive defeats.

Central High Riflists Win U. S. Title

Capital School Breaks Record in Gaining 3d National Victory.

Western High Fourth; Fresno, Calif., Team Runner-Up.

CENTRAL High School's Rifle Team yesterday was declared winner of the annual national interscholastic team matches held under the auspices of the National Rifle Association. Central scored a total of 2,876 points out of a possible 3,000, exceeding by 24 the total of the Fresno (Calif.) High School Team, which gained second place with 2,852.

In capturing the 1929 title, the Mount Pleasant institution won its third national rifle championship, as in 1924 and 1925 it also led the country. A new record for shooting at the new standard target was set by Central. The old record was established last year by the Fresno team, which took first place with a total of 2,865.

Western High School finished fourth in the tournament, which opened early in April and closed May 15. The total of the Red and White was 2,824. Third place was annexed by the Thomas Jefferson High School Team, of Brooklyn, N. Y., which shot 2,842. Fifth, sixth and seventh places were won, respectively, by Porterville Union High School, Porterville, Calif.; Grover Cleveland High School, St. Louis, Mo., and Ridgewood High School, Ridgewood, N. J.

Victorious Team Coached by Sergt. Shriver of Marines.

The victorious Central Team was coached by Sergt. Ollie Shriver, Marine Corps, retired, who tutored Walter Stokes, former Olympic champion and a graduate of Central High School and George Washington University.

The national interscholastic rifle trophy, emblematic of high school rifle supremacy, will be awarded Central at an early date. Each member of the winning team will receive a silver medal and each member of the second and third place teams will be awarded bronze medals.

Oscar Siegel shot the highest individual score for Central. His total was 580 for the three stages, prone, kneeling and standing. Following are the Central scores:

Danes Defeat Greece In Davis Cup Tennis

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 20 (U.P.)

Greece was eliminated from Davis Cup competition today, being beaten by Denmark in the second round in the European zone. Ulrich of Denmark took the winning match by defeating Zafiropoulo, of Greece, 6—3, 6—4, 6—2. Hendriksen, Denmark, added another victory by defeating Zerlandi, 6—0, 7—5, 6—4.

Johnny Evers Suspended 3 Days After Argument

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Suspension of Johnny Evers, assistant manager of the Boston Braves, for three days for "umpire-baiting" was announced today by President Heydler, of the National League.

Evers had a run-in with Umpire Quigley over the batting order at Boston Saturday in the first game of a double-header with the Giants.

The suspension was effective yesterday so that Evers may be back on the field this Wednesday.

It is the first disciplinary action against the Trojan, who returned to the game this season. In his old days with the Chicago Cubs or with the Braves of 1914, debates with the arbiters were no novelty to Evers.

WHITE HOUSE NET MATCH CANCELED

Wet Courts to Prevent Appearance of U. S. Davis Cup Team.

THE changeable weather of Washington yesterday took a turn for the worse and the disappointment of local tennis fans. The American Davis Cup players, arriving here three days in advance of the zone match with the Japanese, to be staged at Chevy Chase Club, tucked their ohins under their coat collars and returned to Philadelphia. The exhibition matches arranged for today at the White House, in which both the Americans and Japanese were to have appeared, were called off because of wet courts.

The American group was composed of Fitz Eugene Dixon, captain; Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn and John Hennessey. They will work out today on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, weather permitting, or on the private grounds of Dixon, and probably will entrain again for Washington tonight. Whether the exhibitions will be staged tomorrow could not be ascertained last night.

Biggest Tennis Show in History Of Capital Assured.

Joseph W. Wear, chairman of the Davis Cup committee, is due here today from his home in Philadelphia. He will find arrangements completed for the biggest tennis show in Capital history.

Interest in the international match which opens Thursday afternoon has risen to unprecedented heights, according to those in charge. The best opportunity of viewing the players who are seeking to regain the Davis cup for Uncle Sam is the chief magnet. Seating accommodations for 3,000 have been made.

The United States team has been picked to defeat the Orientals with ease. The Yankees' recent overwhelming victory at the expense of Canada has added strength to this forecast.

Dwight W. Davis, donor of the classic trophy which bears his name, will be the official referee, with Abner Y. Leech, jr., of the Columbia Country Club, as active referee. Other officials will be announced probably tomorrow.

Miss Hicks Tops Champ In Metropolitan Tourney

Greenwich, Conn., May 20 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, Hemstead, scoring 84, was a stroke under Maureen Orcutt, White Beeches, defending title holder, in the qualifying round of the Metropolitan women's golf championship today. The former champion took 42 strokes out and the same number in, while Miss Orcutt was out in 44 and back in 41.

Dundee Signed to Fight Fields or Jim McLarnin

Baltimore, Md., May 20 (A.P.)—Signing of a contract for Joe Dundee to defend his welterweight title in a fifteen-round bout in Detroit during the month of July was announced here today on behalf of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Detroit promoter, who obtained the contract.

The promoter said he expected to get Jackie Fields, whom the National Boxing Association recognizes as welter champion for the match, but that if this should fail Jimmy McLarnin would be secured.

It was reported that Dundee's manager, Max Maxman, demurred at first because he had a contract for Dundee to fight either Fields or Mello at Boston, but the Detroit contract was signed after Fitzsimmons had deposited $10,000 in a bank in Baltimore as an evidence of good faith.

Robin Southpaw Hands Giants 6 to 1 Setback

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 20 (A.P.).—Some great pitching today by William Watson Clark, Brooklyn left-hander, turned back the Giants and gave the Robins a 6-to-1 victory in the first game of a three-game series with their Manhattan rivals.

Clark retired the Giant batters in order through eight of the nine innings, faltering only in the fifth to the extent of two hits and a single run. Terry and Jackson singled and Kaufmann followed with a sacrifice fly to bring Terry in from third.

Carl Hubbell started for the Giants but lasted less than three innings. The Robins pounded his delivery for seven hits, to gain a commanding lead of 5 to 0. Ralph Judd relieved him in the third, and held Brooklyn to one run through the rest of the game.

HAINES WINS 14TH GAME IN ROW

Cardinal Ace Defeats Reds, Prolonging 1928 Streak.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 20 (A.P.).—Jess Haines, St. Louis pitcher, won his fourteenth straight National League victory today, defeating the Reds, 5 to 1.

Haines finished the 1928 season with nine consecutive wins and has chalked up five victories so far this season without a reverse.

Swanson, Cincinnati rookie outfielder, stole another base and is leading the major leagues in that capacity with nine thefts. Four singles in the first inning which produced two runs sewed up the game for the Cardinals.

Club's Decline Is Sealing Flag Fate

Weak Hitting, Poor Pitching of Team Is Outstanding.

Hadley and Braxton to Take Mound Today Against Yanks.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

CONSOLED by the undeniable fact that the drop won't be far if they manage to stay in the league, the Nats this morning dragged their five-game losing streak to New York, where they will toss it against a three-game winning stretch of the Yankees in double-headers today and tomorrow.

Continuing their retreat toward the cellar at their present rapid rate, the Nats may be destined to finish the season in one of those leagues under the sea. In the first four of their sixteen consecutive games with the Yankees and the Athletics here last week, the Nats went far in sealing their pennant doom, and the thing may be done irrevocably if the present rapid pace toward the nether regions continues in the battles with the leaders.

Team in Sorry State, Lacking Both Hitting and Pitching.

It was a hapless crew that left for New York in two sections yesterday and last night. Bereft of a pitcher who has gone the route in the last four games and punchless in the pinches on the attack, with hardly a man who can crash the ball to the deep outfield, the Nats have fallen from grace as a pennant contender. Against left-handed pitching of most any sort they have been most submissive and with their present batting order they are destined to encounter as many southpaws as the opposition is able to produce almost without regard to age or skill or previous experience.

Hard put for pitchers with three double headers scheduled in the next three days, Manager Johnson today will rely on Irving Hadley, who pitched eight commendable innings against the Mackmen last week, and Garland Braxton, who is still complaining of a sore arm.

Nats Preserve Streak With Annapolis Game Rained Out.

The rain, which the circus brought, as usual, included the whole Southern section of the country yesterday, including Annapolis, where the Nationals had hopes of breaking their losing streak in an exhibition contest listed with the Midshipmen. As a result, all the Nats drew from their 65-mile auto trip was a lunch at "Uncle Sam's" expense.

This "feed bag" league is one in which they have to take off their caps to nobody and they certainly proved it yesterday, turning in records never before made in the Middies' big mess hall. Johnson's men were slow in starting, as they have been on the diamond this season, being slightly handicapped because of their unfamiliarity with the rules governing the academy. Once under way, however, and every man hit better than .400, even Trainer Mike Martin, who usually passes up the midday meal so as to retain his girlish figure.

Not only the Middies but the Nationals were anxious to play, especially Pitcher Archie Campbell, who has had no chances to start a game this season, and hostilities were not declared off until the last minute.

Liska on Crutches With Damp Weather Retarding Recovery.

The damp weather is doing no favors to the Nationals in another respect, for it is retarding the healing of Pitcher Adolph Liska's sprained left ankle. He was around on crutches yesterday, but declared that the limb was sorer than it has been since injured last week, and there is hardly a chance now that he will be ready to play for at least ten days.

Liska's peculiar style of delivery calls for a slight twist of the ankle now injured and he was mighty blue yesterday. He was being counted upon to hurl in the New York and Philadelphia series, while he also missed a turn in the set here with the A's which was completed Sunday.

TURF LOOKS TO THE BELMONT TO REVEAL CHAMPION

Derby Winner Ineligible For Race

Clyde Van Dusen Not to Meet Group of 3-Year-Old Stars.

Proves Worth in Mud; Naishapur Favored for N. Y. Classic.

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, May 20 (U.P.).—When Col. Bradley, Kentucky sportsman, went out into the rain Saturday afternoon to shake the hand of Clyde Van Dusen, (the trainer, not the derby winner) he said with a wry smile:

"I guess we just can't run in the mud."

By this Lindberghian use of the "we," Col. Bradley referred to his own good colt, Blue Larkspur, which was being led dejectedly away through the downpour with drooping head, while Clyde Van Dusen (the horse, not the trainer) pranced proudly about and tried to shake off a garland of American Beauty roses which were scratching his neck.

Now while this was a fairly sporting alibi for Blue Larkspur's failure, it is axiomatic on the turf that "a good horse will run in anything."

If there had been a mile and a quarter of fiery coals instead of rain water at Churchill Downs on Saturday, the winner would have taken them with that short little stride of his and never asked why.

Blue Larkspur, Dr. Freeland And Naishapur in Belmont.

It was such a day as called for heart above everything else and heart was Clyde Van Dusen's long suit. The plucky little son of Man o' War, who doesn't weigh much over 800 pounds and looks a pony among the equine giants of the derby field, is "all hoss," as they say in Kentucky.

With the victory of Clyde Van Dusen in the storm at Churchill Downs, horsemen now have turned to the forthcoming Belmont Stakes to point the way to the best 3-year-old of the year. They are willing to agree that the little Man o' War gelding is the gamest, but turf experts believe that the Belmont test of 1½ miles on June 8 May produce the year's greatest.

Clyde Van Dusen as gelding is not eligible for the Belmont Stakes. Dr. Freeland, winner of this year's Preakness, will be there, however, and so will Blue Larkspur and Naishapur, Chaffee Earl's great colt.

Naishapur Appears Best Bet After Derby Performance.

If the last named can go a mile and a half, and there is no reason to believe that Naishapur can not, the Western horse looks like the best bet of them all. Turf experts won't agree, but this one is impressive in action. Naishapur was running all over Clyde Van Dusen at the finish of the Derby Saturday, after getting caught in the jumble of thoroughbreds at the head of the stretch.

Naishapur is a colt which can come from behind and never quits.

The Belmont Stakes are regarded as a more exacting test of 3-year-old class than either the Derby or the Preakness, but whatever wins must try conclusions with Clyde Van Dusen once more. There will be a chance later on in the West, where Gardner's horse will remain.

Masons Bowl Tonight In Opening of Tourney

Masonic League bowlers will open their tournament tonight at Convention Hall and continue battling the pins tomorrow, Thursday and Friday nights. Singles, doubles and team events are carded. Practically all of the individuals who competed during the past season will seek a share in the $400 prize fund set aside last fall for the affair. All of the league teams are scheduled to roll.

Women's Pin League May Add Four Teams

Four additional teams likely will be admitted to the Ladies District Duckpin League at its meeting tonight at the Arcade at 8 o'clock, if the new teams are admitted it will be after a hard fight, those opposing their admission claim. Those sponsoring the new teams are confident that they will be admitted.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LILLIAN TOBIN, $61.36, $23.12, $14.14; HELEN KING, $19.22, $12.66; MINAH LOUISE, $9.72.

LILLIAN TOBIN, hard hustled and under hard pressure throughout, saved ground on both turns and, continuing gamely, lasted to hold HELEN KING safe in a drive. Latter, prominent from start, moved up on even terms with winner a sixteenth out, then hung slightly in final seventy yards. MINAH LOUISE came with a good burst of speed through stretch and was going strongest of all at end. MABEL BASIL suffered from lack of racing room SKY HIGH went well. ZADORA MAY stopped suddenly after racing forwardly first quarter.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs; claiming. Purse, $1,300. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:36. Off at 2:41. Winner, E. B. McLean's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVERDALE, $4.10, $2.96, $2.44; CASH PLAY, $5.90, $3.80; FRANK HORAN, $3.26.

SILVERDALE began fast, but was taken back and held under restraint until approaching the turn and, taking a commanding lead, was never in danger thereafter. CASH PLAY ran away three-sixteenths before start, moved up strongly at the head of the stretch and, continuing gamely, gradually wore FRANK HORAN down. Latter had usual early speed, but weakened in the final drive. RELLINE showed a good performance. NICARAGUA began stopping after five-eighths. HOT SHOT, in close quarters first half mile, tired badly after reaching the stretch.

THIRD RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:04. Off at 3:07. Winner, Harned Bros.' br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRE UNDER, $10.28, $3.98, $2.96; PATUXANT, $3.84, $3.06; STARS AND STRIPES, $3.72.

FIRE UNDER improved position steadily on outside, responded gamely when called upon entering stretch and, racing strongly last eighth, gradually wore down PATUXANT. Latter, forward from start, raced STARS AND STRIPES into defeat a sixteenth out, but faltered slightly right at end. STARS AND STRIPES showed good speed to well into stretch and then he weakened at a trifle short. INDIANAPOLIS quit determinedly on far turn, then quit when the real racing began. ONUP was forced wide for entire trip.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:36. Winner, D. Breckinridge's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR ROSALIND, $11.46, $5.06, $2.90; MISS PEGGY, $7.80, $4.60; SURCEASE, $5.28.

FAIR ROSALIND was rushed to the front immediately after the start and, opening a good lead while saving ground, was never seriously threatened. MISS PEGGY was sent into contention on the far turn, was carried extremely wide on the turn when ALINE BENSINGER bore out and finished strongly last eighth when straightened out. SURCEASE, a factor from the start, held on well to outlast ALINE BENSINGER near end. Latter swerved all over the track through stretch when tiring. CALCITE closed a good sap last furling. ASGO raced greenly and finished on own courage.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,800; allowances. The Silver Lake Park. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start bad. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 4:01. Winner, F. M. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHICAGO, $3.48, $2.48, out; FAIRY MAIDEN, $3.24, out; FLAT IRON, out.

CHICAGO began fast, was allowed to drop back nearing far turn and, forced wide entering stretch, took the lead in front of grandstand under pressure. FAIRY MAIDEN moved up strongly on inside, responded gamely through stretch and was slowly gaining on leader near end. FLAT IRON tired. DISTURB slipped through on the inside at the half-mile pole and held on well until approaching the turn, where she tired badly. BOO refused to brest.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,600; allowances. The Bloomfield. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:25. Off at 4:27. Winner, J. C. Milam's br c. (3), by John P. Grier—Goldmine. Trained by G. G. Paterson. Value to winner, $1,200; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13, 1:19 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LUCKY HIT, $8.68, $4.90, $3.16; GOLDEN RACKET, $7.20, $4.18; BORIS, $2.60.

LUCKY HIT raced as much the best, raced forwardly under steadying restraint and, responding when ready, easily disposed of leaders to draw out last sixteenth. GOLDEN RACKET, also prominent throughout, was allowed to race wide on stretch turn and, although holding on stubbornly when straightened out, could not withstand winner's challenge. BORIS improved position steadily on the outside through stretch, closed good gap last eighth. BEAUREGARD gave an even effort. YUCATAN had no mishaps. OUI MONSIEUR displayed usual good early speed, but stopped badly after reaching far turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:55. Winner, C. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL SON, $18.84, $10.16, $4.80; TYROL, $4.36, $3.40; GEORGE McCRANN, $2.46.

ROYAL SON raced under restraint to the stretch and, racing BIG CHIEF into submission, drew out decisively. TYROL was under restraint while forcing early pace, was taken to outside through stretch and, although closing gamely, was not good enough. GEORGE McCRANN saved much ground throughout, but could never threaten leaders.

15-MILE RACE ATTRACTS 12 FROM D. C.

Two American U. Men Enter; Local Stars to Compete.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY will have two representatives in the annual 15-mile modified marathon of the City Club which will be run over city streets Saturday, commencing at noon. They are David R. Morgan and Roland E. Parrish. With this pair entered, the race will see approximately twelve marathoners from Washington and adjacent territory in action.

It was announced last night by H. J. Odenthal, executive secretary of the City Club, that entrants from contiguous points will be eligible to win the special trophies offered to the first three Capital runners crossing the finish line. These trophies are the Spalding Cup for first, Pearson & Crain Cup for second, and the Louis Gallery Cup for third.

Among the local entrants are Haskell Clark, Knights of Columbus representative, whose prospects are considered bright; Mike Lynch, Knights of Columbus, the patriarch of the distance-running sport here; Jimmy Speer, City Club; Nathan Poole, Western High School; Jerry Looney, Knights

TECH EXPECTS EDWARDS TO REPEAT IN MEET FRIDAY

Team Captain To Carry Burden

Coach Counts on Star to Shine in High School Games.

Eastern, Central May Make Stronger Bid Than Last Week.

IT WAS the sensational work of Capt. Jake Edwards which featured and, almost single handed, won the "C" Club track meet for the Tech High School Team last week. The public high school meet, next in line among the outstanding local track events, and scheduled this coming Friday at the Central Stadium, should find Edwards at his best in the second running of the events in which he will try to gain honor, glory and another victory for Tech for the year.

Edwards was supreme in the "C" Club games. His work, now history, reflects only what may be expected of him as an athlete when he enters Princeton next fall. His powerful build and endless stamina, are his two big assets, and they should be the qualities which will make his college career one long to be remembered.

Edwards should have little trouble in once again scoring honors in the meet of Friday. The manner in which he easily won the four events in which he participated in the "C" Club games testifies to that. The Tech High Team's chances hinge on his work.

Showing of Eastern Was Not As Good as Expected.

The unexpected showing of the Eastern Team, coached by Mike Kelley, which finished sixth, was one of the upsets of last week's meet. Eastern previously had wiped up everything in sight in totaling big scores and exhibiting clever track performers. It was Edwards' performances which, in a large measure, spelled defeat for Coach Kelley's team.

Comparative figures of the "C" Club games show that Tech was far stronger in the running events than either Eastern or Central. The latter two, however, outshaded Tech in the field events. Tech, though, displayed superior ability in the relays. Friday's meet should settle in every way the real strength of Tech, Eastern and Central, because of the keener competition, as the coming games will be strictly a Washington affair.

Cochet Wins 2 Titles In Berlin Net Tourney

Berlin, May 20 (A.P.).—Henri Cochet of France carried off major honors in the final rounds of the International Tennis Tournament here today.

Cochet won the men's single title by defeating Mensel Caezz of Czechoslovakia, 9—11, 6—3, 6—1 and then paired with Jacques Brugnon to win the doubles titles. The double aces of the French Davis Cup team defeated Moldenhauer and Premn of Germany, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1, 10—8.

In his effort to win a third title Cochet, however, went down to defeat. Brugnon and Heinie defeated Cochet and Cilly Aussem for the mixed doubles championship 2—6, 6—2, 7—5.

Marine Nine Departs On Northern Invasion

The Marine Corps Baseball Team departs this morning for its Northern tour. The team will entrain here at 8:25 o'clock for Newport, R. I., where it will play two games with the naval station there. Then it will go to Portsmouth, N. H., where it will make its base for the remainder of the games.

The Marines will return to Quantico on June 13. Its last game will be with Harvard University. Lieut. C. T. Bailey is manager of the team and Lieut. David F. O'Neill is captain.

De Palma Signs to Race In Indianapolis Classic

Indianapolis, May 20 (A.P.).—Ralph De Palma, for 22 years a prominent automobile race driver, today signed a contract to pilot a car in the annual 500-mile race here May 30.

De Palma last engaged in a 500-mile race in 1925. Fourteen years ago he drove a foreign-made racer to victory here, establishing a record which stood for some time.

The Indianapolis race also will mark the return to the sport of Peter de Paolo, nephew of de Palma and American driving champion in 1925 and 1927. De Paolo retired last year following a serious accident which occurred when he attempted to qualify his car for the local contest.

Ty Cobb Batting 1.000 On Green and Fairway

Augusta, Ga., May 20 (A.P.).—Ty Cobb, the Georgia Peach, has turned to golf, and is batting 1.000.

Ty, during his more than a score of years as a star in the major leagues, declined to turn to the ancient and royal pastime on the score that it interfered with his batting stance.

Since his retirement, however, the Georgia Peach has taken up the game and nearly every day may be seen negotiating the local courses.

Old Man Par is still his master, but Ty retains his batting eye and never "misses" the pellet.

2 MORE LOOPS OPEN PLAY SUNDAY

Capital City Senior and Insect Divisions to Start Series.

TEAMS seeking the respective championships of the Capital City League senior and insect sections will swing into action Sunday along with the unlimited, junior, American Legion and midget contenders. Entries in the former two divisions will close tonight at midnight.

Managers of teams which have previously announced their intentions to compete in these two divisions must file their player contracts and franchise fees by midnight tonight. The franchise fee for the senior section is $15 and $5 in the insect section. These fees cover the expense of employing umpires throughout the season.

The teams slated for the senior division are: D. J. Kaufman Budget Boys, Bostonian Shoe, Montrose A. C., Moose, Brookland Boys Club, Try-Me Aces, Miller Furniture Co., Corinthians, Roamer A. C. and Hartfords.

Entries in Two Sections To Close at Midnight.

Among the insect teams contemplating entry are: Corinthians, Gallaghers, Lionels, Eastern All-Stars, Rosedales, Brookland Boys Club, Georgetown, Van Ness, Park View, Takoma, Webco and Clyde Milans.

Other teams wishing to enter either of these sections must file applications for entry before midnight tonight at The Post sports department.

Complete schedules for the first rounds of the unlimited and American Legion sections were announced last night. All unlimited games will be played on Sunday dates. One American Legion game will be played each Saturday and the remainder on Sunday, unless one of the teams scheduled on Saturday is unable to play on that date. In the latter instance, the teams scheduled for the Saturday game will play two games that Sunday.

The schedules follow:

Meet Officials Invite Nurmi And Simpson to Race Here

EFFORTS are being made by members of the games committee of the South Atlantic senior field and track championships to prevail on George Simpson, Ohio State University sprint ace, and Paavo Nurmi, Finnish distance king, to appear in special races of the meet here on June 8. Additional color is being sought for the program, which already is assured of the presence of well-known track athletes.

At present there are obstacles standing in the way of the acceptance of Simpson and Nurmi, but, according to Winfree Johnson, secretary of the committee, every means will be used to surmount them. Simpson already has notified the committee that the trip here would interfere with his plans to go to the Pacific Coast, while Nurmi, it was learned, previously was invited to compete in the Swedish-American games in New York City on the date of the local meet.

Airplane Offered Simpson for Journey From Ohio.

An airplane will be placed at the disposal of Simpson to reduce the amount of time spent in journeying to and from Columbus, Ohio, where he now is located, Johnson said last night.

Entry blanks for the meet may be obtained today and henceforth until June 1, when the list of competitors will be closed. The blanks are available at Spalding's and French's sports stores, the offices of Ernest J. Spitzer, A. A. U. commissioner for the District, in the Munsey Building; the Welfare and Recreational Association, Room 1046 Munsey Building, and The Washington Post sports department.

All Capital High Schools Expected to Participate.

Registration blanks, which must be signed and filed by all athletes intending to compete but not as yet members of the Amateur Athletic Union, may be secured from Commissioner Spitzer or Marvin H. Markle, chairman of the South Atlantic registration committee, Franklin and Cathedral streets, Baltimore, Md.

Representatives of practically all Washington high schools and colleges are expected to participate. A large number of Baltimore scholastic and collegiate athletes also is anticipated. In addition, members of clubs throughout the South Atantic territory, Maryland, Virginia and District of Columbia, are certain to appear.

Richman Gains on Top Trio in Bunion Derby

Odessa, Tex., May 20 (A.P.).—Strengthening his hold on fourth place in elapsed time, Sam Richman, New York, raced to victory today in the fifty-first lap of the bunion derby, running the 21.7 miles from Midland, Tex., to Odessa in 2:24:40.

Giusto Umek, Italy, was second in 2:27:50, and Herbert Hedeman, New York, the oldest man in the field, finished third in 2:30. The two leaders in elapsed time, Johnny Salo, Passaic, N. J., and Pete Gavuzzi, England, tied for fifth in 2:40:10. Salo's lead remains at 21 minutes and 30 seconds.

C.U. PRESENTS 62 SPORTS AWARDS

Gold Symbols Given to Athletes of Seven Varsity Teams.

SIXTY-TWO miniature gold sports symbols were awarded to Catholic University athletes last night at a smoker held in their honor by the athletic association in the university dining hall. Jack Malevich, a junior of Eveleth, Minn., captain-elect of football and boxing, received three awards, having earned the varsity "C" in track as well as in the other two sports.

The Right Rev. Mgr. James Hugh Ryan made his first public appearance following an illness, and presented the symbols. Speeches were made by Representative W. J. Connery, of Massachusetts; John B. McAuliffe, director of athletics; Father Hart and J. Donohue. T. Crawford May, of Denver, Colo., acted as toastmaster.

The following were awarded symbols:

BASKETBALL—Ignace Amann, captain; Robert Linsham, manager; Joe Walsh, captain-elect; Harold Corden, Jerry Mullaney, Larry Martin, Al Papalia, Ed O'Brien, Tom McCabe, James Hanley, William Reilly.

BOXING—James Maguire, captain; Jack Malevich, captain-elect; Rocco Blasi, Robert Riordan, Neal McGrath.

SWIMMING—Frank Mullen, captain; Mike Sheehan, Neal McGrath, Barry Mahoney, Dan d'Hespel, Walter McNamara, Robert Praetorious, Gus Smith.

BASEBALL—Ed Mansfield, captain; Johns Budds, manager; Jack Conlin, Al Planavan, president of Athletic Association; Tom Dunn, Lou Gioffre, Joe Walsh, Francis Mudd, Art Rayhawk, John Sweeney, Lou Hurley.

TRACK—Joe Champa, captain; Joe Fitzgerald, manager; Earl Sullivan, Oscar Gerth, Jack Malevich, Russell Juten, Jerry Healy.

TENNIS—Joe Raiche, captain; Robert Riordan.

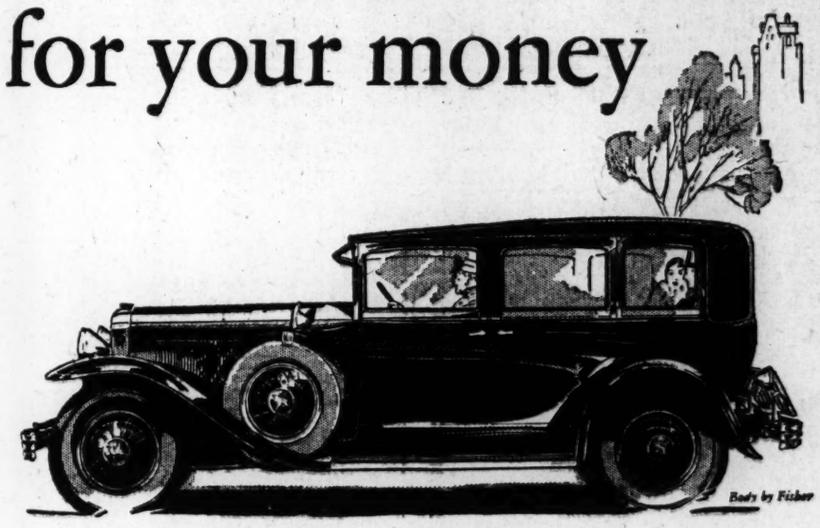
CHEER LEADER—Paul Morrissey.

Lively Preliminaries For Berlenbach Bout

A lively supporting card for the Paul Berlenbach-Jack Maxos wrestling feature at the Gayety Theater tomorrow night has been arranged by Promoter Joe Freeman. Young Kirshman, Olympic middleweight champion of 1920, will meet Young Gotch, Swedish champion, in the opening bout, starting at 8:15. This will be limited to 15 minutes. Tom Clayton, middleweight titleholder of Maine, will clash with Bobby Manfort in the semifinal, a finish match.

Local mat fans are aroused over the coming of Berlenbach, who occupied a place among the headliners six or seven years ago before he forsook the grappling sport for boxing, in which he enjoyed a quick rise to fame and then slipped back just as suddenly. "Punch Em Paul" returned to his first love last winter and apparently has regained old-time form. Tickets will go on sale at the Gayety box office this morning.

You pay no premium when you buy a Buick -- you get full value for your money



There is no "extra magic," no special or mystic ingredient, in any motor car—Buick included . . . nothing but the basic qualities of performance, appearance, stamina and riding comfort put into the car by the manufacturer.

The reason you get finer performance, finer appearance, finer comfort and longer life in Buick is the very practical fact that the world buys more than twice as many Buicks as any other automobile listing above $1200; and thus makes it possible for Buick to give greater value than other, less favored manufacturers.

You pay no premium when you buy a Buick . . . you get full value for your money. Prove this by testing Buick performance in direct comparison with other cars. Then take advantage of this greater value made possible by the overwhelming demand of the motoring public itself . . . Drive a Buick.

BOND MARKET LAGS; RAILS MOSTLY FIRM

O'Fallon Ruling Causes Few Convertibles to Advance; Utilities Quiet.

FEDERAL ISSUES SOFTEN

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—The bond market limped through another irregular session today, showing little inclination to step livelier even in the face of the relatively easy call money and the O'Fallon rate decision. The latter, however, came too late in the day to exercise an appreciable influence on the railroad issues, although some of the convertibles in this group responded to the news by advancing.

First and second grade rails were generally firm. The Atchison convertible 4½s appreciated more than a point and a half on buying that appeared after the O'Fallon decision had been announced, but the Missouri Pacific 5½s responded by an advance of less than half a point on a good turnover.

The feature of the rail division, and indeed of the whole market, was the activity of Southern Pacific debenture 4½s, which changed hands in transactions totaling nearly $2,500,000, par value. Selling was attributed to liquidation by underwriters of the bonds who were holding 80 per cent of the $65,166,000 issue on the recent expiration of the rights issued to stockholders to buy the debentures at 94 to the extent of 17½ per cent of their holdings.

Aside from the rails, convertibles in other sections of the list were heavy. International Telephone 4½s were off nearly 9 points from their recent high, closing at a net decline for the day of 1¾. American Telephone 4½s made a new low on a net recession of nearly a point, and American International 5½s also yielded a substantial fraction. Sales in each case were compara .. light. American I. G. Chemical 5½s commanded better attention, but managed to end the day at a gain of only one-eighth.

Standard investment issues found little favor. Utilities and industrials of the better grade made fractional changes on light buying.

United States Government bonds worked into lower ground throughout most of the group, with most attention centered on the Liberty fourth 4¼s, off a quarter of a point. Foreign obligations were traded in larger volume than recently, but final quotations varied slightly from Saturday's close. Fiat 7s, ex-warrants, sold at a new low; while German Republic 7s equaled the year's minimum of 105.

Foreign sugars were in slight demand at generally lower prices.

BANK LOAN INCREASE REPORTED BY BOARD

Expansion of $154,000,000 in Net Deposits Also Is Announced.

BRISK TRADING IN BONDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Increases of $64,000,000 in loans and investments, of $154,000,000 in net demand deposits and $24,000,000 in time deposits, and a decrease of $58,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks were shown yesterday in the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 101 leading cities on May 15.

Principal changes in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks for the week comprised declines of $26,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, $16,000,000 at San Francisco and $8,000,000 each at Philadelphia and St. Louis, and a gain of $6,000,000 at Boston.

Insurance Rate Cut Predicted.

An insurance rate cut was predicted yesterday by William Montgomery, president of Acacia Mutual Life Association, in connection with its sixtieth annual report to members. Announcing time was ripe for frank discussion of life insurance rates, he said the occasion for such discussion follows conclusion of a successful three years' experiment by the association with rates reduced not only below those of other mutual companies, but also as those of stock companies and lower than many of them.

He recounted that after many years of careful investigation, Acacia directors concluded premiums charged by mutual old-time companies could be reduced materially and be sufficient to guarantee insurance beyond question. Searching study of the rate system revealed that the plan of refunding the unnecessary part of the premium in a dividend was uneconomical inasmuch as taxes, fees, agents' commissions and other expenses had to be deducted before any refund and the arrangement involved taking a more than needed premium from the policyholder and assessing him a handling charge on his money before return.

He declared a further revelation of the inquiry was that stock insurance companies, selling insurance as merchandise and promising no dividends, were highly successful as a whole, despite the fact their premium charges were lower than those of the mutuals. The success of these companies, the fact they were paying large dividends to stockholders, and the increasing value of their stock, he explained, proved their stability, and it was evident a mutual company also could operate successfully under a reduced schedule of premium charges with increased benefits.

"It must be conceded," Mr. Montgomery stated, "that the step was a bold one, even though based upon the most diligent and completely affirmative research; but in April, 1926, Acacia adopted a schedule of premium rates reduced to the low level of those established by stock companies. Three years have proved the wisdom of that step and have proved that insurance thoroughly guaranteed can be written by mutual companies at rates directly comparable to those established by stock companies and besides pay good dividends. In that interval, official approval of Acacia's course, one that involved $300,000,000 of insurance, has been unstintedly given in every analysis of the company's condition."

Headquarters of the association are in the Temple of Service, 101 Indiana avenue northwest. Its membership is limited to members of the Masonic fraternity and now totals more than 120,000. The association, established in 1869, now has branches in 42 States of the Union, its total insurance in force is more than $300,000,000, and its assets more than $30,000,000.

New Post for W. W. Spaid.

Election of W. W. Spaid, member of the firm of W. B. Hibbs & Co., local brokerage house holding membership in the New York Stock Exchange, to vice presidency of the Association of New York Stock Exchange Firms was announced yesterday.

While his selection is regarded as a deserved and distinguished honor which seldom is bestowed upon other than a New York broker, Mr. Spaid, however, won his office by able service as chairman of the executive council of the out-of-town section of the association and as a member of its board of governors.

In connection with Mr. Spaid's recognition, it is of interest to know that W. B. Hibbs, founder and senior partner of the firm of W. B. Hibbs & Co., was the first out-of-town broker to hold membership on the board of governors of the association.

Mr. Spaid has had a remarkable career in both local and national financial fields. He was born near Pleasant City, Ohio, in 1880 and came here in 1899, shortly afterward entering the employ of the Hibbs organization and being admitted to partnership in 1912.

He is a graduate in law and a member of the District of Columbia bar, and also a graduate of the American Institute of Banking, being past president of Washington chapter of the institute in 1914.

In 1918 Mr. Spaid was elected president of the Dupont National Bank, holding the position in addition to his brokerage connection until 1922. He was president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association in 1926.

The twenty-fifth consolidated annual report of the United States Realty & Improvement Co., George A. Fuller Co., and subsidiary companies, for the year ended April 30, made public yesterday, shows the gross income for the year amounted to $6,881,768.12.

After deducting $567,124.26 for general and corporate expenses and Federal and State taxes, there remained a net income of $6,314,643.86, as compared with $5,595,052.60 for the previous year, an increase of $719,591.26. After deducting cumulative dividend of $270,000.00 and participating dividend of $120,690.53 on the 45,000 shares of cumulative and participating prior preferred stock of the George A. Fuller Co., cumulative dividend of $109,500.00 and participating dividend of $70,402.81 on the 36,500 shares of cumulative and participating second preference stock of the George A. Fuller Co., and cumulative dividend of $45,000.00 and participating dividend of $22,866.98 on the $750,000.00 par value of cumulative guaranteed and participating preferred stock of the George A. Fuller Co., of Canada, Ltd., there remained $5,666,183.54 which is equal to $7.72 per share on the 733,102 shares of capital stock which were outstanding at the beginning of the year and up to March 20, 1929.

During the year the work executed by the George A. Fuller Co. amounted to $30,000,000. At the end of the year the balance of the work to be done on unfinished contracts amounted to $44,000,000.

Trading in Bonds Expands.

A new week lent freshness to an apathetic market on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, sending the volume of bond sales from $2,400 at the week-end session to $11,500 and stock turnover from a single share Saturday, to 64.

Heaviest bond trading was in Washington Gas 6s Series A, $4,500 of these going at 102¼, fractional decline. They were followed by $4,000 of the Washington Railway & Electric 4s at 83½, fractional recession. A $2,000 sale of Potomac Electric Cons. 5s at 102, fractional gain, and a $1,000 lot transfer of Anacostia & Potomac Railroad 5s at 95, last sale price, were also recorded.

Stock trading was most active in the Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred 33 shares moving at 106½, most recent sale figure. Five shares of Capital Traction changed hands at 96, fractional reduction and 20 shares of Woodward & Lothrop preferred at 107, three point recession. Riggs National Bank was out at 577, six shares selling.

The "second call" for the District of Columbia Bankers' Association convention at Montauk Point, Long Island, N. Y., June 20-23, goes out tomorrow. It announces more than $2,000,000 spent since last year in making the local bankers' meeting place more attractive and inviting.

Gillet & Co., Baltimore bankers, announced yesterday, that Elmer F. Sauter had become associated with their local office. Mr. Sauter has been with Dillon Read & Co., for the last ten years and prior to that was with National City Co., for two and Riggs National Bank for seven years.

GIVEN NEW POST

W. W. SPAID.

Curb Review

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Curb Market stocks, after fluttering over a wide price range in the early trading today, broke sharply in the face of 7 per cent call money, as fears of a coming money "pinch" gained ground. Losses ranged from fractions to 29 points.

Seventeen new highs were established, but, except in a handful of issues influenced by special news developments, these gains were converted into losses. Sales were of a moderate volume and traders were inclined to stand on the side lines and watch for developments.

The favorable decision for railroads in the O'Fallon case was reflected by the 11 and 9½ point gains in the Alabama Great Southern stocks and the 6-point jump in Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

Western Air Express was a sterling performer in the otherwise unsettled aviation group, a new high being established at 78¼. All but 1¼ points of the 5-point gain was held at the close. The company has extensive expansion plans and the owners are planning to open a new air line in the Middle West. Fokker, in which the same men are interested, turned down.

Bendix Corporation, stock of which is being exchanged for Bendix Aviation shares, fell from a new high at 195 in the morning to close at 184, a net loss of 4 points on the day. Bendix Aviation duplicated this performance, scaling a new peak at 99¼ and winding up at 93¼, off 2⅝ points. General Motors is heavily interested in this company and Fokker. Niles Bement Pond, which holds in its treasury stock in the Boeing group of air companies, broke 7 points.

Utilities, which have had a rapid rise in the past few months, seesawed back and forth, to close generally behind minus signs. American Cities A and B stocks, which touched new highs and held most of their gains, and American Light & Traction preferred were the exceptions. Losses of 2 to 3 points were chalked up by Electric Bond & Share, Electric Investors, U. G. I., Mohawk Hudson Power and St. Regis Paper. An excellent earnings report—the first ever made public by the company—failed to stem the selling in St. Regis.

Grigsby Grunow was the strong feature of the radios, holding 6 points of an early 13-point gain. The market for this issue is so thin that three and four gaps between transactions are not uncommon. Sparks Withington (new) sold at a new high.

The general trend in the oils was downward despite reports of impending crude price advances in the Midcontinent and Texas. Humble was down 2½ and Gulf nearly 4.

Great Atlantic & Pacific moved violently up and down on a small turnover. This stock, listed last week, had ranged from a low of 332 to a high of 494. Today, after running up to 469½, A. & P. dropped to 431 for a net loss of 29 points.

1212 Eye N.W. Metro. 3257. D'ASHMAN
ADVICE ON ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE.

MADAME HART

707 7TH ST. N.W.
Tells you of your past, present and future, divorces, love, courtships, marriages, separations and family affairs.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS CLAIRVOYANT

DO YOU WANT TO KNOW?
HE TELLS YOU THE TRUTH,
GOOD OR BAD.

Without asking any questions, this remarkably gifted man reveals your entire life, from infancy to old age, giving dates, facts and figures, and guides you to success, health and happiness; settles lovers' quarrels, enables you to win the esteem and affection of any one you desire; causes speedy and happy marriages; tells if the one you love is true; restores lost affection, peace and confidence to lovers and discordant families; gives you the full secret how to control the thoughts and actions of any you desire.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

TWO ENTRANCES.

CADETS SPATTERED BY MUD IN ANNUAL DRILL TOURNAMENT

17 Companies of High School Pupils Hold Maneuvers in Driving Rain.

TRIBUTE PAID TO DEAD PRINCIPAL OF CENTRAL

Contest to Be Finished Today in Griffith Stadium by 12 Other Groups.

Sloshing through the mud and rain in Griffith Stadium yesterday, seventeen companies of cadets, representing Central, Eastern and Western High Schools, participated in the first day of maneuvers in the forty-second annual high school cadet drill.

Despite the driving rain which started shortly after the first companies took the field yesterday morning, the companies were marched on the field in half-hour intervals and put through the manual of arms and military maneuvers, which increased in monotony as the day wore on.

The setting for what is usually the most spectacular and hotly contested high school event was the most drab in the forty-two years of competition and the never more than several hundred persons in the giant stadium were unable to muster the usual enthusiasm which marks such events.

Tribute to Dead Principal.

Tribute was paid to Alvin W. Miller, principal of Central High School, who died Sunday morning at Garfield Hospital, at the opening of the drill. As the High School Brigade Band marched on the field at 8:15 o'clock and assembled at the base of the flag pole in the far corner of the stadium and played the national anthem, the Stars and Stripes were raised.

Even the national colors seemed to be in mourning as they hung limply at the top of the giant pole. Then, as Master Sergt. Fred Hess, U. S. A. band instructor, sounded taps, the American flag was lowered to half-staff in tribute to Mr. Miller.

Company F, of Central, under command of Cadet Capt. Samuel Wertleb, was the first to take the field. It was followed by Companies G, K, A, B, E, H, and C of the same school.

Eastern Company Begins Event.

Company A, of Eastern, was the first company to take the field in the afternoon. It was followed by Companies C, D, and B, of Eastern, and Companies M, H, G, K, and F, of Western. The last company marched on the field at 5:15 o'clock, and it was nearly dusk when it left the field, its members tired, wet and cold.

The four Eastern and five Western companies which drilled in the afternoon received the worst "break" from the weather man. The field, in spots, was a quagmire as the last companies went through the extended order of their maneuvers, which consisted of kneeling down and throwing themselves full length in the mud and water a half dozen times while firing prone at an imaginary enemy.

Uniforms Mud-Bespattered.

It was a good thing for the companies that the three judges, Maj. Thompson Lawrence, Capt. Alexander R. Bolling and Lieut. Easom J. Bond, did not consider the appearance of the cadets after they started their maneuvers, for most of the companies were sorry looking objects as they marched off the field, due to their soggy and mud-splattered uniforms.

The drill will be concluded this afternoon. This morning Company I, of Business, and Companies A, G, B, C, F and H, of McKinley will take the field. This afternoon Company G of Eastern, E of Business, D of Central E of McKinley and L of Western will conclude the competition, after which the winning company will be determined.

Secretary of War James W. Good will review the cadets this afternoon before the winning company is singled out and brought before the reviewing stand to receive the honor and glories of a winning company. First, second and third company awards will be made.

Sanders Says 3,000,000 Reds Are at Work in U. S.

The seeds of revolution are being planted in the United States by 3,000,000 Reds and this distribution of Bolshevism is being fertilized by 10,000 newspapers and periodicals, Representative Morgan G. Sanders, of Texas, a member of the House naval affairs committee, told the Reserve Officers Association of the District of Columbia meeting last night in the Department of the Interior.

VICTIM OF SLUGGING FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Two Flee From Prostrate Man Found Senseless by Mail Collector.

CONDITION HELD CRITICAL

A man identified by papers in his pockets as Raymond M. Caruana, 30 years old, of 3500 Thirteenth street northwest, was at Casualty hospital this morning in an unconscious condition while police sought two men believed to have assaulted him.

Caruana was found lying on the sidewalk at Eleventh and K streets southeast about midnight by a postman, who was making his rounds collecting from mail boxes. The postman stopped Andrew Etzler, of 435 Sixteenth street southeast, who was passing in an automobile. Etzler carried the unconscious man to the hospital, and started the police on the hunt for his assailants when he reported that the postman said two men ran away from the body at his approach.

At the hospital, surgeons reported that Caruana has a fractured skull and is in a critical condition.

He is said to be an employe of the Lubow's Clothing Establishment at 910 F street northwest.

D. A. R. of Maryland Unveil Stone Here

Memorial for Chaplain Is Placed in Cathedral at Ceremony.

In recognition of the services of Mrs. J. Charles Linthicum, of Baltimore, as State chaplain, the Maryland State Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday placed a carved memorial stone in Washington Cathedral. Members of several Maryland chapters participated in the ceremony.

Mrs. J. G. H. Lilburn, of Baltimore, State vice regent, placed the stone. In a brief speech she stated that the memorial "is a tribute of love and appreciation from a grateful body of Maryland women." Mrs. Linthicum made a brief speech as did Mrs. Robert Welsh, of Millersville, Md., State regent.

The stone is located in the south aisle of the nave crypt. The names of the Maryland society, the donor, and Mrs. Linthicum, in whose honor it was placed, will be recorded in the Cathedral's Book of Remembrance.

Son of Policeman Accused of Theft

Francis A. Lanahan Charged With Taking Auto and Garage Money.

Francis Aloysius Lanahan, 30-year-old son of Policeman H. A. J. Lanahan, of the First Precinct, was arrested yesterday by headquarters detectives on a warrant charging grand larceny. The warrant was sworn out by David Glassman, owner of Glassman's Rent-a-Car Garage, where Lanahan was employed as night manager. Lanahan was held at the Seventh Precinct.

Police say that Lanahan and three other men participated in a card game in the garage early yesterday morning and that afterward the party went to Baltimore in one of Glassman's automobiles. Lanahan, as night manager, was accustomed to take the night receipts from the cash register at night and hide them, police said. When Lanahan, the money and the automobile were found to be missing yesterday, Glassman swore out the warrant on which he was arrested, police said.

All members of the force were on the lookout for the automobile last night. Baltimore police also were notified to seek the car.

464 GAMBLING RAIDS IN 4 MONTHS, REPORT

Total Arrests on Charges of Gaming 624, Police Tell Pratt.

21 PLACES ARE WATCHED

Statistics showing the activities of the District police against gambling establishments throughout the city in the last year and a half were presented by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, to Leo A. Rover, United States District attorney, yesterday.

The figures were called for by Pratt several weeks ago in a general order designed to get information showing the efficacy of the police raids on known or suspected gambling establishments.

Between January 1, 1928, and May 1, 1929, there were 289 establishments raided by police for gambling. The number of raids totaled 464, many of the places being raided several times, one of them, in the 600 block of T street northwest, having been raided eleven times, according to the reports made to Pratt.

There were 624 arrests for violation of the gambling laws of the District. These arrests included only those in which charges of setting up a gaming table were made, and did not include other charges such as disorderly conduct or the arrests of witnesses.

Twenty-one other places were reported as suspected gambling houses and these are being watched, the precinct commanders told the police chief. The gambling activities are located principally in the First, Second, Third and Eighth Precincts, the reports show.

Pickets have been detailed to watch known or suspected gambling establishments in these precincts, Maj. Pratt said. No special gambling drive is to be made by police headquarters, he said, but the work of cleaning up their precincts is to be left to the commanders.

Charges Threats in Divorce Suit.

Mrs. Emma I. Patten, of 927 Ninth street northeast, filed suit for limited divorce against Wilbur A. Patten, a painter, yesterday in the District Supreme Court, charging he deserted her last November and has made threats on her life since.

HEARING TO DISCUSS UTILITIES NOMINEES

Chairman Capper Invites Civic Groups to Pass on Patrick and Hartman.

ONE PROTEST IS RECEIVED

A public hearing on the nominations of Gen. Mason M. Patrick and Harleigh H. Hartman to be members of the Public Utilities Commission will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by a subcommittee of the Senate District committee.

In order to get the best possible cross section of public opinion, Chairman Capper has invited seven civic organizations to send representatives to the hearing. He also has asked Gen. Patrick and Mr. Hartman to be present.

So far the only protest against the nominations has come from E. C. Reigel, head of the Washington Consumers League. Reigel contends that, in naming Hartman and Patrick, President Hoover ignored the poll that the league conducted to determine who the people wanted on the commission. He has been invited to appear at the hearing tomorrow.

The other organizations that have been asked to send representatives to the hearing are the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Citizens Advisory Council, the Central Labor Union, the Board of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

The prospect is that after the hearing the subcommittee will urge the full District committee to make a favorable report on the nominations. It is not believed that Reigel's argument will carry much weight with the subcommittee.

Selections for Utilities Board Are Indorsed

Approbation of the newly appointed Public Utilities Commission members was expressed by Frank Van Sant, principal speaker at the monthly meeting of the West End Citizens Association last night in the Western Presbyterian Church. It was the last meeting until September.

Miss Mary Puffenberger was elected secretary of the association at the meeting, presided over by Charles L. Norris, president.

Maintenance of Wages Paid Builders Urged

Maintenance of the present standard of wages, rather than an increase within the near future, was advocated by Edwin H. Rosengarten, retiring president of the Master Builders Association of Washington, a principal speaker at a dinner of the Iron Contractors Association of the city last night at the Hamilton Hotel at which M. O. Smith, the new president, and other officers were installed.

"Because of the constantly declining volume of work in the building industry, the question today should be that maintaining the present standard of wages," Rosengarten said.

MacCracken Will Get Farewell at Banquet

A bon voyage dinner will be tendered to William P. MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary in Charge of Aeronautics, of the Department of Commerce, by the aviation committee of the Washington Board of Trade at the Willard Hotel tonight at 7 o'clock. Mr. MacCracken is to depart the latter part of the week to attend a conference in Paris on laws covering international air navigation.

May Is Elected President Of Washington Rotarians

Brawner Elevated and Three Directors Chosen; Take Office July 1.

Arthur J. May was elected president of the Washington Rotary Club at its meeting last night in the ballroom of the Willard Hotel.

Henry Brawner was chosen as vice president, and three directors were also elected. The new members chosen for the board are the Rev. Charles T. Warner, pastor of St. Alban's Church; Harrison E. Howe and Harold A. Brooks.

All will be inducted into office at an elaborate ceremonial during the meeting of the club on July 1 next, it was announced.

Reports were made by delegates to the thirty-fourth district conference.

May was formerly a vice president of Rotary and has been active in city, district and national work of the organization.

The club here is out after the national convention, and, his friends believe that May will institute such a vigorous campaign for securing it that it is almost a certainty that the National Capital will entertain the thousands of visitors from the United States and Canada. Delegates are also expected from some of the European countries, where Rotary is rapidly organizing chapters, it was said.

BROOKHART TO SEEK FRAUD PROSECUTION OF TWO CITY FIRMS

Postoffice Will Be Asked to Act for Attempt at Bond Scare.

BLAINE DECRIES LACK OF AIDS FOR HONESTY

Usury Can Be Practiced in Capital Now, Wisconsin Senator Says.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, announced last night that he would make a formal request to the Postoffice Department to issue fraud orders against two Washington firms dealing in bonds and securities.

In a speech in the Senate yesterday, Brookhart accused these two firms of trying to victimize the holders of bonds issued by the F. H. Smith Co. He read a letter from a Chicago physician in which the latter told how the head of one of the firms called him on the telephone, notified him that the F. H. Smith Co. was about to be "indicted" by the Senate for pyramiding loans and urged him to forward his bonds here immediately so as to get as much as possible out of them before the investigation developed.

"I want to call this matter to the attention of the Postoffice Department," Brookhart said. "I believe that a fraud order should be issued against these companies, and that the Department of Justice should follow that up in court."

Blaine Cites Need of Law.

Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, who heads a subcommittee that will meet this morning to consider Brookhart's resolution for an investigation of real estate financing here, decried the lack of protection given honest business men and investors in the District.

"There is no law in the District of Columbia to protect the honest business man against crooked financial operators," Blaine said. "There is no law to protect the innocent purchaser of securities; there is no law to prohibit unethical and fraudulent practices in the sale of real estate; there is no law that gives to a debtor in the District of Columbia the right to appear in court to present a defense against a foreclosure. Foreclosure in the District of Columbia of a mortgage or a trust deed or a contract of purchase is done by publication, even without the opportunity for redemption.

"Usury Can Be Practiced."

"Moreover, the laws relating to the question of usury in the District of Columbia are so defective that some of these financial operators may take from a widow 20 per cent of the loan she obtains upon her little home as a commission.

"These financial operators have gone so far as to inflate the valuation of properties within the District of Columbia until they have skyrocketed. The result has been that honest men, engaged in dealing in securities, in loaning money, in financing legitimate business enterprises, are constantly met by the crooked operations of crooked men and crooked institutions.

"So far as I am concerned, I propose to ascertain what are the defects in the system in the District of Columbia, to indict a bad system and mend it if possible."

Autoist Wins Race With Police Car

George Blair, Aroused Out of Bed, Says Friend Borrowed Auto.

Aroused from bed at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and arrested on a reckless driving charge, George H. Blair, 19 years old, of Alexandria, Va., faced Judge Isaac R. Hitt later in the day.

Park Policeman H. W. Brown testified he pursued a speeding automobile along Fourteenth street, through Potomac Park and across Highway Bridge at a 60-mile-an-hour rate. He lost the car on the bridge, Brown said, but the driver reached out and attempted to hit him before the car drove away. The policeman obtained the tag number of the car and traced it to Blair, whom he identified as the driver of the vehicle, after going to the youth's home and making the arrest.

Blair denied that he drove the car, declared he lent it to a friend shortly before the episode with the policeman occurred. Judge Hitt continued the case until Saturday and instructed an investigation be launched into the defendant's story.

Business Restriction On Highways Advised

The Inter-Federation Conference, representing civic organizations of the Washington metropolitan area, last night unanimously adopted a resolution calling on the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to exercise its authority to aid in restricting the character and number of commercial establishments on highways leading into the National Capital for the purpose of preventing the erection of establishments which might be considered unnecessary in the community.

This resolution was adopted after another opposing the erection of additional gasoline stations on Connecticut avenue between the Klingle Bridge and Chevy Chase Circle had been withdrawn from consideration.

2 Churches Aided By Methodist Unit

Extension Society Donates Funds for Institutions; Names New Officers.

New appropriations were made for Methodist churches at Rosedale and Wesley Heights and officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Methodist Union and Church Extension of the Washington District last night in Foundry Church.

Paul H. Cromelin was elected president; William E. Springer, first vice president; L. C. Jones, second vice president; Harry L. Underwood, third vice president; John S. Barker, recording secretary; S. L. L. Hiller, corresponding secretary, and I. H. Entwistle, treasurer.

A new group of trustees was elected as follows: Dr. A. C. Christie, J. C. Nuber, the Rev. J. Phelps Hand, the Rev. S. C. Reynolds, the Rev. H. A. McKinley, Chancellor L. C. Clark, the Rev. Chasteen Smith, Charles H. Gray, Harry O. Hine and Harry Hoskinson.

RAIN FAILS TO HALT CIRCUS ENTHUSIASM

Throngs See Ringlin-Barnum & Bailey Show in Two Performances Here.

THRILLING ACTS STAGED

Washington proved itself a real circus city yesterday when, despite an almost all-day downpour, Capital crowds thronged to Camp Meigs grounds both afternoon and evening to witness performances of Ringling Brothers & Barnum & Bailey circus.

The "big top," which seats more than 10,000 spectators, was 80 per cent filled for the matinee and packed for the night show. Those who braved the rain and threat of mud were well repaid for their trouble and they encountered fewer difficulties from the weather than expected.

Fortunately the circus hands had erected the main tent and the managerie canvas before yesterday morning's rain so that conditions underfoot in the circus were good, the only mud to be found at the entrances. A few who happened to sit under leaking seams of the canvas roof suffered a spattering, but most of these just grinned, munched their peanuts and proceeded to enjoy themselves thoroughly.

Without a doubt the big thrill of this year's performance is furnished when Hugo Zacchini, who styles himself "The Human Projectile," is fired from a cannon, landing in a net on the other side of the huge arena. Just how it is done remains a mystery, but the act held Capital audiences breathless yesterday and will do the same today when two more performances are scheduled at 2 and 8 o'clock before the show moves on to Baltimore.

Containing all the features which for years have made Ringling Brothers and the Barnum & Bailey shows top-notchers in their field and with each act adding a few new stunts for the entertainment of the crowd, this year's program offers real enjoyment for men, women and children alike. The clowns have some new gags, including a "Rube Goldberg" cigar light, the bareback riders do double and triple balancing, the aerialists risk life and limb to get a "big hand," while there are the usual jugglers, tight and slack wire walkers and dancers, trained seals, trained elephants, dogs and ponies.

It is a well-balanced show, with never a dull moment from the time the menagerie tent is entered until the wild west and rodeo performance closes the bill. Side shows appear cleaner and more modern than usual, and did a rushing business before and after the main attraction.

Lillian Leitzel, who does a hundred revolutions of her body while suspended in mid-air on a rope; Luicita Leers, another aerialist, who revolves on her arms countless times on a bar high above the ground; Miss Winifred, who somersaults from a flying trapeze to a single strand of rope, are among the featured performers, but if there was a poor act on the bill it escaped attention.

Goliath, the huge sea elephant, created quite a sensation by his consumption of fish while being paraded around the tent, while the animal tent attracted thousands all day long.

Traffic Officers Injured by Autos

Two Policemen Are Knocked Down; Both Sustain Broken Bones.

While directing circus-bound traffic last night, two policemen were knocked down and injured by automobiles.

They are: William E. Rogers, 30 years old, of the Fourteenth Precinct, residing at 311 T street northeast, and Oscar Allen, 34 years old, Fourth Precinct, residing at 608 Seventh street southwest. Allen was treated at Casualty Hospital for a fractured leg and knee, while Rogers was treated at Sibley Hospital for a fractured rib and cuts and bruises.

Rogers was knocked down at Sixth and M streets northeast by an automobile operated by Ralph Montgomery Herdon, 28 years old, of 1008 I street northeast. Allen was knocked down at a nearby intersection by an automobile operated by James E. S. Wood, of 3001 Fourteenth street northeast. Neither was held by the police.

Takoma Park Tax Rate Will Continue at $1.10

The town tax rate for Takoma Park, Md., last night was fixed at $1.10 at a meeting of the mayor and town council held in the new fire house. This is the same rate which was set for last year.

The town assessors reported that they have assessed new property in the town limits at $50,000.

MISSING FATHER, SON NOT FOUND IN SEARCH

Airplanes and Navy Vessel Patrol Chesapeake Bay for Hodgsons.

BELIEVED LOST IN STORM

Hope for the safety of Carey V. Hodgson, assistant chief of the geodesy division of the Coast Guard and Geodetic Survey, and his 10-year-old son, William, caught in the storm which swept over Chesapeake Bay Sunday afternoon while canoeing near Bay Ridge, Md., was abandoned last night.

Two airplanes, a seaplane and submarine chaser from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., failed to find any trace of the canoe or its occupants after an all day search yesterday. The planes and subchaser scoured an area of 15 miles square.

Hodgson, 43 years old, and his son, are believed to have been drowned when their "unsinkable" canoe was caught in the storm which lashed the bay for several hours Sunday afternoon. The canoe was last seen near Tolley's Reef, about a mile and a half from the Bay Ridge shore, a few minutes before the storm broke. Those familiar with the bay believe the frail craft was crushed and its occupants thrown into the water by the huge waves which the storm caused.

Hodgson and his son were spending the week-end with Mrs. Hodgson at their summer home at Bay Ridge, near Annapolis. Father and son set out for a canoe trip about 11 o'clock Sunday morning. An hour later the storm broke.

Rare Orchid Show Set Here June 7-8

Many Plants in Society's Display Reported Worth $10,000.

Rare orchids which explorers have penetrated the earth's wildest jungles to obtain will be exhibited for the first time in Washington at the annual exhibition of the American Horticultural Society and the American Peony Society, June 7 and 8, at the Willard Hotel.

Orchid plants, many of them valued at more than $10,000, have been lent for the exhibition by Mrs. W. K. Dupont, of Wilmington, Del. These include the rare spider orchid and the famous holy ghost plant.

An orchid exhibit from the greenhouses of Thomas Young, at Bound Brook, N. J., also will be displayed.

Stewart Business College Bankrupt

President Avers Liabilities Are $30,250; 3 Others File Business Failure.

Voluntary bankruptcy adjudication of the Stewart Business University, 1333 F street northwest, was asked of the District Supreme Court yesterday in a petition filed through Lee P. Southern, president of the institution.

The corporation's books show that more than $9,000 is due and receivable from students, but the petition declared only 25 per cent of the claims are collectable. The amount was included in the list of assets, which totaled $17,106.70, while the debts of the institution were listed at $30,250.10. The petition was filed by Attorneys M. M. Doyle and F. A. Thuee.

Three other voluntary bankruptcy petitions were filed. James A. Barr, proprietor of the Toggery Shop, 3100 M street northwest, through Attorney Charles Walker, declared debts of $10,861.67 and assets of $4,238.25. Wade Gilbert Dent, real estate agent, of 2900 Connecticut avenue northwest, listed liabilities of $82,380.01 and assets of $7,700. Martha Gilbert Dent, of the same address, declared her debts were $18,019.32 and assets $7,500. Attorney W. A. Coombe appeared for the latter two petitioners.

Lieut. Funston to Quit Army Life for Business

Second Lieut. Frederick Funston, jr., of the United States Army, son of the late Maj. Gen. Funston, has resigned from the service to enter business, the War Department announced yesterday.

Lieut. Funston is now at Kelly Field, Tex., where he is detailed with the Air Corps. He was graduated from the Military Academy in 1927 and assigned to the Infantry. Last March, however, he asked to be detailed with the Air Corps. His father won fame as the captor of Aguinaldo, the Philippine insurrectionist leader against the United States at the close of the Spanish-American War.

REVENUE BUILDING CORNERSTONE LAID BY MELLON IN RAIN

U. S. Building Program Begun With Ceremonies at New Mid-City Triangle.

HOUSING OF 4,500 AIDS IS SCHEDULED IN 1931

Head of Treasury and Blair Speak at Rites; Latter on City Beautification.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, before a rain-drenched assemblage and a battery of clicking cameras, yesterday afternoon formally laid the corner stone of the new Bureau of Internal Revenue Building as the first structure of the so-called "Pennsylvania Avenue Triangle."

With introductory remarks by the secretary and an address by David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the slab was cemented into place at the Twelfth and B street corner of the building, which upon its scheduled completion on July 13, 1931, will provide accomodations for approximately 4,500 Government workers.

Secretary Mellon called attention to the significance of the occasion as an event toward the ultimate housing of the Internal Revenue Bureau in one building rather than many scattered throughout the city, and as the inauguration also of construction work on the triangle area projects.

"It will constitute an integral part of that group, and it has been designed in such a way that it will contribute in the greatest measure possible to the beauty and dignity of the city and the convenience of all who must transact business with the Government," he declared.

Pays Tribute to Blair.

"It is a particular satisfaction that this long-delayed building has been started during the administration of the present commissioner, Mr. Blair. For more than eight years he has carried on the difficult and responsible work of administering the internal revenue laws. Often it has been under the greatest handicaps, such as inadequate housing of the various units of his organization and also constant changes in personnel. But he has worked always to give the taxpayers and the Government an honest and efficient administration of the tax laws, and he has succeeded in making a record of which the country can well be proud. It is with great regret that we see him leave the Treasury organization, and I wish him to know that he carries with him the admiration of all those who have been associated with him."

Commissioner Blair, in lauding the Washington beautification plan, maintained that "the nation owes a great debt of gratitude to Washington and L'Enfant" and that "it will owe as much to Hoover and to Mellon." He listed Senator Smoot, the late Senator Fernald, Senator Keyes, and Representative Elliott as "bringing about legislation which has made possible the birth of a new National Capital, or rather the rebirth of the vision of L'Enfant and George Washington."

"When we speak of the cost of this building as $10,000,000, the cost of developing the Triangle as $75,000,000, and the cost of carrying out the program which is now under way as $200,000,000, the figures seem large, but the cost is small compared with the benefits," he continued. "One-twenty-fifth of 1 per cent of the amount collected by the Bureau of Internal Revenue since 1921 will cover the entire cost of this building and the ground on which it stands. One-third of 1 per cent of the amount collected during Mr. Mellon's term of office will pay for the whole of the Triangle development complete, including buildings, grounds and parks, and less than 1 per cent will pay for the entire proposed development of the New Washington."

Has Had Enormous Growth.

"Since the bureau was organized in 1792 its growth has been enormous. Our average daily collections now are $1,500,000, more than the total collections for the first ten years of its activities. It collects 76 per cent of all the Government revenues, and during the last eight years alone it has collected more than $23,000,000,000."

Invocation was said by the Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, and benediction was pronounced by the Right Rev. C. F. Thomas, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Music was rendered by the U. S. Marine Band.

The metal box placed within the cornerstone contained 23 articles, including the Bible, copies of the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, The Washington Post among other Washington newspapers and the latest Congressional Directory, together with an American flag and medallion of President Hoover, Secretary Mellon and Under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills among others.

Clinic Tragedy Is Cause Of Senate Resolution

The Senate adopted a resolution yesterday calling on the District Commissioners to submit a report on the regulations here governing the care of explosives and inflammable materials, such as caused the recent Cleveland Clinic disaster.

The resolution was introduced by Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York. Copeland, who is a physician, told the Senate that he was led to draft the resolution by the Cleveland tragedy.
